Funeral- Protesting Church Member Sues Prosecutors

BY MARGERY A. BECK
Associated Press Writer

OMAHA, Neb. — A member of a Kansas church that protests at soldiers' funerals because it believes God is punishing the U.S. for tolerating homosexuality filed a lawsuit on Monday in federal court accusing Sarpy County prosecutors of violating her rights.

The lawsuit is the latest filed by Shirley Phelps-Roper, who was arrested in 2007 during a protest at the funeral of a National Guardsman in Bellevue. Authorities say she let her then-10-year-old son stand on an American flag and she wore a flag as a skirt that dragged on the ground.

Phelps-Roper's lawsuit says Sarpy County Attorney Lee Polikoff, as well as other prosecutors in the office, violated her constitutional rights "by investigating her for protected expressive activity," among other things.

Phelps-Roper is a member of Westboro Baptist Church of Topeka, Kan., which has about 75 members, all but about a dozen of them relatives of the church's pastor, Fred Phelps. Church members travel around the country protesting at soldiers' funerals because they believe U.S. troop deaths are punishment for the nation's tolerance of homosexuality. Members often trample on, wear and display the American flag upside-down as part of their protests.

The family of Syd (Duke) Hansen

would like to thank everyone for their kind expressions of sympathy, prayers, visits, phone calls, flowers, plants, food and memorials given in Syd's memory.

Our special thanks to Opsahl-Kostel Funeral Home. Thank you so much Tami for your compassion. Thanks to the Ernest-Bowyer VFW Post 152, The SDANG Honor Guard, The VFW Auxiliary Ladies for the luncheon, Trinity Lutheran Church, Rev. Dave Wildermuth and pianist Dave Kulm. Thanks to the pallbearers, Pleasant Hill Cemetery and Yankton County Services.

Our father was a very special man. He was very fortunate and blessed to know all the friends and people that he did. He touched and helped many lives. He will be greatly missed. We will especially miss his love of mankind, his sense of humor and his Dukisms.

The mold was broken when they made Syd. His memory will carry on amongst those who knew him and those that had met him only once.
