Barn Quilt Blocks Coming To The Area

The Dakota Prairie Quilt Guild is sponsoring a tour of quilt blocks on homes in and around Yankton.

Barn Quilt blocks were started in 2001 by Donna Sue Grove of the Ohio Arts Council, along with help from The Nature Conservancy in Adams county Ohio. They decided to paint blocks on several barns to entice tourists to visit the country, stimulate business to local merchants, and create pride and teamwork within the community. The first barn quilt block painted was called Snail's Trail to honor Donna's mother Nina Maxine Groves mother who was a master quilter. News of this project has spread quickly to other communities, and can now be found from Ohio and reaching to Kentucky, Tennessee, West Virginia, Iowa, North Carolina, Wisconsin Indiana, New York, Nebraska and now Yankton.

You can share some of our quilting heritage with friends and family by driving the quilt trail right here in Yankton. Starting Aug. 13, the addresses and names of the different block will be made available in the Yankton Press & Dakotan and Four Seasons Fabric Store in Yankton.

Four Seasons will also have a quilt show on display at the same time during Riverboat
