

Lincoln To Enforce Restrictions With Tickets

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Police officers in Lincoln will begin issuing tickets Monday for anyone violating the city's mandatory water restrictions.

Public Safety Director Tom Casady says warnings will no longer be issued.

Since the mandatory restrictions went into effect Aug. 9, police have responded to about 475 reported violations.

Historically low water flow in the Platte River has prompted restrictions, which limit the use of outdoor water use for lawn watering and car washing. Home addresses ending in even numbers must limit outdoor watering to Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays and addresses ending in odd numbers must water only on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

Violators may be punished with a fine of up to $500 dollars or up to six months in jail or both.

Legal Fees For Killing Of S.D. Teen Top $400K

ALEXANDRIA (AP) — Records show that Hanson County has incurred more than $400,000 in the killing of a 16-year-old Mitchell girl more than 2 1/2 years ago.

The Daily Republic reports that the costs to detain and prosecute two suspects in the death of Jasmine Guevara continue to increase. The county will ultimately only have to pay a fraction of the legal costs because it is a member of the Catastrophic Legal Expense Relief Program, which protects members from incurring catastrophically high legal expenses from any one incident.

Guevara was kidnapped and killed in 2009. Twenty-three-year-old Alexander Salgado, of Fort Wayne, Ind., pleaded guilty in the case and is serving a life sentence. Seventeen-year-old Maricela Diaz of Fort Wayne, Ind., has pleaded not guilty to first-degree murder and is awaiting trial.

Teenager Arrested For Drunken Driving In S.D.

MITCHELL (AP) — A 14-year-old boy has been arrested for allegedly driving drunk while his father reportedly sat intoxicated in the front passenger seat.

The Daily Republic reports that the boy and his 49-year-old father, both of Mitchell, were arrested shortly after midnight on Interstate 90 near Mount Vernon on Aug. 5.

Police caught up to the vehicle after receiving reports that the boy was driving.

The boy's blood-alcohol content level was 0.165, more than twice the legal limit to drive. The boy was arrested for drunken driving, while the father was arrested on charges of contributing to the delinquency of a minor and having an open alcohol container in a vehicle.

They are both out on bond and scheduled to appear in court later.

David Juttelstad

David Juttelstad, 72, passed away at his home on Thursday, Aug. 16, 2012, after a six-month illness. He was surrounded by his loving family when he left us.

David was born March 31, 1940, in Yankton SD to Roy and Ada Juttelstad. He graduated from South Dakota State University in 1962 with a degree in Mechanical Engineering.

He was an accomplished design engineer in the aerospace industry, working in California, Texas and Oklahoma. In 1970 he moved back to South Dakota to work at Morgan Manufacturing in Yankton and to work the family farm. He was also active in the Masonic Lodge.

In 1987 David moved to Florida, performing jet engine design at Pratt & Whitney and eventually forming his own engineering company.

As he was an avid golfer and photographer, reader, gardener and wood worker, retirement was a pleasure. He enjoyed pheasant hunting in South Dakota each fall with his cousins and friends. Driving through wildlife and wetland areas was always exciting, never knowing what would fly into the camera's range. David was always ready to help a neighbor. He loved to design and build furniture. He found an old French plank table that had numerous coats of paint; he cleaned it, refurbished the legs, and produced a gorgeous table for his home.

A wonderful son, husband, father, and grandfather, there are many who cherish his memory. David's family includes his wife of 50 years, Pamela; two sons, Eric of Winter Springs FL and Mark and his wife Tabby of Council Bluffs IA; four grandchildren, Aaron, Matt, Cody and Lacey. Also close to his heart are his daughters-in-law, Tressa Juttelstad of Winter Springs FL and Jennifer Gonzalez of Winter Springs FL.

running the board and taking calls while interjecting "regular guy" questions into the technical talk: "I always think, 'Does the caller have to fix it, and how much will it cost?'" he said.

"Under the Hood" recently added a station in the Philadelphia market, and the show is also heard by more than 10,000 fans downloading their podcasts. Nordstrom and Evans, both 43 and born a day apart, also distribute an "Ask the Motor Medics" column to newspapers.

The hosts say they've worked hard to build personal relationships with their affiliates, which has helped them steadily add and retain stations.

KBJM-AM in Lemmon is a long-time "Under the Hood" affiliate, but the station's Mike Schweitzer seven years ago was considering switching up his Saturday morning lineup and wasn't sure if anyone was listening.

When he called the hosts to cancel, Evans asked what they could do to change his mind. Evans and Nordstrom made the 400-mile drive to the ranching community along the North Dakota border in Perkins County to host a table at the town's Farm and Home Show.

"People couldn't get in and out of the building because there was such a line," said Schweitzer KBJM's president and general manager. "I just sat there and I looked at it and said, 'Well, maybe I guess they do have some listeners up here.'"

The show has aired on the station ever since, and Schweitzer said he'd love to one day add the show's second hour of the show if he had space in his lineup. The hosts' technical knowhow draws in the car geeks, but the chemistry of the personalities extends their reach to regular folks young and old, he said.

"They're able to do the show and be very knowledgeable very professional and do it with a hint of humor," Schweitzer said. "I think that's probably the key to the success of the show."

Virginia "Ginny" Peterson, 73, said she's been listening regularly from her home in Boyd, Minn., for a couple of years.

"They're just kind of jokey, and I just really enjoy looking to it," she said. "And I figure it's helpful for me on my car."

Peterson was widowed more than 30 years ago, but she was always out in the garage in with her husband when he was tinkering with their automobiles. She doesn't do her own repairs, but she checks her own oil and tops off the anti-freeze and other fluids in her 2002 Chevy Monte Carlo when needed.

I Have Always Followed My Own Path...

I have always made my own decisions.

I may not be a traditional person.

But I Still Believe In Some Traditions.
