‘Cinderella’ Touches On Self-Doubts

“Seeing Cinderella” by Jenny Lundquist, Aladdin Books (Simon & Schuster Children’s Publishing Division, 2012. 240 pages.

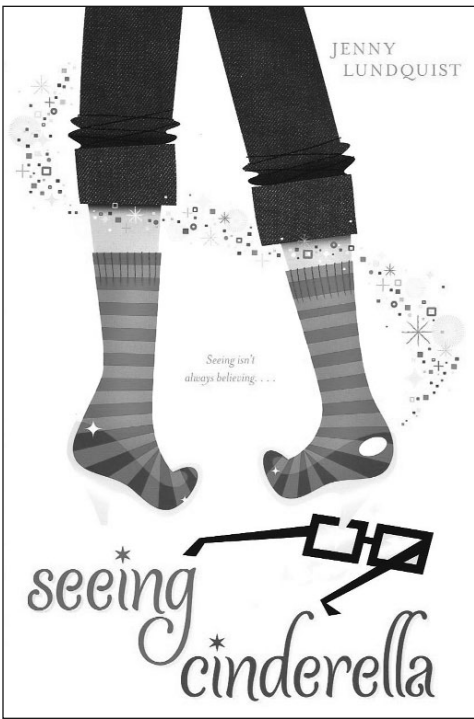

BY PAT HANSEN

Middle school is stressful, even for the most confident of kids. Now imagine that your hair is frizzy and the color of dead leaves. Imagine you have freckles and need glasses. Imagine that you never felt like you fit in during elementary school. Imagine that you’d rather sit by yourself and write stories than hang out with other kids, because that way you can’t hear them making fun of you. Welcome to Calliope Meadow Anderson’s life.

Callie’s mom takes her to get her vision checked right before middle school starts. Callie’s plan to memorize the eye chart so she won’t have to get glasses doesn’t work very well. To make it worse, her glasses are back-ordered and the eye doctor gives her a pair he has on hand with her exact prescription. Too bad they have big black frames that look like they could withstand a nuclear blast (or a meteor strike in Russia).

The bright spot of Callie’s life is her best friend Ellen. Ellen is pretty and smart and has no trouble making friends. So Callie’s plan is to stick with Ellen in middle school. That is, until new kid Stacy-the-Golden-Girl starts hanging out with Ellen and stealing her away.

Callie’s big surprise, though, is when she puts on the hideous glasses — shimmering “computer screens” appear by people. And inside those screens are that person’s thoughts! Or sometimes it’s a picture, a memory. Callie

SPECIAL VALENTINES

SUBMITTED PHOTO

On Valentine’s Day, The Center in Yankton received some unexpected visitors: 3-year-old Eleksis Johnston and 3-year-old Tavian Brahmer They were disappointed that their older siblings got to take Valentines to school to hand out, so the parents asked if they could give the diners at The Center a Valentine. The kids delivered Valentines to 90 dinners, making the holiday a little sweeter. Tom Johnson also dropped off a dozen red roses to give out to the members.

RiverWalk Benefit, Preview Feb. 28

The Yankton Downtown RiverWalk will raise funds for public art by bartending at The Landing on Thursday, Feb. 28. All tips from 5-8 p.m. will be used to fund 14 new sculptures. The Landing is located at 104 Capital St.

Photos of the new sculptures will be available for viewing on that evening only.

“We are proud of the new sculptures which will soon be on the streets of downtown and want to offer a sneak-peek before installation in May,” says Lisa Scheve, president of the RiverWalk board.

Bartenders will include committee members Lisa Scheve, Michelle Kolda, Pam Meylor, Katie Hunhoff, Caprice Benoit and Todd Larson.

RiverWalk was created in 2010 with 10 sculptures decorating Yankton’s downtown and riverfront. Using the RiverWalk App on Smartphones or map and brochure provided by local stores, people can stroll through the sculpture walk and read about each piece of art and the artist. A celebration and auction in May will mark the end of the current RiverWalk season and bring the installation of new sculptures.

The People’s Choice award will also be announced at the May gathering, and the winner will stay in Yankton permanently.

The 2013 RiverWalk major sculpture sponsors are Avera Sacred Heart Hospital, First Dakota National Bank, Otto Ulrich Memorial Trust and the Suzan and Lee Gass Family.

For more information, contact Lisa Scheve at 665-3636 or 760-4472.

March Into Spring At The Library!

BY KATHY JACOBS

Yankton Community Library

Many of us will soon be out in our yards and gardens trying to hurry spring along. To pass the time as you wait for warmer weather and to help you plan ahead, the library has already purchased new items that may be helpful as you think about gardening projects.

Check out the following titles for new thoughts and ideas:

- “The Edible Balcony: Growing Fresh Produce in Small Spaces” by Alex Mitchell,
- “Bulb Forcing for Beginners and the Seriously Smitten” by Art Wolk,
- “Natural Companions: The Garden Lover’s Guide to Plant Combinations” by Ken Druse,
- “The Layered Garden” by David L. Culp,
- and “The Book of Gardening Projects for Kids: 101 Ways to Get Kids Outside, Dirty, and Having Fun” by Whitney Cohen and John Fisher.

We also subscribe to the Garden Gate and Organic Gardening magazines as well as several other magazines that feature lawn, garden, and landscaping articles. These resources will definitely get you in the mood for spring and ready to tackle those outdoor projects.

The library continues to hold story time on Mondays at 6:30 p.m., and Wednesdays and Thursdays at 10:15 a.m. Toddler time meets Thursdays from 11-11:20 a.m. All programs include stories and interactive music with instruments. Children also enjoy rhymes and finger plays, and story time includes crafts. Infants to preschoolers and their care providers are invited to attend any or all of these programs.

