younger people take over." Who those new faces will be has not yet been determined.

Johnson and Madson said recruiting board members will continue to be one of the biggest challenges for the organization.

"It's a big commitment, but it's a fun commitment," Madson said.

Johnson said there are duties year-round before basically living in Riverside Park from Wednesday to Sunday during the event.

"It's not a real pressing thing for about four months, but when January comes, you really have to have your ducks in a row," he stated.

Katie Greene, who has served on the Riverboat Days board of directors for five years, said the two long-time members will be missed.

"Chopper is an asset in almost every area," she said. "He has knowledge of what has worked and what hasn't. He has personal connections with many people in Yankton which help when planning such a huge event. Chopper will volunteer to do any task that is needed no matter how big or small."

"Cliff has the best work ethic of anyone I know," Green added. "He has spent days building a circular race track for a performance on Saturday and then, in the middle of the night, will turn it into a straight race track for an event we have on Sunday. He never complains and acts like it was easy."

Being on the board has been a family affair for the men. Johnson's wife, Marlene, served on it for many years. Madson's wife, Donna, is still on the board and plans to remain on it for at least another year.

"It's been great. It's time we spend together," Donna stated. "I think he'll miss it. He's had a good time doing it, and he will still be involved."

She added, "If the board needs help with anything, I know they'll be able to go to Cliff and Chop for good advice."

Johnson said lessons have been learned with each Riverboat Days.

"For the first couple of years, we used keg beer rather than can beer," he recalled. "That was a disaster with cups and everything flying around."

Tough times have also been endured.

"We had heavy rains. That was a tough situation," Johnson said. "We had to laugh about it to get through it. We made the best of it. We had a muddy mess, and the townspeople helped us with it."

"There were a few years that the committee had to go to the bank and take out a loan," he continued. "We made it and had a great year."

Ask Johnson and Madson why they have been involved with Riverboat Days for so long and you'll get very similar answers.

"It's the enjoyment I got from watching people have a good time," Madson said. "We tried to put on a show where people could have fun, and it wouldn't cost them a lot of money. It's such a family-oriented thing. That's probably the best of all."

Adds Johnson, "I love to see the people coming down to the park with a smile on their face. It's real cool that this has gone on for 30 years thanks to all the volunteers, sponsors and people who want it to continue."

Loans

at odds over how loan rates should be set in the future even while they agreed that a doubling of rates — it kicked in July 1 when Congress failed to act before the deadline — would be bad policy and bad news for students.

The legislation links student loan interest rates to the financial markets. It offers lower rates this fall because the government can borrow money cheaply at this time. If the economy improves in the coming years as expected, it will become more costly for the government to borrow money, and that cost would be passed on to students.

About 11 million students this year are expected to have lower interest rates, saving the average undergraduate $1,500 on interest charges on this year's loans.

Boehner called it "a good day" and a fine example of what Washington can accomplish when petty partisanship is put aside.

"With the stroke of a pen, we've now officially taken the politics out of student loans," he said.

Obama cast the student loan deal as just the first of many measures the U.S. needs to make college affordable as a higher-tech economy makes advanced training and education a necessity for many workers.

"The cost of college remains extraordinarily high. It's out of reach for a lot of folks," Obama said, calling it a burden as well on families who have to balance other priorities, like buying a home, with helping fund their children's educations. "We've got to do something about it."

OBITUARIES

Jennifer 'Jenny' Overhue

Jennifer "Jenny" (Sheldon) Overhue, 46, of Columbus, Nebraska, died Monday, August 5, 2013, at her home surrounded by her family following a fight with cancer.

Overhue

The funeral service will be held on Saturday, August 10 at 3:00 PM at the Federated Church in Columbus with Rev. Dr. Annika Lister Stroope officiating.

Visitation will be on Friday from 4:00 p.m.-7:00 p.m. at Gass Haney Funeral Home and continue on Saturday from 2:00 p.m. until service time at the church. There will be a family prayer service on Saturday at 2:45 p.m. at the church.

Memorials are to be directed to those of the Family Choice or to the Jenny Overhue Memorial Scholarship (University of Northern Iowa Foundation, 1223 W. 22nd Street, Cedar Falls, IA 50614) to be used for a Heartland Economic Development Course scholarship.

Jenny was born May 29, 1967, in Lincoln, Nebraska. She moved with her family to their lakeside cabin on Lewis and Clark Lake in May 1978 where she graduated from Crofton High School in 1985. Throughout high school, Jenny was an active participant in cross country and track where she received a variety of awards and achievements. Jenny then continued on getting her college degree from the University of Nebraska at Kearney.

Jenny married David Overhue, "the Boy Who Lived in the Cabin Next Door," eloping to "the Little Brown Church in the Vale" in Nashua, Iowa, on May 20, 1992. David and Jenny raised two children — Kristen and Hadlie — and spent a considerable amount of time at their beloved cabin on Lewis and Clark Lake in Northeast Nebraska. Jenny worked at Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) in Columbus for more than 20 years.

