Coast Guard Member Dies In Crash Off Calif. Coast
VENTURA, Calif. (AP) — A U.S. Coast Guard member was killed and another was injured when their small boat was rammied by a smuggler's vessel before dawn Sunday off the Southern California coast.
Terrell Horne III of Redondo Beach was pronounced dead after being brought ashore at the Port of Hueneme said Ventura County chief deputy medical examiner James Baroni. He suffered a traumatic head injury, Coast Guard officials said.
The second man was treated for minor injuries. His name wasn't released.
The smuggler's panga, which was running without lights, maneuvered at a high rate of speed directly at the small boat before fleeing, according to a Coast Guard statement. Both Coast Guard members were thrown into the water.

cial challenges after the steep cuts we had," Arsenault said. "How can we work cooperatively and collaboratively together to find out how we take on those funding challenges?"
Tuesday's budget proposal might be far different than the spending plan that the Legislature will approve in March.
Economists worry that if Congress fails to adopt a tax and spending measure by the end of the year, the economy could falter and the state could have to spend millions of dollars to replace lost federal aid. The drought and Washington's inability to pass a farm bill also threaten the state's agricultural economy.
Democratic lawmakers said that if the state finds itself with more money, it should give it to programs whose funding was cut in 2011.
"Things have improved pretty drastically, and in a good way. I think we need to look at trying to catch up from some of the cuts," Sen. Billie Sutton, D-Burke, said.
Republican Sen. Corey Brown of Gettysburg said he doubts there will be much money left over for extra spending on schools or medical providers. He said many lawmakers want to get away from last year's pattern of giving one-time money instead of ongoing increases.
"We're going to have to see some pretty staggering economic growth if you're going to see the ability to put a substantial amount of extra dollars toward something," Brown said.
