

Documentary Preview Set For May 3 At USD

VERMILLION — The University of South Dakota Alumni Association, Department of History and University Libraries, along with the Clay County Historic Preservation Commission and the Clay County Historical Society, will host a screening of the documentary, "W. L. Dow, Architect" at 2:30 p.m. on Friday, May 3 at the Muenster University Center 216A on the USD campus.

"W. L. Dow, Architect" will air May 6 on South Dakota Public Broadcasting and highlights the work of Wallace Dow, who came to the prairie in the 1880s and left his mark on cities from Bismarck, N.D., to Vermillion. Old Main and East Hall, both Dow buildings and landmarks of the USD campus, are featured in the film. A question and answer session with the film's creators and producers, Brad and Jennifer Dumke of Sioux Falls will follow the screening at 3:30 p.m.

"We wanted to produce a historical documentary that brings history to life, is informative, and makes history interesting and enjoyable while providing a community service in preserving the past," the Dumkes said in a statement.

Jim Wilson, chair of the Clay County Historical Society, stated that Dow was also responsible for several prominent buildings in Vermillion, including the First National Bank Building (now Red Steakhouse), the first Vermillion Public High School and the first Vermillion City Hall. "Dow was the most prolific and famous of the early architects in South Dakota and built in a variety of styles," Wilson added.

"Dow seems to have done it all," said USD Associate Professor of History Molly Rozum, Ph.D. "His buildings were varied in design and purpose, from Queen Anne to Gothic and from homes and schools to churches."

The screening is free and open to the public, and refreshments will be served. For more information about "W. L. Dow, Architect," call (605) 310-3844 or email jenniferdumke@msn.com.

Missouri River Cleanup In Need Of Volunteers

Missouri National Recreational River is sponsoring the 10th annual Missouri River Cleanup on Saturday, May 4.

The National Park Service is seeking volunteers to meet at Riverside Park boat ramp picnic shelter at 8 a.m. for registration, coffee and doughnuts. All volunteers will be issued official T-shirts. Boats from the National Park Service and partner agencies will transport volunteers to and from cleanup sites along the river. The cleanup will end at noon with a lunch of bratwursts, chips, and cold drinks.

Missouri National Recreational River Park Ranger and Volunteer Coordinator Dugan Smith said, "The park is very proud of the efforts that hundreds of volunteers have made over the past decade to keep Yankton's Missouri River waterfront clean and green. We calculate that over 100 tons of trash have been picked up along this section of the National Recreational River. The response has been fantastic. The citizens of this area have helped the National Park Service carry out its mission of protecting and preserving this Wild and Scenic River."

Volunteers should wear clothing appropriate for the weather and sturdy, closed-toe shoes. Sunscreen and insect repellent are recommended; bring gloves or gloves will be provided. Participants under the age of 18 must be accompanied by a parent or guardian.

More information is available at www.nps.gov/mnrr or by contacting Park Ranger Dugan Smith by phone at: 605-665-0209 or by e-mail: Dugan_Smith@nps.gov.

Boys State And Girls State Orientations Set

Boys State and Girls State Orientation for District 8 of the South Dakota American Legion and American Legion Auxiliary — made up of Bon Homme, Clay, Charles Mix, Douglas, Hutchinson, Lincoln, Turner, Union, and Yankton counties — will be held Sunday, May 5, at the Centerville American Legion Post Home and at the Delmont, Community Center; this is a change from the American Legion Post Home. Registration starts at 1:30 p.m., with orientations starting at 2 p.m. There will be a lunch at the end of programs.

This is very important information orientation for Boys Staters and Girls Staters to go to, so that they have a better understanding of what will be going on with them at Boys and Girls State.

It would be good that the parents or guardian of the Boys Staters and Girls Staters come, too, so that they will know what is going on with their sons and daughters at Boys State (May 27-31 at Northern State University, Aberdeen) and Girls State, May 27-June 1 at University of South Dakota in Vermillion). This is the 71st session of Boys State and the 67th session of Girls State.

Headlights May Just Need New Bulb

BY TOM AND RAY MAGLIOZZI
King Features Syndicate

Dear Tom and Ray:

I have a 2000 Subaru Outback wagon. Recently, the passenger-side daytime running light and low-beam headlight stopped working. When I got out of my car to check that the headlight was out, I happened to bump the front of the headlight casing and — lo and behold! — the headlight came back on. I opened the hood and tried to see if any wires were loose, but it did not appear so, and tugging on the wires does not cause the light to go on or off. So now, whenever I start the car and the headlight isn't working, I simply get out and give the front of the headlight casing a bump — Fonzie style — and that usually does the trick (sometimes it takes two or three whacks for it to stay on). What could be causing this, and how can I fix it? —Steve

TOM: You can fix it with a new headlight bulb, Steve.

RAY: I'm guessing the filament is cracked and is separating slightly when the bulb cools off. And somehow, when you pound on the headlight casing with your fist, you're getting the two parts of the filament to make contact again.

TOM: But eventually — probably by the time you read this, Steve — the bulb will fail permanently, and the Fonzie trick will only result in a large black-and-blue mark on your hand. Hint: The time to stop banging on it and give up is when you're putting dents in the hood.

