Local History Campaign In Need Of Volunteers

Volunteers are being sought across Yankton County to inform voters on the benefits of the historic preservation program that will be on the November ballot.

The county's new Historic Preservation Commission has asked the county commission to put a measure on the November ballot to provide basic annual support for the Mead Museum and other important projects by dedicating a small portion of property taxes.

"We believe this will be an important investment in education, tourism, quality of life and history," says Bernie Hunhoff, the chairman of the commission.

"Our first step is to look for volunteers from across Yankton County who will provide us with advice, bring questions from their communities and help us to educate friends and neighbors."

Anyone interested in volunteering should contact one of the commission members:
