Coyotes

"We made some winning plays, just not enough to win," said sophomore Steve Tecker, who had 13 points and nine rebounds off the bench. "We had some lapses where we lost our man, but rebounding was tough."

Proof that Canisius dominated the glass: The Golden Griffins held a 16-9 edge in offensive rebounds, and had a 23-3 edge in second chance points.

"When they got them, they scored," Boots said. "That's what really hurt us."

Even a 52-percent clip from the field in the first half wasn't enough to build a lead for the Coyotes.

A three-pointer by Washington at the halftime buzzer sent Canisius to the locker room up 33-31.

The largest lead in the second half for Canisius was nine (55-46) with 11:41 to play, but the Coyotes clawed back over the next four minutes.

Down 68-64, the Golden Griffins tied the game with under two minutes left. Then came the consecutive threes with under 30 seconds left, and the two misses at the rim by USD.

In the overtime period, Canisius shot 5-of-9 from the field while USD missed all of its final six attempts.

"We just didn't shoot very well," Boots said. "That was a tough one. They played a tough zone, but we had looks; just couldn't make a shot."

Louie Krogman added 12 points, despite going 1-of-11 on threes, for the Coyotes, while Trevor Gruis posted 11 points and seven rebounds.

Saying that the team needs to get its "toughness back up," USD will have to regroup for Wednesday night's home game with NAIA Peru State, according to Tecker.

"We have to get this win to get our confidence back up," he said. "This one (Sunday) would've helped, but we just have to play that much better on Wednesday."