RAY: Here's the good news, Steve: A bulb for this car costs less than 10 bucks. And you easily can change it yourself.

TOM: So, pound away as long as you want. But sometime before you actually break your hand, I'd recommend just replacing the bulb instead.

Don't get stuck with a lemon. Be an informed shopper. Read Tom and Ray's guide "How to Buy a Great Used Car: Secrets Only Your Mechanic Knows." Send $4.75 (check or money order) to Used Car, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

Home For Wounded Veterans Opens In Custer

CUSTER — Veterans wounded in combat during the Iraq and Afghanistan conflicts now have a special place where they can spend a quiet week with family in the peaceful beauty of South Dakota's Black Hills — free of charge.

Called Operation Black Hills Cabin, the all-volunteer program offers free use of a Black Hills cabin to qualifying disabled veterans from across the United States. The program began two years ago, using vacation rental cabins donated by local lodging companies. However this year, Operation Black Hills Cabin has its own dedicated cabin specifically for the vets.

"It's our thank-you gift for returning veterans from Iraq and Afghanistan," said Pat Baird, co-founder of Operation Black Hills Cabin. "This project is designed to offer a week-long respite to a qualifying veteran, at little or no expense for them to reconnect with their family and enjoy the beauty of the Black Hills."

The cabin is a Governor's House, built by inmates at the Mike Durfee State Prison in Springfield and moved to the home site in Custer. South Dakota Housing Development Authority, which runs the Governor's House program, donated the house to Operation Black Hills Cabin.

"We're proud to be part of this effort. Returning veterans deserve our support, and wounded veterans need even more support as they transition back to civilian life," said Mark Lauseng, executive director of South Dakota Housing Development Authority.

He noted that many of the Governor's House vendors, suppliers of windows, hardware and other products, joined SDHDA by donating materials for the Operation Black Hills Cabin project.

The city of Custer donated land for the cabin. It is located on the edge of Custer. More than 200 businesses and individuals in Custer and the Black Hills area have supported the project with free passes to attractions, restaurant meals and other goods and services to make the veterans and their families have an enjoyable vacation, Baird said.

She said it's wonderful to have a cabin that is dedicated to Operation Black Hills Cabin. Local lodging companies were extremely generous in the program's first two years. But the companies could only offer vacations when the cabins were available.

Now veterans can visit throughout the six-month season. In the first two years, seven families from Vermont, Indiana, North Dakota and Colorado were able to seek respite in the Black Hills, Baird said. This year already, 10 families are booked for Black Hills Cabin.

To qualify, a veteran must be 30 percent combat disabled from service in Operation Enduring Freedom, Operation Iraqi Freedom or Operation New Dawn. For more information, visit www.operationblackhillscabin.org to download an application for consideration.

Chamber Receives Calls On 'Keep It Local' Sales Pitch

Spring is upon us. Unfortunately, this is also the time of year when the Yankton area sees numerous sorts of scams and out-of-state sales pitches begin.

The Yankton Chamber of Commerce received a call from a concerned citizen about the group called "KEEP IT LOCAL, L.L.C." from Winterset, Iowa. Like clockwork, they have begun their program and again, Chamber officials are asking local residents not to fall for it.

They are contacting Yankton businesses and residents to participate in their shop local program. It doesn't cost the local business anything other than the discount they offer. However, the company then turns around and conducts phone solicitations to local consumers attempting to sell these cards for $39.95 to $49.95. While the local business may have consumers driven to their door by this sales mechanism, none of the card sales stays local.

Don't fall for this sales tactic.

This outside group comes into the community under the pretense of helping to keep sales local. Yankton consumers already have many ways to receive discounts and do not need to support an out-of-state company selling cards to get a deal.

If you are looking for discounts, many local stores have websites and email campaigns where consumers can sign up for offers — all for free and no need to purchase a card.

If this was truly a "Shop Local" program, consumers would not be asked to purchase anything to receive a deal.

Local businesses will soon receive calls from sale representatives selling refrigerator magnets that have local emergency contact numbers of them. These are not local businesses that support local activities and groups, nor are they endorsed by the chamber regardless of what they may say. Another group that has conducted sales is another group from Iowa selling Yankton already has an official map of the community and lake area which is distributed throughout area businesses AT NO CHARGE for the convenience of our visitors. If you would like some for your business, just call the Yankton Chamber and Visitors Center at 665-3636 to receive your copies.

Before agreeing to participate or purchase any of these types of deals, ask some questions. Find out from the representative how much comes back to Yankton. Ask if they have a business in this community. Ask if the proceeds go to a local youth or non-profit organization. Ask yourself; if what they are selling is such a great idea, wouldn't it be being done already by a local company?

If they tell you that they have approved it with the local Chamber (magnet sales representatives like to show samples with the Chamber number on it) call the Chamber office immediately. If the Chamber endorses anything, it will be on our website at www.yanktonsd.com, businesses will receive a notice and there will be announcements in the media. If consumers or businesses are contacted to purchase or participate in any outside sales activities, contact the Chamber and it can tell you if it is a legitimate local business.
