Yankton RiverWalk Unveils Smartphone App

The Yankton RiverWalk committee debuted a free smartphone app for their downtown sculpture walk.

"The app really takes the RiverWalk experience to a whole new level," says board member Katie Hunhoff. "It allows people to access information about the sculptures and artists as they view each piece, and includes a map and the ability to vote for the People's Choice award through the app."

The RiverWalk project is currently in its third year, with 15 new sculptures on display in Yankton's downtown and riverfront.

The app, developed by committee member Pam Meylor, is titled Yankton RiverWalk. It can be accessed from either a Droid or iPhone.

For more information and for a link to the free app, visit the RiverWalk website at www.YanktonRiverWalk.org.

Antique Auto Club Event Scheduled Sunday

The Yankton Antique Auto Association will be holding its annual picnic car show and ride through the park on Sunday, Sept. 2. The picnic and car show will be held at picnic shelter No. 2 in the Pierson Ranch day use area.

A potluck meal will be served at 1:30 p.m. with the car show running from 2-5 p.m. Following the car show, participants will be leaving at 5:30 p.m. for a drive through of the Lewis and Clark Campgrounds.

Guests are welcome to bring a dish to pass, older antique or classic cars, have a bite to eat and drive through the park. Park passes are waived for cars participating in the show and drive-through.

For more information, contact Wilbur Goehring at 665-1717.

West To Perform As Part Of SDPB Taping

VERMILLION — Be part of the studio audience for a free Joe West concert at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 4, in Vermillion. Entry is first-come, first-served in South Dakota Public Broadcasting's Martin Busch Studio in the Al Neuarth Media Center at the University of South Dakota campus.

Reserve tickets in advance by stopping by the network or calling 800-456-0766. Remaining seats will be offered the evening of the concert. Audience members should arrive by 7:45 p.m. or earlier.

The show by the award-winning songwriter and performer will become part of SDPB's "No Cover, No Minimum" music series on a future date.

West's music has a folk sound influenced by both country and rock. One of his latest CDs, titled "Aberdeen, S.D." features a collection of songs written and recorded in Aberdeen about people and personal memories of the town West spent time in as a teenager. It was recorded on an old TASCAM analog four track and created with "thrift store instruments" and "toys" from the Aberdeen thrift and pawn shops.

West, based out of Santa Fe, N.M., has toured extensively throughout the United States and Europe. His recent work includes an all-original children's CD, a full length rock opera, and music for the Emmy Award-winning documentary "Split Estate."

"No Cover, No Minimum," SDPB TV's long-running music series that features South Dakota performance, airs on Saturdays at 10 p.m. (9 p.m. MT).

An organizational meeting for the Yankton Area Photography Club will be held at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 5, at the Yankton Community Library, 515 Walnut Street. Anyone in the area interested in photography is welcome to attend.

For more information, contact Luana at 260-6643 or yapc2012@gmail.com.

S.C. Center Debuts River Exhibit

SIoux CITY, Iowa — A new permanent exhibit at the Sioux City Lewis & Clark Interpretive Center/Betty Strong Encounter Center aims at inspiring awareness of the Missouri River's past, present and future and the technology and interests that try to control it.

Titled "The Changing River," the 27-panel exhibit takes visitors from the "wild river" to the 2011 flood with dozens of stories and images in between.

It illuminates the role of the river in the lives of Native peoples who were here long before Lewis & Clark and European-American settlers. It moves through the exploration and steamboat years, the coming of the railroads and subsequent efforts to create a navigational channel.

Construction of Fort Peck Dam made the first cover of Life magazine in the 1930s. Federal legislation in the 1940s fueled construction of five additional dams that have a complex range of purposes, including flood control.

The exhibit offers insight into the river's role in agriculture, ecology and industry, including the Sioux City Stockyards. The old Combination Bridge, replaced by the present Siouxland Veterans Memorial Bridge, figures into the story. The push to develop Sioux City's riverfront, beginning in the early 1980s, sets the stage for questions about balancing the many interests involved in the river's management.

The Betty Strong Encounter Center and the Sioux City Lewis & Clark Interpretive Center comprise a cultural complex on the Missouri Riverfront, exit 149 off I-29, built and sustained by Missouri River Historical Development, Inc. (MRHD). Admission is free. For more information, visit www.siouxcitylcic.com or call 712-224-5242.

The Bookworm Sez ...

'Visiting Tom' Is A Sweet Read

"Visiting Tom" by Michael Perry; © 2012, Harper; 310 pages

BY TERI SCHLICHENMEYER

Your friend called the other day, but you had to call him back.

