'Working Identity' Exhibition To Open

VERMILLION — In conjunction with the University of South Dakota's Biennial Women and Gender Research Conference, an exhibition entitled "Working Identity" will open at the Washington Street Art Center in Vermillion on Thursday, April 9.

The exhibition of visual art and poetry addresses the theme of gendered work, and the effects of rural life on the formation of a "working" identity for women artists and poets. The exhibition was curated by artist Susan Heggstad, and includes a diverse array of artists whose works address the multiple identities rural women artists often find themselves adopting, in order to make meaning, support themselves and their families and to seek recognition for their work. Some of these issues stem from an isolated rural environment, some from limited professional opportunities and some stem from lingering traditional attitudes common in rural communities. While some artists and their bodies of work embrace and reclaim notions of "women's work," others reflect critically on the boundaries imposed upon women artists by a rural environment.

In curating the exhibition, equal emphasis is placed on emerging as well as established regional artists, and the works will explore the above themes in relation to women's cultural, social, political and domestic lives.

Barbershop Chorus Spring Show Set

CENTERVILLE — For 65 years, the Tri-Valley Barbershop Chorus has been putting on an annual spring show. This year, the show will be held Saturday, April 11, at the Centerville School Gym at 7 p.m.

Each year, the group brings in a different headliner act to really wow the crowd. This year they were fortunate enough to land the group called "Masterpiece." These four guys are the 2013 International Barbershop Quartet Champions.

This year's show will take on a Hawaiian theme with songs, decoration and costumes that will turn our local April showers into a Hawaiian vacation.

Richard Syring, a local Yankton member of the group, said, "If the audience shows up in loud Hawaiian shirts and grass skirts, it will only add to the event."

Barry Schloss, another Yankton member, says, "It's a great opportunity to expose your kids and grandkids to a fabulous form of music. It's fun to see their eyes light up as the harmonies surround the audience. There's no other experience like it!"

Advance tickets are available at a discount by calling 605-660-5764, or they can be purchased at the door.
