

Interns Spend Summer With KPI-JCI

KPI-JCI and Astec Mobile Screens is pleased to announce the continuation of its summer internship programs.

This year's interns — Daniel Filsinger of Clearwater, Neb., Cady Millage of Fordyce, Neb., and Paul Melino of Sioux Falls. — are the recipients of the internship, which was instituted last summer, said Lisa Carson, marketing manager for KPI-JCI and Astec Mobile Screens. The internship program is designed to give outstanding students a chance to hone skills learned in the classroom and apply them in a real-world business setting. Carson plans to develop the internship program as an ongoing strategy to recruit the best and brightest marketing students to KPI-JCI and Astec Mobile Screens.

"I am very excited about continuing the internship program," Carson said. "After the success of last year's interns, I am confident we will be able to build upon the foundation we've set and continue benefiting from the talent of the students; and more importantly, build upon their professional experience and skills."

Filsinger, a return intern from last summer, is a senior at Mount Marty College (MMC) in Yankton and is pursuing a dual degree in graphic design and media arts and business administration. He is involved in numerous extracurricular activities and serves as president of the MMC Student Government Association. His background in business will be used to create market share reports and research opportunities for prospective buyers. Filsinger's design skills will also be put to use through the development of new materials for dealer support.

"I am excited to return to KPI-JCI and Astec Mobile Screens. I truly enjoyed last summer and grew as a designer and a business professional," Filsinger said.

Millage is a senior at Dordt College in Sioux Center and will graduate December 2012. She is majoring in Digital Media Productions, with an interest in Marketing. After graduation, Millage plans to search for a career in the Marketing field. Her background in video production will be utilized to expand the marketing department's viral traffic, particularly for The Road Connection, a year-long campaign to improve the nation's infrastructure.

"I look forward to learning everything possible from the internship with the Marketing department. At the same time, my hope is that my Digital Media background will add something valuable to the team," she said.

Melino will be entering into his last year at Southeast Technical Institute in Sioux Falls, S.D. After the completion of the year, he will receive his Associates Degree in Computer Aided Design. Melino heard about the internship through Southeast Technical Institute's Engineering Chairman, Lloyd Lund. He will be aiding the engineering department by updating and drafting designs.

The internship program will run through the summer and conclude in August. Applications for the 2013 internship program will be due spring 2013. Please e-mail Lisa Carson for more details regarding the internship program. For more information on KPI-JCI and Astec Mobile Screens, visit www.kpijci.com.

Vig Named Chairman Of NSSG Association

Joe Vig, Group Vice President of KPI-JCI and Astec Mobile Screens, has been appointed chairman of the Manufacturers & Services Division of the National Stone, Sand and Gravel Association (NSSGA).

Vig takes the reins from Bill Wetta, CEO of Dredging Supply Company, Inc. As chairman, Vig will lead the division as it seeks to work with producer members of NSSGA to provide information concerning equipment, services, supplies and operating procedures to NSSGA members and the industry it serves.

"NSSGA is such an important association for both equipment manufacturers and producers in the aggregate industry. Those of us committed to helping it prosper must be willing to step up and volunteer where we can," Vig said. "I hope that during my term as chairman, I can bring enthusiasm and knowledge to help the association continue its mission of serving the men and women of the aggregate industry."

Vig has been a leader in the aggregate and concrete industry for almost 40 years. Previously, he has served as a Product Safety Committee co-chairman for the Association of Equipment Manufacturers (AEM), member of the U.S. Committee on Large Dams, and past president of the American Concrete Institute — Dakota Chapter. Before becoming president of Kolberg-Pioneer, Inc. in 2001, he served as the company's engineering manager. Prior to that, he managed the engineering departments at Morgen Manufacturing Co. and then Essick-Mayco. He has a Bachelor of Science degree in Civil Engineering from the South Dakota School of Mines & Technology and is a registered Professional Engineer.

His expertise and understanding of the industry made him a prime candidate for the position, said Tim Reagan, senior vice president of membership services for NSSGA.

USD Awards Muskie Graduate Fellowships To Two International Students

VERMILLION — Two international students will attend the University of South Dakota thanks to the Edmund S. Muskie Graduate Fellowship program, an academic training program funded by the U.S. Department of State's Bureau of Education and Cultural Affairs.

Andrey Khomutovskiy of Petropavlovsk, Kazakhstan and Nadezhda Tsoy of Almaty, Kazakhstan have been awarded the prestigious fellowship through USD. This program brings emerging leaders in key professional fields from Eurasia to the United States for one to two years of graduate study at institutions in the United States. Khomutovskiy, who received his bachelor's degree in education at North Kazakhstan State, will be in the Master of Arts in Educational Administration program at USD while Tsoy, who graduated with her Bachelor of Science in Business Administration and Accounting from the Kazakhstan Institute of Management, Economics and Strategic Research, will be in the Master of Business Administration program.

USD has partnered with the International Research & Exchanges Board to give Muskie fellows access to enriching graduate classrooms with new international perspectives and valuable professional experience on the ground. Eligible fields of study for fellows in the program include business administration, economics, education, environmental management, international affairs, journalism and mass communication, law, library and information science, public administration, public health and public policy. The Muskie Graduate Fellowship program was established by Congress in 1992 following the dissolution of the Soviet Union to allow emerging leaders from the region to gain skills and knowledge in fields they often cannot study in their home countries, including public health, environmental policies and human rights law — allowing them to make valuable contributions in key professional sectors after returning home.

This is the first time the USD Graduate School has hosted Muskie Fellows. According to Dr. Laurie Becvar, Graduate Dean, Muskie Fellows assist the University in incorporating diversity into the intellectual and social lives of graduate students.

"Their participation will foster global awareness and enrich the graduate experience at the University of South Dakota," added Becvar. "We welcome them with open arms and we are proud to be associated with the prestigious Muskie program."
