

Press & Dakotan DAILY DOSE

BY JAMES D. CIMBUREK
james.cimburek@yankton.net

Daily opinions from the P&D Sports Staff on local and national high school, college and pro sports.

One of the fun things about my job is the opportunity to promote some of the young men and women who work for me. In the past 17 years that I have spent as sports editor, I have written recommendations for law school, graduate school and, of course, positions at other newspapers. I am proud to say that "my" alumni have held positions at newspapers in six different states.

Few things, though, have made me as proud as the news I received on Wednesday. Jeremy Hoeck was named the "Outstanding Young Journalist" for daily newspapers by the South Dakota Newspaper Association. What was even better was that our good friend John Thayer allowed me to give the news to Jeremy during their regular Wednesday radio spot together on his "On The John" show.

Jeremy started with me in 2006. Besides doing a great job himself, he recruited several of those individuals who are now holding positions elsewhere: Vance Janak (now back with us as a free-lancer), Matt Dahlseid, Justin Rust and Royal McGregor.

Recognition Overdue For Hoeck

When Hod Nielsen retired from the paper for the final time, Jeremy took the reins of our University of South Dakota coverage and made it his own. He is well recognized and respected at USD as well as by other Summit League media, regularly doing on-air segments with several other media outlets that cover USD and other Summit League programs.

He has been more of a co-editor than an assistant, as we have discussed nearly every major decision in our sports department since he was promoted to assistant sports editor in 2008. We decide everything from content to personnel decisions together.

My bosses have also seen Jeremy's talent and determination, making him the social media guru for the entire newsroom, as well as the leader of the newsroom for video.

I am also privileged to call him my friend. When he married Katie a couple years back, I was happy to serve as one of his groomsmen, even if it meant missing the Yankton football season opener.

I have seen Jeremy grow into a talented and confident journalist, and I couldn't be happier than to see him honored by the SDNA. In my opinion, the recognition was overdue.

they lead in the 1600 and distance medley. Such depth will obviously play a key role, Kovash said.

"It's really reassuring," he said. "The last five years, it doesn't seem like we've had this kind of depth."

Another athlete Gottsleben singled out is junior Jeff O'Connell, who will compete in the 200, 1600-meter relay, high jump, long jump and triple jump — because he wants to help score points for the team, Gottsleben said.

"Jeff could just go long jump and maybe win it, but he wants to do everything he can to help us score," Gottsleben said.

In field events, USD ranks first in two events, with Kevin Sarekhani (pole vault) and Cody Snyder (shot put).

North Dakota State is expected to keep the team race close with its strength in field events, particularly the heptathlon where the Bison have seven of the top 10 marks.

"We've been in a tight battle with them, so I'm looking forward to it," Kovash said. "It'll take a total team effort."

Said Gottsleben, "That's why we run the meet, I guess."

Women: NDSU Favored

The women's side of this weekend's Summit League indoor meet does not expect to be near as close as the men's team battle.

North Dakota State, the six-time defending champion, is projected to score around 240 points, based on pre-meet rankings. The Coyote women could reach as high as 150 points.

USD ranks first in three events, with Katie Wetzstein (3K run), Megan Glisar (high jump) and Emily Grove (pole vault). A number of athletes also rank second in their respective events.

One athlete that figures to be busy this weekend is junior Analisa Huschle. She comes in ranked fourth in the 60-meter dash, fifth in the 200, fifth in the 400 and sixth in the long jump.
