ployee. After a few months had passed, he began to work with funeral pre-arrangements and helping people that come into the funeral home to make their final plans.

"I had to start studying so I could take the Insurance Producer test, which I passed, and am now licensed in South Dakota and Nebraska," he said. "I really enjoy helping people make their final decisions. I get to help people line up how they see their funeral service happening and what they would like to have happen at their funeral."

Powell added that people sometimes feel relieved that the plans are in place and the survivors and their children won't have to arrange a funeral after they pass away.

"When people come in to arrange their final plans, it can be as simple as them filling out a sheet with what they would like to have done," he said. "They can also pay for everything up front to make it easier on their survivors. A lot of people that come in are relieved that their kids won't have to arrange anything."

Although Powell said he enjoys his new job at Opsahl-Kostel, he admitted there are still a number of things he misses about working as a band director.

"I miss seeing kids all the time at school," he said. "But I did have a great 32-year career and really enjoyed teaching in the Yankton School District. I had 20 years of outstanding kids here and making outstanding music."

Powell said he enjoyed traveling with his students all over the United States to concerts and summer shows, but added it was time to do something new.

"It was a really tough decision for me to retire, and I thought about it for a year," he said. "I had a friend tell me if it isn't fun anymore, don't do it. While the job was still fun, I felt as if it was time for someone else to have the opportunity to be the band director in Yankton."

Powell added that although there are a lot of differences between the two positions, working as while director has prepared him for his new job.

"The main similarity is that when you teach, you're working with the public so you know how to talk to people and how to approach people," he said. "However, the position I was in when I worked in the school district had a lot of competitions and contests which really doesn't occur working for Opsahl-Kostel."

Powell said he has no regrets with taking the position any sooner than he did.

"If my career wasn't as successful as it was, I may have said I made a mistake by not working here sooner," he said. "But I don't feel as if that was the case."

- Herbert Hoover never took for his personal use any of the nearly $500,000 he received as salaries as president, secretary of commerce, food administrator or Belgian relief director. "I made up my mind when I entered public life that I would not make it possible for anyone to say that I had sought public office for the money there was in it," Hoover said.

- Farm prices lost buying power during the last 12 months despite the fact that they went up a little. What happened was that the prices of goods and services farmers buy increased more than the prices they receive for their crops and livestock.

“CAT”-ASTROPHE AVOIDED

Emergency responders avoided a "cat"-astrophe Friday when they rescued a feline frozen to a pond on Yankton's western edge.

A report was received at 9:42 a.m. of a cat that was iced to the pond at Avera Sacred Heart Majestic Bluffs along West 11th Street.

"The caller did not know how long the cat had been there," Yankton Deputy Fire Chief Larry Nickles said. "It was frozen down by its tail."

The cat was stuck to ice a few feet away from open water.

The Yankton Fire Department brought a ladder to use as a bridge to reach the cat from the rocky shore. A Yankton Search and Rescue member with protective gear made the trek to the cat in case the ice collapsed.

"The cat got a little excited when the ladder got close, and she started running in circles," Nickles said.

The Search and Rescue member had to chisel the cat's tail out of the ice. A small blanket was placed over her during the extraction process.

"They put her in a pet carrier and brought her back to shore," Nickles said. "She didn't struggle at all."

"We have no clue why she was out there," he added. "She had been there long enough that there was an indentation in the ice where she had been sitting."

The cat was taken to the Yankton Veterinary Clinic by Animal Control Officer Lisa Brasel. She said staff was waiting with heating pads and a warm towel.
