Stepdad Rush In When Angels Fear To Tread

Malcolm

I recently met a young married man whose wife had left him. The core of his dis- traction was finding a new woman. He did this by taking a class in psychology and understanding the dynamics of his ex-wife's behavior. He now has a new relationship with another woman and is trying to figure out the dynamics of his new relationship.

In the advice I gave you, I noted that it's not uncommon for a man to find himself in a similar situation. It's important to remember that the primary goal should be to understand the dynamics of the situation and then act accordingly.

When you first met her, did you feel like you were understanding the dynamics of the relationship or did you feel like you were trying to understand the dynamics of the ex-wife's behavior?

Malcolm

I felt like I was understanding the dynamics of the relationship. I had a clear idea of what was going on and how to proceed.
