Bald Eagles Days Slated This Weekend

Bald Eagle Days, sponsored by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and the National Park Service, is set for Jan. 28-29 at the Lewis and Clark Visitor Center west of Yankton.

This year, presenters from The Raptor Center will be on hand to give raptor education programs. The Raptor Center, which is located at the University of Minnesota, College of Veterinary Medicine, is a group that "specializes in the medical care, rehabilitation, conservation, and study of eagles, hawks, owls, and falcons."

The programs will start each day at 9 a.m., 11 a.m., 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. The programs will feature live raptors, including a bald eagle. Each program is limited to 70 people. These programs fill up fast so it's best to come at least 30 minutes early. All seating is available on a first-come, first-serve basis, and reservations are not accepted.

In addition to the programs, the visitor center will have spotting scopes set up for viewing eagles along the river, eagle displays and trivia, lots of handouts, and a children's activity table. All activities are free to the public.

The Lewis and Clark Visitor Center is located four miles west of Yankton on Nebraska Highway 121 just above Gavins Point Powerplant. The center is handicapped accessible and will be open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. each day.

Area Towns Receiving CDBG Funds

PIERRE — Menno and Hurley received grants to improve their water systems, while Douglas County Memorial Hospital in Armour received funds for construction and renovation, the office of Gov. Dennis Daugaard announced Monday.

Menno has been approved for a federal Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) to help upgrade the community's sewer system.

Daugaard awarded the City of Menno $207,500 in CDBG funds to replace aging wastewater collection lines. Menno's wastewater system was installed nearly a century ago, and many of the aging lines scheduled to be replaced are original clay lines.

The project, expected to be complete in late 2013, will replace 7,615 linear feet of pipe. The majority of pipe replacement will happen along Park, Fifth, High and Pearl streets.

Hurley's sanitary sewer system is receiving an upgrade, thanks in part to a CDBG approved by the governor.

Hurley was approved for $308,522 in CDBG funds to rehabilitate its sanitary sewer system. Much of the sewage collection system is 90 years old.

The project, expected to be complete in the fall of 2013, includes replacing 6,550 feet of pipe and relining another 1,480 feet.

Also, the governor awarded Douglas County

$515,000 in federal CDBG funds to add a new patient-room area and renovate existing space. The Douglas County Memorial Hospital in Armour was built in 1957.

The project, expected to start this spring, will add about 6,450 square feet to north side of the hospital. Larger rooms for patients and modern medical equipment in the new space will better accommodate patient needs. The area that has been used to house patients will be converted into a nurses' station, pharmacy and emergency room.

CDBG is a reimbursement program, and the funds will be presented as work is completed on each project.

He added that the extra expense that may be incurred would be worth it.

Wenande said she believes that a trail color that differed from the color of the bridge would mistakenly take the focus off the historic structure.

"I think we need to keep the costs down on this," Commissioner Pauline Akland stated. "Adding the coloring in there isn't really going to do much."

Commissioner Paul Lowrie cautioned that stamping the concrete or putting in colored concrete could affect the durability of the trail.

The commission also wanted to make sure consideration was given to electrical and water infrastructure related to possible future uses of the park space.

In the midst of the discussion, Mayor David Knoff summed up the plan.

"The fact is, we're putting in grass now, which is cheap to replace in the future if we want to put a more expensive plaza there," he said. "This is a way to get it to look nice for the time being until we look at potentially investing a lot more dollars."

The plan received unanimous approval.

In other business Monday, the commission approved a Chan Gurney Airport ground communications outlet radio agreement with the South Dakota Department of Transportation and a listing agreement for city-owned commercial and industrial property.

Active casketbearers will be members of the Scotland Fire Dept. Bowling Team: Dennis Bietz, Duane Dean, Devin Lubinus, Mike Mehrer, Dean Rettedahl, and Tex Roth. Honorary casketbearers are Dick Behl, Mike Behl, Corey Bjorum, Jim Foley, Tim Furney, Fast Eddie Halverson and Craig Winckler.

Joseph Michael James Bertrand was born Saturday, June 11, 1956 in Scotland, South Dakota to H.R. "Bud" and Ella (Suess) Bertrand. During his early years, the family lived in Tabor, later moving to Scotland where Joe attended Scotland High School. He remained in Scotland, where Joe was blessed with his son and two daughters and later was united in marriage to Peggy Sue Berens on July 9, 2005 at Zion Lutheran Church in Scotland. Joe will always be remembered for being young at heart along with his enthusiasm and passion for life. The word "no" was absent from Joe's vocabulary and he was known for helping others and always putting other people first. Always a hard worker, he also knew how to have a good time and enjoyed bowling, golfing, dancing, riding his Harley, and spending time outdoors hunting and fishing. He loved the time he spent with his family on the boat while the kids went tubing and water-skiing. "Papa Joe" spent hours on the floor playing with his grandchildren. His absence will be felt in the community. Joe was loved by all who came into contact with him it didn't matter if you met Joe for 5 minutes or knew him for 20 years, you walked away with a smile, a story, and a friend for life. Many in the community ranging from students to farmers to all his friends at the local watering hole all knew Joe as a giver and a friend. He devoted countless hours to the construction of the Haunted House fundraising project among several other activities. Joe also volunteered on the Scotland Volunteer Fire Dept. throughout his years. No one word can describe Joe Bertrand. Some people would use words like kindhearted, loving, hardworking, and truly happy. "Broadway Joe" was truly one of a kind, and will always be remembered. Joe's work history ranged from a mechanic on a race car, to working with horses, construction, driving truck, until he found his place at Scotland Oil (Phillips 66). Over the 32 years working at Scotland Oil, Joe built a relationship with everyone he came into contact with. While still actively working at Scotland Oil, Joe had also worked part-time in the evenings as a shuttle driver for Schwan's.

Joe died from a sudden heart attack on Friday, January 20, 2012 at Landmann-Jungman Memorial Hospital in Scotland at the age of 55.

Joe will be held lovingly in the hearts of his family, which include his wife, Peggy, of Scotland; five children and their families: Joshua "Redman" Bertrand and Holly German and their unborn son, Tate, of Vermillion, Nicole (Corey) Pechous and their son, Weston, of Sioux Falls, Traci (Cody) VandeWeerd, their son, Griffin, and unborn daughter, Brooklyn, of Eudora, Kansas, Trisha Berens and Josh Hepp and her daughter Jayci Berens of Chancellor, and Tyler Berens of Chancellor; his mother, Ella Bertrand of Scotland; two brothers: Ray (Dee) Bertrand of Yankton and Brian (Renda) Bertrand of Gayville; a sister, LuAnn (John) Geiman of Scotland; his parents-in-law, Chuck and Karen Oberle of Tea; and numerous cousins, nieces, nephews, and in-laws. "Papa Joe" will also be fondly remembered by the Jeremy and Melinda Bertrand family and the Lisa Rokusek family.

Preceding him in death were his father, Bud Bertrand in 2002, and both his paternal and maternal grandparents.
