Chris Clark Bike Stunt Show

Saturday and Sunday
1:00pm and 3:00 pm

Athletes Who Say NO...

Over the past decade professional stunt cyclist Chris Clark has competed around the world and entertained thousands at events like the Gravity Games, the Vans Warped Tour, New York's Times Square Parade and even the Olympic Games!

Chris' Athletes Who Say NO program was developed to inspire children to find an active, healthy passion and use their desire to constantly improve as a means for keeping their lives on track, making healthy decisions and surrounding themselves with like-minded friends.

During his high energy presentation, professional cyclist Chris Clark shares his story of growing up with a passion for cycling and how he used that passion to make friends, stay healthy, and even as an excuse to avoid the peer pressures all children face.

Topics discussed include:

- Helmet / sports safety
- The importance of having an active hobby
- Avoiding drugs and alcohol to reach your potential
- Finding friends who support your active lifestyle

Following the speaking portion of the program, Chris shows the audience what is possible with hard work and dedication with a demonstration of the skills he has developed in his years of national and international cycling competition. Students see first-hand what can be achieved with hard work, dedication, and by leading a healthy lifestyle.

Make-and-Take Pottery

Featured artist/potter Dan Bartos will offer special half-hour "make-and-take" pottery sessions for kids during this year's Summer Arts Festival. Sessions will run in a designated tent south of the Territorial Capital in Riverside Park 12:00-2:00 p.m. and 3:00-5:00 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Bartos is an experienced K-12 and collegiate art teacher and the owner operator of Willowdale Pottery in Yankton, SD. He has a Fine Art degree from Montana State, specializing in ceramics. Originally from Alaska, Bartos and his family have lived in Yankton, SD since 2006. In addition to the hands-on kids pottery tent, Bartos will also have a booth showcasing his Willowdale Pottery artwork.

Paul Imholte, "Stringman"

Like a harvester gathering vintage grapes, Paul Imholte collects the wonder of acoustical string music and shares that beauty with audiences. Known as the "stringman," he sings and plays a dozen traditional instruments. He performs at festivals, schools and concerts across the United States. For the last ten years, Paul has been composing and recording instrumental music for the hammered dulcimer and songs about life in the Midwest.

Paul's featured instruments is the hammered dulcimer. The hammered dulcimer is an ancient string instrument from the Middle East. It is played with light mallets or hammers. Along with the hammered dulcimer, Paul plays fiddle, guitar, banjo, mandolin, mandola, mountain dulcimer, cello, viola, autoharp, harmonica, jaw harp and spoons.

Along with his solo work,

Paul plays in two other performing ensembles. In 2000, Paul joined a group of musicians playing Celtic music. This group became Ring of Kerry. This five member band plays a rollicking and robust blend of jigs, reels and hornpipes and sing fun-loving songs of sailing and traveling the wide world.

In 2011 Paul founded The Tarveys with singer Karie Oberg and dobro player John Ely to perform and record and perform songs of farms and small towns. Their collaboration found a home on the CD, Barn Raising Day.

Performances have taken Paul throughout the Midwest and from New York to California. He has released CDs of hammered dulcimer instrumentals and songs for children and adults.
