Don't Need Flashy Car To Impress

BY TOM AND RAY MAGLIOZZI

King Features Syndicate

Dear Tom and Ray:

I'm a young man of 24 who is about to start business school. The trouble is that I drive a '98 Ford Ranger with 110,000 miles — not exactly a model known for being an executive's car. I've been looking around online, and I've found some great deals. I've found a '97 Porsche for less than $6,000, and an '87 Alfa Romeo for less than $4,000! This list goes on. Can these cars possibly be the bargains they appear to be? All of them have slight cosmetic or mechanical issues, but I'm somewhat mechanical, so these deals are all the more appealing. My question: Are these great cheap cars, or money pits? —Gareth

RAY: They're money pits. The reason they're cheap is because they'll cost you a fortune to keep running. And even without the benefit of business school, I'm going to recommend that you buy one, because, as a mechanic, I know it'll be good for MY business.

TOM: I'd actually encourage you to keep the Ranger. First of all, you're not an executive — you're a student. So you don't need to impress anybody with your car. You need to impress people with your hard work, your intelligence, your judgment and your creativity.

RAY: Second, in my opinion, the old Ranger pickup makes a better impression than an old Porsche or Alfa. Why? Because it's a better business decision. Would you hire an executive who appears to be prudent and careful with his own money, or one who wastes his money on expensive, showy accessories? Which guy would you want running YOUR company and spending YOUR money?

TOM: I think the Ranger sends exactly the right message for an aspiring businessman: that you're practical, economical, grounded, confident enough to drive whatever you feel like, and more concerned with function than flashiness.

RAY: And OK, you don't have much fashion sense. But as long as you're not interviewing at Estee Lauder, you'll be fine. Good luck, Gareth.

To buy or not to buy — options, that is. Are options worth what you pay for them, or are you better off just going with the basics? Order Tom and Ray's pamphlet "Should I Buy, Lease, or Steal My Next Car?" to find out. Send $4.75 (check or money order) to Next Car, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

On the Shakespeare's Globe Education Theater Program, students spend three weeks at Shakespeare's historic Globe Theater in London, where they have the unique opportunity to study intensively with actors, directors, and other theater practitioners. The program runs from June 17 through July 5.

"We're delighted that American students will have the opportunity to experience life in our exciting capital city," remarks Michael Scott-Kline, Director of the Fulbright Program. "The American Institute For Foreign Study Summer Institute at Shakespeare's Globe Theater will offer everything that we would hope for in a Fulbright exchange: a stimulating academic component, a rich and immersive cultural experience and an enthusiastic host."