March 2 is the beloved Dr. Seuss’ birthday. In honor of this famous writer, we will feature his stories, crafts, rhymes, and songs during the week of Feb. 25. The staff will be dressed in hats and ties throughout the week, so if you’d like to come dressed as your favorite Seuss character, we’d love to have you celebrate with us. We’ll show the following movies at 3:45 p.m. on Tuesday through Thursday respectively of that week: “The Lorax,” “The Cat in the Hat” and “Horton Hears A Who.”

Join us for the following after school movies: “Wreck It Ralph” on March 7 and “Abel’s Field” on March 21. Movies begin at 3:45 p.m. Middle school activities will be March 12 and 26. Both programs begin at 3:30 p.m.

We’ve introduced a new program, “Book A Librarian.” Facebook, Pinterest, or Twitter users that need a small amount of help, perhaps 15 minutes, can book time with librarians and get personalized answers to questions. This is for people who know what they are doing but might be having a problem doing just one particular thing, such as uploading pictures. Call and ask for Dana or Tonya when making your appointment.

We are trying another avenue of training for those with new e-readers, “Ease of E-Reader Training.” During your training, we’ll make sure your library account is up-to-date, walk you through the “South Dakota Titles To Go ...” site, and get you ready to check out available titles and download them to your device. These training times are available weekly on Tuesdays and Fridays. While it is best if you call and make an appointment, we will try to accommodate walk-ins. When making an appointment, ask for Tonya, Becky, or Dana.

Readers Anonymous will discuss A. Manette Ansay’s book “Vinegar Hill” at 1 p.m. March 12. This club, which is open to new members, meets the second Tuesday of each month.

Between the Lines Book Club will discuss “The No. 1 Ladies’ Detective Agency” by Alexander McCall Smith on Tuesday, March 19, at 5:30 p.m. This book club, which meets on the third Tuesday of each month at 5:30 p.m., is open to new members as well.

During our March Mac and Cheese Madness, we will collect Mac and Cheese for Food for Fines. Collection dates are March 16-24, with all donations going to the Contact Center.

Gourmet Guys is set for Saturday, March 9, at 6 p.m. This is the annual membership drive and fundraiser sponsored by Friends of the Library.

thinks she’s going crazy. On, off, on, off with the glasses. Yup. It’s definitely the glasses and it’s definitely people’s thoughts.

Callie finds it comes in handy during math class when the teacher asks her the answers. When Callie sees Scott Fowler — THE Scott Fowler — in her science class, she can hardly believe her good luck. She has liked him for over a year. Does her like her? With her new glasses, this is her chance to find out...

Well, she finds out he thinks her glasses are horrid and that he can’t quite remember her real name. All her remembers is her nickname, Polka Dot.

Her new glasses also make her realize that Ellen isn’t telling her lots of things, because she thinks Callie won’t understand. And when Callie asks people how they are, most people don’t really tell the truth.

To top it off, Callie is in drama class because Ellen talks her into it. Callie would rather stay out of the limelight. When she’s given the lead part in “Cinderella,” Callie declines so that Ellen can have the part. She’d rather be Ellen’s understudy. Trouble is, when you’re someone’s understudy in real life, you never get to become Cinderella yourself.

This book for ages 9 and up is a fresh look at the doubts everyone, young to old, deals with throughout their lives. The trick, as Callie learns, is getting past herself and caring about others. Take a look at this book and see what you can see.

SDAC Accepting Grant Applications For AISC Program

PIERRE — South Dakota schools and communities have the opportunity to give lasting learning experiences to students of all ages through an easy grant program of the South Dakota Arts Council.

The South Dakota Arts Council (SDAC) is now accepting grant applications for its Artists In Schools and Communities (AISC) residency program and reminds applicants that the grant deadline has changed to March 1. The SDAC will provide matching grants to schools and other nonprofit organizations that would like to host teaching artists for residencies.

Through the AISC program, students — adults and children alike — will learn about fine arts in an exciting, relevant, hands-on environment.

Grantees choose their art medium and artist from a roster of professional teaching artists endorsed by the Arts Council. Residency genres include dance, literature, writing, music, theater, visual arts and traditional arts. A theater residency could include classroom workshops or a full-length production featuring local students at the end of the week. In the visual arts, choose from pottery, weaving, painting, drawing, sculpting and community murals. The traditional artists include residencies in cowboy culture, American Indian hoop dancing and rodeo clowning.

Four new artists have been endorsed and added to the roster this year. To view the roster of artists and read about the residencies offered, visit www.artsCouncil.sd.gov/aisc/meetartist.aspx.

The deadline for grant applications to be post-marked or e-mailed is March 1, 2013; the simple, two-page application is available at <http://www.artsCouncil.sd.gov/aisc/aiscspon-app.pdf>.

An office of the South Dakota Department of Tourism, the South Dakota Arts Council’s mission is to provide grants and services to artists, arts organizations and schools across the state, with funding from the National Endowment for the Arts and the state of South Dakota. For more information about SDAC grant programs and artist rosters, visit www.artsCouncil.sd.gov.

The South Dakota Department of Tourism is comprised of Tourism, the South Dakota Arts Council, and the South Dakota State Historical Society. The Department is led by Secretary James D. Hagen.

It’s a night of luscious food tastings prepared by seven area men, relaxing music, and great conversation with friends and library supporters. Tickets are now on sale at Hy-Vee, from a member of Friends of the Library or from Kathy Jacobs.
