SIOUX FALLS (AP) — South Dakota's medical licensing board has endorsed allowing emergency officials to carry an antidote to help people who have overdosed on opiates such as heroin.

The state Board of Medical and Osteopathic Examiners on Thursday approved a set of rules for police officers and other emergency personnel to carry Naloxone, which can reverse the effects of opioid overdoses, the Argus Leader newspaper reported. Final approval rests with state officials.

Law enforcement officials are concerned about growth in heroin use around the country. The drug is supplanting prescription painkillers for addicts in states that have tightened enforcement or created prescription drug monitoring programs. South Dakota now has a monitoring program, though it has yet to see a surge in heroin use.

There were 32 opioid overdose deaths in South Dakota in 2013, according to Attorney General Marty Jackley. He sponsored legislation earlier this year to enable first responders to carry Naloxone.

The rules crafted by the medical board require first responders to complete a training course taught by a > licensed physician who could then issue a standing order allowing the first responder to use the drug. They now go to the Legislature's Rules Review Committee for approval and submission to the Secretary of State's Office. They would take effect 20 days after that. How quickly the training and procurement of Naloxone would take place then depends on the individual agency that wants to use the antidote. Each agency would need to connect with a physician, get their employees trained and secure a supply.

The highway was shut down following the incident and reopened around 6 p.m.

As of press time, the names of the victims have not been released.

The South Dakota Highway Patrol is investigating the incident.

Also responding were the Yankton Fire Department, Lesterville Fire Department and Yankton County EMS, all responded to the scene.

North Platte Police Called To Investigate Suspicious Object

NORTH PLATTE, Neb. (AP) - North Platte police say a suspicious object left in a bank parking lot was harmless.

The North Platte Telegraph reports that police were called to investigate a bicycle cart in a NebraskaLand National Bank parking lot on Thursday. A section of street was closed. Police Sgt. Jeff Foote says the cart contained what appeared to an electronic circuit board and wires, with a fitting on the end of one wire that resembled a sensor.

Foote says police contacted the Nebraska State Patrol, which sent a bomb technician to examine the cart. The technician determined that the objects did not pose a threat. Authorities say they believe the cart was left by a transient man who was seen earlier in the day, and they don't believe his intentions were bad.

Child Welfare Out-Of-Home Care Increases

bile homes 1980's on up. Cash LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) - A state oversight agency report says Nebraska's child welfare Acreage – Lots For system showed little progress in keeping children in their Sale homes.

The Lincoln Journal Star reports the Nebraska Foster Care field Ranch estates. Electricity Review Office said Thursday on site. $51,500. Kathy, Centuthat the number of children in out-of-home care increased during the year that ended Items $100 or Less June 30, compared with the 10 Vangen Church 150th an-year before. According to the agency, neglect was the most common reason why children were removed from their homes, followed by parental drug use and unsafe housing.

The annual report said there were 3,145 abused and neglected children in foster homes, group homes, emergency shelters and other outof-home placements on June 30 this year. That is a 4 percent increase from the previous year, and represented the first increase in nearly three years. According to the report, a total of 5,630 children spent time in out-of-home care during the 2014-15 fiscal year compared to 5,466 the previous year. The increases have occurred despite the fact that reducing the number of children removed from their homes has been a key goal of child welfare reform in Nebraska since 2009.

The agency also reports that there were 869 juvenile offenders in out-of-home placements as of Nov. 16. The agency said that Native American and black children account for a larger proportion of the children in out-of-home care than they do of the general population, while white children are a smaller proportion of those in out-of-home care than in the general population. Kim Hawekotte, executive director for the review office, called the data "disappointing."

The Nebraska Department of Health and Human Services said it had not seen the report but the agency appreciates the work of the review office.

State Sen. Kathy Campbell of Lincoln, the Health and Human Services Committee chairwoman, said she had not seen the report and could not comment.

NE Public TV Network Won't Be Sold In National Auction

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) - The Nebraska Educational Telecommunications Commission has decided against putting the state's public television network up for auction.

The Omaha World-Herald reports that the Federal Communications Commission had set a Jan. 12 deadline for television stations to decide whether or not to participate in a national auction of the broadcast spectrum.

The goal of the auction is to free up space on the airwaves for use by wireless carriers.

Stations have the option of moving to a lower portion of the spectrum or getting paid for going off the air.

