USD's Larson Named Co-Summit Plaver Of The Week

MHURST, III. — South Dakota senior guard Tyler Larson was named Summit League Player of the Week for the period ended Feb. 15. It is the first career Player of the Week award for Larson, who averaged 19.5 points per game in a pair of key road victories.

Against Omaha Thursday, Larson scored a team-high 20 points and pulled down seven rebounds to go along with a career-high four steals. Two nights later at Oral Roberts, Larson scored 19 on 6 of 8 shooting, recorded six rebounds and did not commit a turnover in 38 minutes.

For the week, Larson shot 56 percent from the field, including 50 percent from 3-point range, and averaged 19.5 points, 6.5 rebounds and 2.0 steals per game.

Larson shared honors with North Dakota State's Lawrence Alexander. the senior guard was honored for a second straight week after averaging 26 points per game.

Giambi Retires After 20 Seasons

CLEVELAND (AP) - Jason Giambi is retiring after 20 seasons in the majors

The 2000 AL MVP announced his decision Monday in a statement that was first sent to the New York Daily News. He ends his career as one of 20 players in history with at least 400 home runs, 1,400 RBIs, 1,200 runs and 1,300 walks. The 44year-old played for Oakland, the New York Yankees, Colorado and Cleveland.

Following last season, Giambi said he would discuss with his family whether to keep playing. The longtime slugger appeared in just 26 games for the Indians in 2014.

A five-time All-Štar and fearsome power hitter, Giambi batted .277 in his career with 440 home runs and 1,441 RBIs. He had a .399 on-base percentage and slugged .516.

The first baseman was also tarnished by his involvement in the BALCO performance-enhancing drugs investigation. He never publicly admitted using PEDs, but has apologized for past actions.

Despite the PED scandal, Giambi remained a popular and well-respected player in clubhouses around the majors - especially his own. Before joining the Indians in 2013, he was a finalist for Colorado's managerial job.

Denny Hamlin on Keselowski's rep: "Nobody wants to be Brad."

Kyle Busch on who young drivers should emulate: "Don't come in like Brad.

For each blunt opinion Keselowski has about the state of NASCAR, drivers seem to have two or three zingers ready to fire right back at Bad Brad. Not even winning the 2012 Sprint Cup championship earned Keselowski his proper place at the big boys' table. He's yet to earn as much respect in the garage as former champs Tony Stewart, Matt Kenseth, Jimmie Johnson and Jeff Gordon.

Heck. Keselowski even took the rap for costing Gordon a shot at a fifth title when they tangled in an accident on a late small price to pay for having the type of passion that energizes him to be among NASCAR's best drivers.

"I know that when I have had whatever run-ins I have had throughout my career, I have had them because I have done the things that I feel like need to do to be the best, and that is why I am in this sport," Keselowski said. "That is what drives me Help heat your home and reduce your propane usage! all of us shrug our shoulders, close our eyes and are like, 'I wouldn't have said that," 2010 Daytona 500 winner Jamie Mc-Murray said. "But there is normally a little bit of truth in it, as well. He obviously likes attention or he wouldn't say things like that."

Even Keselowski's detractors can't deny his talent. He's coming off a career-best six wins with 17 top-fives driving the No. 2 Ford for Team Penske.

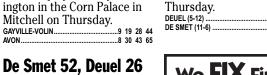

"I feel like I am a top-three driver in the Sprint Cup series," Keselowski said.
