

MVCA Offering Benefit Calendar Program

Missouri Valley Christian Academy, a non-denominational K-7 Christian School in Yankton, has a calendar available if you would like to donate and help support Christian Education. This calendar has all local prints from Jerry, DeAnn, and MVCA families. The most exciting thing about our calendar is that you will be entered into a drawing for more than $22,500 worth of prizes. Drawings are every Thursday for the entire year. Prizes from Ace, Dakota Archery and Dunham's. If you don't like the prize you have been chosen for, you get to take a gift card. These calendars would be a great gift idea if you are still looking for someone you love. Contact Stacey at 660-1822 to get yours today.

Farewell For Nelson Set At Calvary Baptist

On Dec. 31, Calvary Baptist Church of Yankton will bid goodbye to Youth Pastor Jeremy Nelson. After faithfully serving Calvary and the Yankton community for 7 1/2 years, Jeremy has accepted a call as Senior Pastor of Iowa Falls Evangelical Free Church, Iowa Falls, Iowa. On Sunday, Dec. 16, at noon, the church will be hosting a potluck honoring Jeremy, his wife Kirstin and their children, Annika, Isaiah and Mariah. The community is invited to join in this time of thanking Pastor Jeremy for his ministry in Yankton.

First United Methodist Christmas Pageant Set

The First United Methodist Church of Yankton will hold its Christmas pageant at 6:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 16. The community is invited to come and enjoy the annual event. Grades pre-Kindergarten through seventh will perform "The Story of Baby Jesus." It will be followed by the glow in the dark nativity done by the confirmation class. Finally, the senior high youth will host a birthday party for Jesus in Wesley Hall.

Yankton Church To Screen 'The Nativity Story'

St. John's Lutheran Church of Yankton welcomes the community to free showings of the 2006 film "The Nativity Story" on Thursday, Dec. 20. The movie will be shown at two different times that day: 10 a.m. and 7 p.m. All people are welcome to get into the Christmas spirit with this telling of the Savior's birth.

Vatican Austerity Means Donated Nativity Scene

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican has happily accepted a donated Nativity scene for St. Peter's Square this Christmas after a previous setup costing (euro) 550,000 ($717,000) was exposed by the embarrassing scandal over leaked Vatican documents. Monsignor Giuseppe Sciacca, the No. 2 administrator of the Vatican city state, told reporters Thursday that the Vatican was spending just (euro) 21,800 for labor and costs to mount the scene that will be unveiled Dec. 24, hours before Pope Benedict XVI celebrates Midnight Mass. The Italian region of Basilicata — one of Italy's poorest — provided the scene after raising nearly (euro) 90,000 from corporate and other sponsors. Basilicata regional officials and their sponsors were rewarded with a full-court Vatican press conference Thursday where the head of the Vatican Museums extolled the natural marvels of the southern region, urging tourists to visit, and Sciacca thanked Basilicata for its generosity in tough economic times. One of the most damaging documents leaked during the so-called Vatileaks scandal was a letter from Sciacca's predecessor complaining that the Vatican was losing millions of euros on corruption and unnecessary expenses such as the 2009 Nativity scene which cost (euro) 550,000. The predecessor, Archbishop Carlo Maria Viganò, boasted in an April 4, 2011 letter to Benedict that he had trimmed the cost for the 2010 edition to a mere (euro) 300,000. He was subsequently named the Vatican's ambassador to Washington, a move he saw as punishment for having stepped on too many toes in his cost-cutting initiatives. Sciacca said that by accepting a donated scene this year, the Vatican was saving some (euro) 180,000 over the 2011 edition — and said he already had an offer for 2013.

A Christmas Without Christ?

BY PASTOR DAVE LUND
Trinity Lutheran Church

"Tis the season." This is a statement that we hear or see printed many times and in many places during this time of the year. We hear it and see it, but what do we think about it? If I were to ask you, "tis the season to be?" How would you finish the sentence? Would you say jolly, joyous, thankful, or generous, etc. Would (did) you think something else? Maybe the more important question would be how do you live this statement at this time of the year? Is it grumpy, impatient, short-tempered, overwhelmed or frustrated? The fact of the matter is that during this joyous season we tend to fall into those non-joyous ways of acting. As I write this article I can hear someone laying on the horn on Broadway just outside my window. Apparently someone else wasn't paying attention to the traffic light and the first someone has gotten upset, so much for patience and forbearance during this time of giving. Much has been written about the reason for the season and most of us know the reason, which of course is the gift of Christ to the world and all that this means for us. Unfortunately, we allow our human frailty to get in the way of letting us practice and experience the joy that comes through, and only through this reason. We tend to allow things, such as other peoples' behavior, our own stress, or any other number of issues to distract us. One which I hear often as a pastor is people complaining about taking Christ out of Christmas. First things first: IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO TAKE CHRIST OUT OF CHRISTMAS. I cannot stress this point enough. If someone doesn't believe in Jesus I feel sorry for them, but if they celebrate the holiday they, willing or not, celebrate his birth. When someone writes or says "X-mas" instead of Christmas, they have not taken Christ out because the Greek Chi, the first letter of Christos, is the same symbol as the Latin X. so "X-mas is short hand for Christmas. In the same way when someone says Happy Holidays instead of merry Christ, the sacred has not been removed because "Holidays" is a form of "Holy Days." The point being Christ cannot really be taken out of the season. It is for this reason, that Christ is truly the reason for the season, that we need to approach this season with joy, generosity, patience and (dare I say it) love. Christ did come to earth for everyone, and through him we have received amazing gifts. So if Christ was willing to come and lay down his life for our neighbors, then maybe, just maybe, we can show the our neighbors some patience and kindness. If we are able to do this, not just think this, then it will be a truly joyous season. May God continue to bless you and yours during this season.