A consultant told commission members in October that the FCC is unlikely to want stations in small markets such as Nebraska to pay anything close to the opening bid price, $320 million.

Commissioner Clay Smith says the study group concluded that the network was too valuable to the state.

RC Police Make Drug Busts On Buses RAPID CITY (AP) - Rapid City police say they've made two large drug busts on buses traveling through the city, thanks to alert drivers.

Authorities say drivers on Wednesday and on Nov. 25 contacted them after smelling marijuana.

Officers on Wednesday seized a pound of pot along with methamphetamine, and a passenger from Missouri was arrested later that day in Mitchell.

In the earlier incident, officers uncovered more than 7 pounds of marijuana in an overhead compartment. Police are still trying to determine who it belonged to. They arrested a passenger from Minnesota after finding a smaller amount of pot in his suitcase.

NE Court Rejects Sex Assault Appeal

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) - The Nebraska Supreme Court has upheld a former prison worker's conviction and 1to 2-year sentence for having sex with an inmate at the women's prison in York.

Michael Weichman, who had been a staff maintenance employee, was convicted in March. State law says any prison or jail worker who has sex with an inmate has committed sexual assault.

In his appeal, Weichman argued that statements he made during a polygraph test admitting to the sexual relationship should not have been allowed. He also argued that the inmate's statements acknowledging the sex should have been thrown out.

On Friday, the high court rejected Weichman's arguments, saying he was aware he did not have to take the polygraph test and that he had been informed of his right to remain silent.

Man Shot At SF Apartment Complex

SIOUX FALLS (AP) — Police are investigating the shooting of a man at an apartment complex in Sioux Falls.

Authorities say a 21-year-old man was taken to a hospital about 11:30 p.m. Thursday with a gunshot wound that is not believed to be life-threatening.

No arrests were immediately made, though police say it is a crime scene and they are interviewing witnesses.

Man's Post-Conviction Gets New Look

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) - The Nebraska Supreme Court has ordered a lower court to reconsider a bid for a new trial by an Omaha man convicted in 1999 of a 1995 Omaha killing and sentenced to life in prison.

Jack Harris alleges in his post-conviction motion that the state's primary witness lied when he testified it was Harris who shot and killed Anthony Jones in 1995. Harris has affidavits from other people who say the state's witness confessed to them to being the one who killed Jones.

A Douglas County District Court dismissed Harris' motion last year, saying Harris had other motions for relief pending.

But the high court ruled Friday that the lower court should have addressed the merits of Harris' claims, because, if proven true, they would throw Harris' conviction into question dictory to what they initially told YHS personnel. Kindle said that was a key piece that triggered the police department to move forward with an investigation.

The suspects told police they were in Yankton on a break from USD and were essentially "killing time" by driving around, Paulsen said.

An investigation is still pending on the details of their presence on school property.

USD released a statement on the Friday:

"The University of South Dakota takes the issue of school security very seriously on our own campus and others. When USD learned that two of our students had been arrested on misdemeanor charges in Yankton, we responded immediately and cooperated fully with investigators. Searches of the students' residence hall rooms vielded no weapons or any other policy violations. Both students remain enrolled, though USD will await results of the investigation before making a final determination. The charges are misdemeanors and they were released on $2,000 bond, which indicates the judge does not believe them to be a danger to society.'

Kindle and the administration team met with representatives from the police department as well as the city manager Thursday evening.

He said details on the incident and how the school would move forward were discussed – particularly, whether or not to hold school Friday.

He said that YSD was confident that having kids in school Friday is the right decision.

'We felt that we should get back to a regular day as much as we can," he said. We think that is important for our kids.

In addition to holding classes, high school principal Dr. Jennifer Johnke met with the students to discuss the incident and evaluate how they were affected by it.

'We appreciate the questions that the kids have and we are going to do everything we can to ensure their safety," Kindle said. "We can all agree, that is what we want for our kids. But we are not going to let an incident like this completely define who we are as a district."

Paulsen said he has a strong feeling that the reasoning behind the intrusion was not to create a large-scale incident.

'We served search warrants last night and seized the electronic equipment that will be forensically examined. Paulsen said. "That may turn up something, but my hunch is that it won't turn up anything.'

Despite the immediate urgency, both the police and the district are taking necessary precautions to prevent more of these occurrences.

