citing week and the best national finish of a Lancer athletic team in program history.

"We approached every game throughout the year with a sense of anticipation, always being ready to play," Kranz said. "In the tournament, our confidence level kept building throughout that week in Idaho."

The "Final Four" team featured a two-time All-American in MMC Hall of Famer Mac Rops, future All-Americans Kranz and Matt Giever, and several other talented players. Those players' willingness to work together and within Thorson's system is what Kranz credit's for that exciting run.

"Everything came together at the right time my junior year," he said. "Each player figured out his role in helping the team win ball games. We improved as the year went on and bought into what Thorson was preaching.

"And we had success because of it."

As a senior — with several starters gone from the tourney team — Kranz took a bigger role with the Lancers. He led the SDIC in scoring and was named the league's Most Valuable Player. He also earned second-team All-American honors and was recognized as one of the top players in the state by several media outlets.

"He was a tough player to contend with," Thorson said. "I appreciated his leadership. When he needed to, he spoke up, and he always played hard."

Kranz finished his career tied for second in field goal percentage (60.9 percent) and ninth in field goals made (539), the only Lancer in the top 10 of field goals made who ranks outside the top 10 in attempts. His 1,334 points currently ranks sixth all-time in Lancer annuls.

Kranz was a part of 79 wins, including two SDIC titles and a national semifinal appearance, during his four years in Lancer blue and gold.

Kranz and running mate Ryan Krempges started a run of talented posts for the Lancers. After Kranz and Krempges graduated, Giever earned second-team All-America honors in 2000. Two years later, David Gall was named an honorable mention All-American. Justin Bonnichsen followed, earning two honorable mention and two first-team All-American selections.

Kranz, now a district manager for Marman/Keystone, LLC, still maintains his ties with MMC. Besides being a donor, Kranz makes it a point to catch the Lancers in person when they've played in the St. Xavier Tournament in Chicago, near his residence in Aurora, Ill.

"The other thing about Aaron is his loyalty to the school," Thorson noted. "When we go to Chicago, he always tries to come out and see us play."

And, even though Kranz last put on a jersey 13 years ago, he still gets a thrill from seeing the blue and gold on the court.

"I still get butterflies," he said, "from wanting them to succeed."

Kranz and his wife Carrie (DeRoos), also a former MMC athlete, have two children, Addison (7) and Kedzie (2).

DR. RICHARD LOFTHUS

"Doc," as Lofthus is affectionately called by student-athletes and other students, has served as the faculty athletic representative (FAR) for Mount Marty since the fall of 1991. But his connection to the student-athletes has extended far beyond the job description of his unpaid position, and his workload increased nearly six-fold during his tenure.

The FAR is responsible for overseeing the student-athlete eligibility process, making sure that every student-athlete is academically eligible before he or she steps onto the field of competition for MMC. The job requires Lofthus to track current student-athletes, as well as check incoming student-athletes for eligibility.

His job also requires him to act as a liaison between the athletic department and faculty, helping the two sides deal with issues when athletics conflict with academics.

"One of the things we tried to do here — all the coaches, Chuck (Iverson) and myself — was we've tried to create a culture in the athletic department that emphasizes the 'student' part of student-athlete," Lofthus said. "We've put the emphasis on trying to get a degree."

That "emphasis" can be seen in the long list of NAIA All-America Scholar Athletes during Lofthus' tenure. Coming into the 2011-12 school year, 281 academic All-American honors had been presented to Lancer student-athletes. MMC student-athletes have also won three Christopherson Awards for the top athletic program grade-point average in the Great Plains Athletic Conference, as well as six Emil S. Liston Awards , four A.O. Duer Awards, three Dr. LeRoy Walker Champions of Character Awards and a John Wollman Award at the conference level. Two of