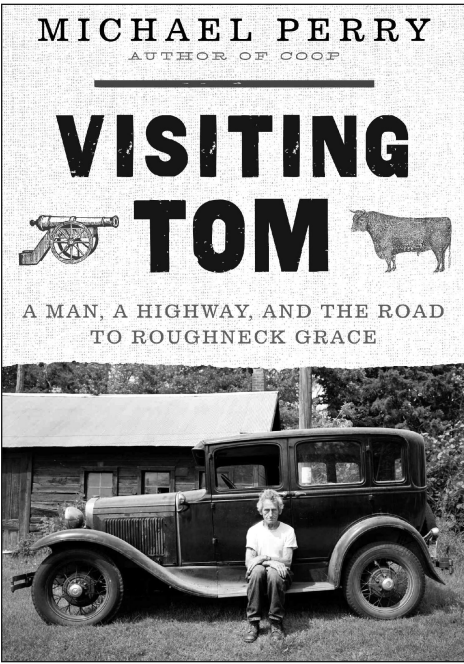

You were on your way out the door and didn't have time to talk. But when you return-phoned him, he was busy and said he'd call again.

You've played phone tag like this before, and you know the only antidote is to make an appointment — which is funny because, once upon a time, you couldn't understand the appeal of "visiting." Now you wish you had more time to just sit and talk and listen because, as you'll see in "Visiting Tom" by Michael Perry, you learn a lot, and a lot about life.

Tom Hartwig lives on the land where he was born eighty-some years ago. It's the same farm where he brought his bride, raised kids, milked cows and made a living.

Just about everybody around knows Tom, but those who don't could be forgiven for thinking he's some kind of superhero. That's because Tom's renowned for fixing what's broken and making what's needed. He created a snowplow out of pieces of machinery. He manufactured a saw for planing lumber. He made a few working cannons, just for fun. When he finds a bit of steel, he sees possibilities.

But there's one thing he couldn't fix. Back nearly 50 years ago, progress came to his little valley and, after considerable back-and-forth, Tom's beloved farm was cleaved in two by Interstate 90 that runs right through Wisconsin. His outbuildings now sit snug up to the highway. The background of his life is the ka-thumpa-ka-thumpa-ka-thumpa of semi tires on the road.

Mike Perry is friends with Tom Hartwig.

But what could a forty-something man have in common with someone old enough to be his grandfather?

Perry knows a kindred spirit: Both are men who love the land, love their families, and have a touch of poetry in their souls. Perry, a storyteller himself, also knows a good tale when he hears it. And he knows a good story when it walks into his life.

Let me tell you about "Visiting Tom."

It's part memoir, part character piece. There's a bit of the poetic to it. It's about fighting bureaucracy, Foxfire-ish self-sustenance, life the "old-timer's" way, and male-bonding foolishness. It's about fatherhood, marriage, and love.

And it's just about one of the sweetest books you'll ever read.

Author Michael Perry admits to more than one lump-in-the-throat moment, and his descriptive way of explaining them causes the same in his readers. He'll make you homesick for an old way of life (whether you lived it or didn't), but he'll also make you laugh because he laughs at himself. Spending time with Perry, in fact, is like a lemonade-lazy afternoon on a front porch with an old friend who loves to jaw about everything and nothing. I loved that.

I think this book will appeal to anyone who longs for a time when life was slow and friends were fast. If that sounds like heaven to you, then "Visiting Tom" is a book you'll want to call on.

Fall Into Reading At Your Library!

BY KATHY JACOBS

Yankton Community Library

Summer is over and school has begun. The library has spent the month of August planning its fall/winter programs for children and teens. We will begin those programs the first full week after Labor Day.

Story time will begin the week of Sept. 10 with three sessions each week: Monday at 6:30 p.m.; and Wednesday and Thursday at 10:15 a.m. All preschool children and their care givers are invited to attend. No registration is required.

Lap sit and toddler time will begin the week of Oct. 8. As we get closer to that time, we will make you aware of days and times.

After-school movies begin on Sept. 6 and, because of patron requests, will begin at 3:45 p.m. On Sept. 6, "The Pirates: Band of Misfits" will be shown. "Beverly Hills Chihuahua 3" will be shown on Sept. 20.

At 1 p.m. Sept. 11 and 6:30 p.m. Sept. 18, we will offer Facebook for Beginners classes. These classes will go over the basics of setting up a Facebook account and utilizing some of its key features such as connecting with friends, photo sharing, and using Facebook chat. Children under 18 are welcome to attend but must be accompanied by their parent or guardian.

At 6:30 p.m. Sept. 25, we will hold a Pinterest for Beginners class. We'll cover setting up a Pinterest account as well as creating pin boards, re-pinning items, and adding new pins. Again, children under 18 must be accom-