Hanukkah Collections Showcase Deep Faith

BY JEFF KUNERTH
© 2012, Orlando Sentinel

ORLANDO, Fla. — On the shelves in the gift shop of Maitland, Fla.,'s Ohev Shalom synagogue are menorahs made of metal, hand-painted ceramic, wire and glass, including some that look like circus tents and toy trains. There are dreidels as large as cookie jars and as small as a pair of dice. Some of the menorahs are functional, capable of being lighted to celebrate Hanukkah. Some of the dreidels — four-sided tops — will be used during Hanukkah by children playing a traditional game using foil-wrapped chocolate coins as currency. But other pieces will be added to collections as art and decoration, joining those that have been handed down through generations as family heirlooms. "They aren't just religious. They are pieces of art and part of your religious heritage you can pass down to your children," said Maureen Perlstein, who keeps a small collection of souvenir and gifted menorahs in her Casselberry home. The collections of menorahs and dreidels are on display in many Jewish homes. Two tables set up in the living room of Barry and Penny Gold's home display her collection of 31 menorahs. The Lake Mary, Fla., couple began collecting menorahs when they married 41 years ago. Included in the collection is the simple metal menorah used by Barry's grandmother and passed down through the generations. Back when his grandmother bought the piece in Brooklyn, menorahs were purchased at a hardware store like a hammer or a saw.

And every family owned just one. "It's not like it is now. You had one menorah in the home and you used it over and over," said Barry, 64. There were no menorah collections because there was nothing to collect, said Penny Gold. Now, there are thousands to choose from through online stores, shops that specialize in Judaica and even places like T.J. Maxx. Mardi Shader has volunteered in the Ohev Shalom gift shop for nearly 20 years, long before the congregation moved into its large Maitland temple more than a year ago. She has her own collection of menorahs and dreidels that have spread throughout her Longwood home, occupying the shelves of her living room, a cabinet in her bedroom, a shelf in her media room and the counters of her kitchen. There are lots of menorahs and dreidels available for purchase on the Web. But there is something about holding a symbol of your faith in your hands that draws people to the gift shop in the front lobby of the synagogue. "They want to come somewhere they can touch things. They want to feel it," Shader said. "They want to see if it's something they want." In the Golds' collection, there's a menorah adorned with little metal suits and dresses that reminds Penny of her father's clothing store for women. There's one with an immigrant family and the Statue of Liberty that reminds Barry and Penny of their grandparents, who arrived from Poland and Russia. There are menorahs given to their children over the years with their names and dates written on the bottom. And there are odd and whimsical menorahs, like the ones with Disney characters or the piece made to look like a child's playground with swings and a slide. "I like funky ones, so many of them are unique and fun," said Gold. "Every year I get one from someone, but I think they know I'm particular and that I like to shop myself." In Nancy Ludin's Maitland home, her collection of dreidels resides in a curio cabinet with other pieces of Judaica. Included in the collection is a dreidel that belonged to her mother-in-law and some that belonged to her sons when they were young. The dreidels contain a Jewish letter on each side that stands for "a great miracle happened here," in reference to the victory of the Jewish Maccabees over the Greeks nearly 2,200 years ago. The menorah's eight candles represent the miracle of a lamp kept lit by the Maccabee soldiers for eight days with only a small amount of oil. Ludin's collection is intentionally small — fewer than two dozen — and includes souvenirs from her travels. There's one from a visit to Israel, and another from the Netherlands. She has resisted the collector's mentality of adding new pieces every year or encouraging the gifting of dreidels from friends and relatives. She has seen what happens to treasured collections when the collector passes away. Her father-in-law was a true collector whose descendants had no interest in inheriting his lifetime of acquisitions. "The truth is that someone else's collection is like clutter to you," Ludin said. "We stopped collecting, but I still get excited when I see a cute dreidel."