While in Columbus, Jenny was actively involved in a variety of activities including the Federated Church Youth Group, Fantastic 4-Hers, and the Columbus Y Swim Club (CYSC). When not in Columbus or at the lake, Jenny loved spending time exploring the United States and the world — in particular — camping in the National Parks.

As far as Jenny was concerned, outdoors was the place to be whether on the water or on some rocky beach. This was especially true when it came to sailing. Back at home, Jenny loved gardening and quilting — anything to get her out of housework.

Jenny is survived by: Husband — David Overhue of Columbus, NE

Daughters — Kristen and Hadlie.

Parents — Jim and Carol Sheldon of Crofton, NE.

Mother-in-law — Marlis Overhue of Crofton, NE.

Brother — Mike Sheldon of Lincoln, NE.

Sister — Kris (Ken) Swain of Omaha, NE.

Brother — Greg (Stacey) Dohrman of Crofton, NE.

Brother — Jack (Heather) Dohrman of Lincoln, NE.

Sister — Elizabeth (Chris) McMasters of Bainbridge Island, WA.

Sister-in-law — Liesa (John) Shanahan of Minnetonka, MN.

Numerous aunts, uncles, nieces, nephews, cousins, and many dear friends.

Jenny was preceded in death by: Father-in-law — Virgil D. Overhue.

Jerome Lubbers

Retired long-time businessman, Jerome Joseph "Jerry" Lubbers died of cancer on Tuesday August 6, 2013 at home in Missoula, MT. On July 15, 1926 in Osmond NE, he was born the twelfth of fourteen children to John and Elisabeth Lubbers. After losing the family farm during the Great Depression, they moved to Yankton, SD. The generous Benedictine Sisters and his hard working mother kept the family fed while his father worked as a custodian.

Jerry learned the value of hard work at an early age. While still in school, he got up at 4 am to deliver newspapers and fresh bread from the local bakery. In his youth he also worked washing windows in a ladies' department store, at a local garage and occasionally chauffeured newlyweds around town in a motorized cart. He earned extra money brushing lint out of pockets for a cleaner and delivering the clothes.

Jerry and six of his siblings served their country during WWII. His mother would write letters using carbon paper to save time and her fingers. Jerry was a radioman aboard the USS Faribault in the Pacific. He earned the nickname "Signals" because he was the best at reading alternate communications when the ship had to be silent. Following his honorable discharge, he went to radio electronics school in Omaha, NE, and then returned to Yankton where he was the parts manager for Walsh Motors.

Always a sharp dresser, he caught the eye of his future bride while wearing a snazzy yellow tie at church. They met a short time later and soon he was giving her rides to work. On Jan. 2, 1950, he married the love of his life, his "Irish sweetheart of Sunshine Hwy", Marge Courtney. They had to install indoor plumbing when they bought their first home and began a sideline of fixing up houses. They renovated or built over 16 homes during their "career".

In 1951, they bought the Townhouse Bakery and Café in Canton, SD. He once said this was the hardest job he ever had (he often worked 17 hrs/day) but the most satisfying. He loved baking. After seven years and picking up the pieces following a devastating fire, he sold the business and went to work as a salesman for John Morrell Meats. Whenever a transfer was proposed he would only consider moving if there was a Catholic School in the new location as a Catholic education for his children was important to him. All of his children graduated from Loyola Sacred Heart. In 1963, Morrell brought him to Missoula, a place they came to love. Jerry was a fashion trendsetter. He once said, "If I know I have a tough sell ahead of me, I will put on my favorite suit and feel up to the challenge." He was so good at his job that one of his clients said "He could sell snow to the Eskimos." In 1977, he and partners Bob Rowe and Warren Wilcox purchased the John R. Daily Co. Jerry was the VP of sales. The trio decided to limit production to bacon and developed the new concepts of honey cured and peppered bacon. Daily's thrived. He retired in 1988 and was soon busy volunteering at the White Elephant in Green Valley, AZ and the Senior Citizen Center in Missoula. Jerry's faith played a big role in his life. He served as lector and on the parish council at St. Francis Xavier parish.

Jerry and Marge were wonderful parents to their six children: John (Heather) of Missoula, Julie (Mike) of Missoula, Jeff (Lis) of Florence, MT, Jeanne (Mark) of Missoula, Angela (Yo) of Bellevue WA, and Amy (Jon) of Idaho Falls, ID.

Left to mourn the death of a loving and generous husband and father are his wife of 63 years, his children, 16 grandchildren, 5 step-grandchildren, and 7 great-grandchildren, his siblings: Ida Foxhoven of Yankton, SD, Martha Baker of Kansas City, KS, and Alfred (Millie) of Kiowa, TX, sisters-in-law, Audrey of Yankton, SD, Donna of Yankton, Paddy of Sun Lakes, AZ, and numerous nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by his parents, five sisters and five brothers, infant son, Jude, and infant granddaughter, Jill.

A rosary will be said at 7 p.m., followed by a vigil service at Garden City Funeral Home at 7:30 Sunday Aug 11, 2013.

Mass of Resurrection will be at St. Francis Xavier Church Monday Aug. 12, at 10:30. A reception will immediately follow in Reidy Hall. Private inurnment will follow at a later time.
