Mietz

The goal is to have the permanent replacement hired and in place by the end of the summer, Mietz noted. He added that it was a tough decision for him to leave Yankton. "We've made a lot of great progress over the last three years that I've been here," Mietz said. "We've enhanced our outreach efforts and have changed the attitudes about the perception of the NPS. We got a lot of work done, and it's hard to leave some of the projects that are still being developed."

However, he believes this is a good opportunity for him and his family and is looking forward to moving.

When he begins the job at Great Basin, there are a number of issues he'll have to deal with.

"Water is a really important issue in Nevada, as are water rights issues," Mietz said. "When I get there, the park will just be opening up for spring with a lot of operational things going on. I'll try not to get in the way of people getting there jobs done."

He added that the budget for the park must be figured out as well, and the sequester has led to smaller budgets for many national parks.

"I enjoyed working on the longest river in the country, and I'll really miss working on such a mighty river," Mietz said. "I'll miss the people here a lot. People we've worked with have a lot of passion about the river and people here like working together to get things done. There were not a lot of egos that got in the way of us getting projects finished."

the last three days as it did for the first 3 1/2 months of

Or to look at it another way, Yankton unofficially recorded 2.92 inches of moisture during the past three days and 3.10 inches so far in April. In contrast, Yankton averages 3.11 inches of moisture for the entire year so far.

Yankton posted impressive snowfall figures this week. However, the National Weather Service (NWS) numbers were much higher elsewhere, particularly to the

In Gregory County, Burke received 10.5 inches, while other parts of the county received seven and eight inches.

Platte received 9.5 inches of snow. In neighboring Douglas County, Armour received 8.5 inches.

In Charles Mix County,

Moving eastward, Marion in Turner County received 9.3 inches of snow.

In northeast Nebras Wakefield in Dixon County received 7.8 inches of snow

In terms of moisture, the NWS reported the Yankton airport received 0.51 inches in a 24-hour period ending 9 a.m. Thursday. Other moisture readings were 0.76 inches at Pickstown, 0.60 inches at Marion and 0.45 inches at Wakefield, Neb.

In northeast Nebraska, the NWS reported 2.1 inches of precipitation in Knox County for a two-day total, with similar amounts in Cedar and Wayne counties. Pierce County reported 2.65 inches, while Antelope County reported 2.9 inches.

As the storm moved out of the region, the clean-up continued Thursday. The Yankton area was spared much of the hardship seen in Sioux Falls and other neighboring communities.

However, the South Dakota Rural Electric Association still reported a large number of outages Thursday afternoon. More than 1,800 customers were without power in southeast South Dakota.

Bon Homme Yankton Electric, based in Tabor, had 80 members without power and five poles down.

Bon Homme County

had 30 members without power, 2 poles down. • Yankton County had 50 members without power, 3 poles are down.

Southeastern Electric Cooperative, based in Marion, had 1,746 members without power, 169 poles down. • Hutchinson County had

75 members without power, 30 poles down. Lincoln County had 750 members without power, 75
