Wisconsin Upsets No. 1 Texas To Advance To NCAA Volleyball Final

Hall.

SEATTLE (AP) — Kelly Sheffield turned to his bench and pumped his fists as the court flooded with Wisconsin players after the Badgers became the lowest seeded team in NCAA volleyball history to reach the championship match. What was expected to be a speed bump for top-seeded Texas on its way to the title game instead became a shining moment for the 12th-seeded Badgers when they upset the defending national champion Longhorns 3-1 on Thursday night.

"We believed that we could win this match. And I think that's a big part of anytime you go into anything," Sheffield said. "This has been a team that no matter who we played we believed, the players have believed that there's a way to win."

Wisconsin (28-9) took control early and held off the Longhorns 25-19, 25-18, 26-28, 25-

The Badgers will play No. 2 Penn State or No. 3 Washington in the championship match Saturday night.

I don't have any words right now. I couldn't be prouder of our team," Wisconsin setter Lauren Carlini said. "We wanted to show we're here to stay and we're not going down

The previous lowest seed to reach the championship game was Stanford at No. 11 in 2004. Wisconsin is the fifth team seeded 12th or lower to reach the national semifinals, but the first to earn a spot in the title match. The Badgers also advanced to the title match in 2000, losing to Nebraska.

Ellen Chapman had 17 kills, Deme Morales added 14 — including the final two points as the Badgers ended Texas' attempt to become the sixth school to win consecutive national titles.

Carlini had 50 assists and 12 digs, Dominique Thompson added 12 kills and the Badgers had seven aces to help overcome the size of Texas' frontline. Wisconsin finished with 72 total digs and its ability to keep points alive flustered the Longhorns.

"I think they did a good job of that, challenging us to hit other spots and move the ball around and even when we were making a change they were making it too," Texas' Haley Eckerman said. " ... I think that flustered us a little bit because the balls that were normally getting scores weren't."

Youth Safety Program Gets Medical Nods

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — USA Football's Heads Up Football program has become the first youth sports program to earn official support from three major medical entities. The American College of Sports Medicine, the National Athletic Trainers Association, and the Professional Football Athletic Trainers Society, organizations representing more than 80,000 medical professionals, have approved the youth football initiative. The PFATS is the latest to partner with USA Football to advance youth and high school football player safety by endorsing Heads Up Football. PFATS includes more than 100 certified athletic trainers who serve NFL teams.

Nearly 2,800 youth football leagues representing approximately 600,000 players in 50 states and Washington, D.C., have registered for Heads Up Football in 2013. The program is being piloted on the high school level this fall in 35 schools spanning 10 states

"Athlete safety is advanced through education, and that is the heart of USA Football's Heads Up Football program," PFATS President John Norwig said. "Education converts awareness into action.

This program is establishing needed standards and behavior modification built upon the best medical science and research. Young athletes deserve this level of commitment. We are proud to endorse it.

Heads Up Football includes coach certification, safer tackling techniques. concussion recognition and response protocols approved by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, and proper equipment fitting instruction.

USA Football is the official youth football development partner of the in the starting lineup against Philadelphia with Chris Cook, Xavier Rhodes and Josh Robinson all injured. Cook is on track to return this Sunday at Cincinnati, leaving one less open spot in the lineup. Prater intercepted a pass at the 5-yard line with the Vikings leading 24-9 in the third quarter last Sunday. He switched receivers he was covering during the play, which allowed him to surprise quarterback Nick Foles by leaping in front of DeSean Jackson to snag the ball.

"Usually that's a guy who has been playing a while and has been in that situation a number of times that makes that play, but his awareness and his acute alertness to what needed to happen was impressive to see," coach Leslie Frazier said. "He made some other plays, too, that just shows you that he's a very aware guy and a very smart football player."
