Drake Relays Announces Hall Class

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The Drake Relays has selected four members for this year's Hall of Fame class. Meet officials say Joey Haines, Victor Thomas. Tommy Asinga and former Iowa State star Edith Nakiyingi (naw-kee-ENG-gee) will be inducted on April 26. Haines is the former head track and field coach at Southeast Missouri State, where his teams won 11 Drake Relays event titles in the 1980s.

Thomas, who coaches at Lincoln University in Missouri, has had 39 athletes win meet titles since 1996.

Asinga was a five-time All-American at Eastern Michigan and competed in the 1988, '92 and '96 Summer Olympics for Suriname. Nakiyingi won the university/college division 800 meters in 1989 and 1991 and the women's invitational 800 in 1990.

last month after leading the Rams to the NCAA tournament. Eustachy is coming off a season in which he guided Southern Mississippi to its first NCAA tournament appearance since 1991. It's been a long road for Eustachy, who has rebuilt and restored his career in eight seasons at Southern Miss. Eustachy was a coach at Iowa State over a decade ago before his dramatic downfall. He resigned in 2003 shortly after photos of him partying with students surfaced.

Eustachy went through rehabilitation to treat alcoholism and was given a second chance at Southern Miss, where he steadily built the program into a Conference USA contender by providing a home for castoffs from other programs and junior college

He inherits a Rams program that's rapidly on the rise, improving in each of Miles' five seasons in charge. CSU went from a 7-25 in Miles' first year to 20-12 last season. The Rams were bumped from the tournament by Murray State in their tournament opener.

The 56-year-old Eustachy was once viewed as one of the best young coaches in the country. He took lowa State to the final eight in 2000 and was selected the AP Coach of the Year.

"But we just did not adjust well enough hitting-wise, and we also did not adjust soon enough," Fernandez said. "We did later in the game, but just not soon enough.' In the fifth inning Fernandez began to make personnel moves, putting Bruns at third base and Shaina Lonneman at designated hitter. Bruns had a very strong showing at third base, but Lonneman may have been the most impressive sub of the game. Lonneman's first at bat was a straight liner into center field driving a run in. Lonneman followed her fifth inning hit with a seventh inning middle liner.

"Bruns hasn't had many reps at third base this year, as it is a secondary position for her, but she fielded very well," Fernandez said. "Shaina has been working hard all year with us on her swing, and tonight she got two huge hits. It was huge for both her and the team, it boosts her confidence and rewards her hard work, and also got the whole team excited." Another late game substitute was pitcher Jessica Polk, who was thrown in with one out left to go in the seventh inning. "Jessica got in there in a tough situation, but she got the out we asked of her and that kept us in the game," Fernandez said. A last inning run by the Lancers was too little too late. Loutsch drove in a run in the final inning, but the game ended with Dakota State winning 6-2. Jena Peters was credited with the