YSD's past protocol does not call for the front entrances of schools to be locked all day. After an incident like this, Kindle will continue to work with personnel to implement new security policies.

We feel that we live in a community where we like to be able to come in and out of our school," he said. "We like that welcome feeling. But (Thursday), we had a couple of people that broke that trust and that is very disappointing. I find that a bit unfortunate living in a community like Yankton. But if that is something we need to do for the safety of our kids and our staff, then that is what we are going to do."

These new policies involve locking and continuing to lock all entrances to the YSD buildings, which began Friday

Police officers were present in every building and continued to offer a presence to the other schools throughout the district, as well as placing staff members in hallways and on playgrounds for an extra security.

We will look at other avenues to provide better opportunities for our officers,' Paulsen said. "There are a number of things we can do. Today, what we did was just an active-shooter crisis plan. Administration is also working on installing a call-in system where outside access to the school would be closely monitored, along with installing panic buttons in secretary offices in the case of an emergency.

This past year, the school has implemented updates for the security cameras - recently within the elementary schools and last week in the high school. Plans on improving the camera system at the middle school has been moved up to occur during Christmas break.

"We have been working with the school and will continue to work with the school to get the responses to these incidences and the protection of these kids right," Paulsen said.

Thursday night at approximately 9 p.m., almost eight hours after the incident, Kindle issued a Connect 5 message sent throughout the district in the form of a voice message and an e-mail. Kindle admits the reason for the delay was to secure the most accurate information possible. "We are not usually in this position," he said. "In the 25 years that I have been in Yankton, I can't ever remember a message like this that has gone out from the school district. To this extent, we wanted to get it right.

The warrants for the search and seizure were not served until 6 p.m. Thursday night. Shortly after, a meeting was scheduled between administrators to gather the information from police and compose a message to the public.

Part of that message attested to some of the negative influences of social media and the effect it can have on an incident like this.

"I want our parents to know that we are going to get you the correct information. not someone who is an expert on social media," Kindle said. "If you can be patient and trust us, let us do that part of it. We want to be afraid for the kids. Let the kids be in school and not be afraid.

Senator Files Grievance Toward Atty. Gen.

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) - Nebraska state Sen. Ernie Chambers is asking the Nebraska Supreme Court to sanction the attorney general for legal advice he gave over the state's attempts to obtain lethal injection drugs.

The Omaha lawmaker filed a grievance Thursday with the Counsel for Discipline of the Nebraska Supreme Court.

Chambers, who fought for years to abolish the death penalty, alleges that Attorney General Doug Peterson advised state corrections officials to move forward with their efforts to obtain foreign-made sodium thiopental. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration has said states cannot legally import the drug.

Peterson has said court rulings cited by the FDA do not apply to Nebraska, and questioned the agency's interpretation of those decisions. A spokeswoman for Peterson declined to comment.

Officials Gather For Wind-Farm Opening

CRESTON, Neb. (AP) - Officials say a new four-turbine wind farm in Platte County could be operational by mid-December.

The Columbus Telegram reports that representatives from Columbus, the Loup Public Power District and Bluestem Energy Solutions gathered Thursday for a ribbon cutting at Creston Ridge Wind Farm.

The four turbines are assembled and were scheduled to be tested Friday

The Creston Ridge project began with a conversation between Adam Herink of Omaha-based Bluestem and a Loup employee at a high school reunion in 2013. In the two years since, the project has faced technical, social and logistical hurdles.

Loup will receive about 3 percent of its electricity from the 6.8-megawatt wind farm.

$18,000 Raised For Officer Ballpark

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — An Omaha park is one step closer to honoring a police officer who was killed in the line of duty in May.

The Omaha World-Herald reports that the Omaha Parks Foundation received nearly $18,500 Thursday to renovate a Miller Park baseball field in honor of Kerrie Orozco.

The money was raised through the sale of Kansas City Chiefs flags that read "This is Chiefs Kingdom." The flags were sold in Omaha and Council Bluffs Hy-Vee Supermarkets and City of Omaha community centers on Sept. 17.

The Miller Park renovations will include a new infield, irrigation for the outfield, field lights, bleachers and fencing. It will be named the Kerrie Orozco Memorial Ballfield.

Orozco lived in Council Bluffs, Iowa, with her family and was a native of nearby Walnut, Iowa.
