Transporting natural gas through pipelines is a safe and reliable means of delivering the energy that our customers depend on. And at NorthWestern Energy, we're committed to ensuring the safe and reliable operation of our entire natural gas pipeline system and related equipment by performing regular physical checks and tests. Whether you're a natural gas user or not, there could be natural gas pipelines running under your property. That's why we ask that you follow these important natural gas safety rules and report any suspicion of leaks.

Signs of a natural gas pipeline leak may include:

- A hissing or whooshing sound.
- Dirt being blown into the air.
- Water bubbling or shooting into the air from a pond, creek or puddle.
- A skunk-like odor or, dying shrubs or grass, perhaps near healthy plantings.
- An area of dead vegetation.

If you observe any of these signs of a natural gas pipeline leak:

- · Extinguish smoking materials and other small flames.
- DO NOT attempt to extinguish a burning gas leak.
- Contractors: Turn off and abandon equipment. Do no attempt to move any machinery.
- Eliminate other sources of ignition (e.g., a nearby car with the engine running, cellphones).
- Leave the immediate area.
- From a safe distance, call 911.

Do not re-enter the area until you have been advised that it's safe.

Potential hazards:

Fire or explosion

- Extremely flammable easily ignited by heat, sparks or flames.
- · Will form explosive mixtures with air.
- Vapor may travel to ignition source and flashback when ignited.

Health

- If sour gas (hydrogen sulfide) is present, an immediate, extreme health hazard exists.
- Natural gas acts as an anesthetic at high concentrations (i.e. enclosed spaces causing displacement of oxygen), producing dizziness, headache, loss of coordination and
- Extremely high concentrations can cause irritation or asphyxiation by exclusion of oxygen.
- Natural gas may or may not contain mercaptans to odorize. If it does not, natural gas is odorless, tasteless and colorless.
- Fire may produce irritating and/or toxic gases.
