Izaak Walton League Awarded Grant For Missouri River Initiative

PIERRE — The South Dakota Community Foundation awarded the Izaak Walton League a $10,000 grant from their Community Innovation Grant Program for the League's Missouri River Initiative. The award will fund a two-year public awareness pilot project in the cities of Pierre, Fort Pierre and Yankton.
The League's goal is to prevent litter from entering the Missouri River — stopping pollution before it starts and reducing damage to fish, wildlife and water quality. Trash and other debris pose a significant challenge to restoring the Missouri River.
"We have been highly successful in removing tons of trash through river clean-ups in Yankton, Pierre and Fort Pierre," says Paul Lepisto, who manages the League's Missouri River Initiative. "What we haven't been able to do yet is stop more trash from taking its place."

Through the pilot program, the League will target residents in the three river towns and ask for their help in preventing litter from getting into storm sewers and washing into the Missouri River. "This is pollution prevention for the people, by the people," Lepisto declares. "We plan to work with adults and youth in each community as well as business leaders, city officials and like-minded community organizations."
The League will also work with local media outlets to get the word out that preventing the problem can and will make a big difference.
The Missouri River is home to numerous species of fish and wildlife and serves as the backbone for a booming outdoor recreation economy. The river is also the source of drinking water for millions of Americans throughout the river basin. Reducing trash in the water will improve the quality of life for the people of South Dakota and communities across the region.
"We expect an increase in the overall awareness of the river and the challenges it faces," says Lepisto. "Through this innovative project, we hope local leaders will recognize the value of preventing trash from entering the river. We also hope that by involving and educating citizens, we can encourage them to feel a sense of pride in the Missouri River."

The League appreciates the support of the South Dakota Community Foundation's Community Innovation Grant Program for our Missouri River Initiative. Working together with communities throughout the region, we can restore one of our nation's greatest rivers.

Teen Driving Campaign Targets Parents

LINCOLN, Neb. — The "Driving the Right Message" campaign's goal is to educate parents about the important role they play in keeping their teen safe at the wheel.
Sponsored by the Nebraska Department of Health and Human Services, the campaign will reach parents through a variety of methods, including movie theater and gas pump topper ads, web site ads and posters. The campaign's logo includes a QR code that takes parents to the web site which provides resources and tools about how to keep teen drivers safe.
"This campaign is another way to make a positive impact on teen-related crashes," said Courtney Phillips, DHHS Chief Executive Officer. "By educating parents about their important role in teen driver safety, we are also helping teens become responsible, skilled drivers."
With motor vehicle crashes being the leading cause of death for Nebraska's teen drivers, parental involvement is crucial. Parents who are supportive and involved with their teen driver can lower their teen's crash risk by 50 percent. Modeling safe driving practices such as always using a seat belt, no cell phone use and driving the speed limit also makes an impact.
Teen drivers with involved parents are:
• Twice as likely to use their seat belt
• 70 percent less likely to drink and drive
• Half as likely to speed
• 30 percent less likely to use a cell phone while driving
• Significantly less likely to drive with multiple passengers (Children's Hospital of Philadelphia)
"Parents play a key role, and when they talk to their teens about safe driving, they are helping to prevent car crashes. We hope that this campaign will spark a conversation between parents and their teen driver," said Judy Martin, Deputy Director of Community and Environmental Health of DHHS.
For information about what works to keep teens safe at the wheel, visit the "Driving the Right Message" web site parentsdrivethemessage.ne.gov or contact Jeanne Bietz at 471-0361 or Jeanne.bietz@nebraska.gov.

Nelson said he looks forward to the written final arguments. He said he expected a more targeted strategy from the opponents.
"I anticipated questions of witnesses would be driven at particular conditions to try to prove the applicant could no longer meet those," Nelson said.
The final briefs are due Oct. 1, after the expected availability of the hearing transcript, and rebuttal briefs are due Oct. 30.
