Yankees Deal For Reds' Chapman

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees bolstered an already dominant bullpen Monday, acquiring hard-throwing All-Star closer Aroldis Chapman from the Cincinnati Reds for four minor leaguers. Chapman became available after the Reds' deal with the Los Angeles Dodgers fell through during baseball's winter meetings three weeks ago when it was learned Florida police investigated an accusation of domestic violence involving the Cuban left-hander. Major League Baseball is currently investigating and Chapman could face suspension under the league's new domestic violence policy.

"We felt this was an opportunity to add a big arm to our bullpen, even though there are some things that are unresolved," Yankees general manager Brian Cashman said in a conference call. "And we will respect that process as it plays out."

Cashman said the Yankees have had interest in Chapman for several years, but a deal only became affordable when the price for the reliever dropped after the report was made public.

New York was able to protect its top minor leaguers in the deal, sending right-handers Caleb Cotham and Rookie Davis and infielders Eric Jagielo and Tony Renda to Cincinnati. Jagielo was New York's No. 1 pick in 2013 (26th overall).

The Yankees will have to wait to set up their enviable bullpen of Chap man, Andrew Miller and Dellin Betances until the investigation is done.

MLB has indicated it will take as long as it needs to thoroughly vet the matter. The league is also investigating domestic violence inci ing Colorado's Jose Reves and the Dodgers' Yasiel Puig

Huskers

19 in 2004 under Bill Callahan. At Oregon State, where Riley coached the previous 12 years, the offenses were predicated on throwing quarterbacks. Riley and Langsdorf needed time to figure out how to give Armstrong the best chance for success, and the play-calling was curious. The third-year starter ran for 400 yards and seven touchdowns and was the team's third-leading rusher behind Terrell Newby and Imani Cross. The rushing success in the bowl doesn't mean the Huskers will run 62 times per game next year, as they did against the Bruins. But given the team's personnel heading into 2016, the run should be a big part of the offense. "I think it can be a common denominator for winning a championship, and that's what we want to do," Riley said.

Armstrong is among eight offensive starters who'll be back. The biggest questions are on the offensive line, where only two full-time starters return. The physical Ozigbo and speedy Newby give the Huskers options at running back, and Jordan Westerkamp leads what should be one of the best receiver corps in the Big Ten.

The defense will return seven or eight starters depending on whether tackle Vincent Valentine declares for the NFL draft. Tackle Maliek Collins already has announced he'll enter the draft, and the line also will lose end Jack Gangwish. But there is a lot of young talent with tackles Khalil and Carlos Davis and end Alex Davis among the players who redshirted this season.

The Huskers will be coming off a season that started with a loss to BYU on a Hail Mary, the first of four losses on the opponent's final offensive play, and hit a low point with a 10-point loss at Purdue. Nebraska did hand College Football Playoff participant Michigan State its only loss, thanks to Brandon Reilly's 30-yard touchdown catch with 17 seconds left after he stepped back inbounds after officials ruled he was forced out.

Nebraska played West Division champion Iowa within 28-20 despite Armstrong's four interceptions, then finished with the big win

"In this last month, month and a half, we have played our best football and we probably played our best football game (in the bowl)," Riley said. "When a team can do that and fight through all the stuff we did, that says a lot about the character of the young men who are in the program.'

"But we just didn't make adjustments on her," he said.

Sokolowski Emerging At 5-foot-11, Andrea So-kolowski has always posed a problem for defenses on the basketball court. Through the early stages of the season, though, she's becoming a major threat. The progression of the Irene-Wakonda senior post was on full display Monday morning when she scored 22 points in a 54-48 victory over Chester Area. It marked her third 20-plus point game of the young season, which has given the Eagles (2-2) a significant spark. 'That's a huge boost for us," senior Caitlin Hinseth said. "That's an extra option we can go to, and know that she'll score.' Sokolowski, also a track standout, averaged 7.9 points and 6.8 rebounds per game last season. Not exactly a bad season, but she would tell you it wasn't quite what she was capable of.

"Last year I was in a funk, I guess," Sokolowski said after Monday's game.

"I was hoping it would go better this season. These last couple games have boosted my confidence, I think.

That was the key, according to head coach Todd Bak. 'She's always shown that potential," Bak said. "She's been keeping her emotions under control, and I think that's a big part of it. "Confidence is big, too."
