DAILY RECORD POLICY

The Press & Dakotan publishes police and sheriff reports as a public service to its readers. It is important to remember that an arrest should not imply guilt and that every person is presumed innocent until proven otherwise. When juveniles are released from jail, it is into the care of a parent or guardian.

It is the policy of the Press & Dakotan to publish all names made available in the police and court reports. There are no exceptions.

ARRESTS

• Jason Novak, 44, Yankton, was arrested Monday on a probation hold.

• Justin Brandt, 33, Yankton, was arrested Monday on a court hold.

ACCIDENTS

• A sheriff's office report was received at 9:10 a.m. Monday that a mailbox was struck near 309th St. and 434th Ave., Yankton.

TYNDALL — The St. Leo Altar Society is holding a Soup Kitchen on Sunday, Jan. 20, running from 10:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m. at the St. Leo Parish Center, 100 E. 20th Ave., Tyndall.

They will be serving chili, beef vegetable, and chicken noodle (with homemade noodles) soups, chicken salad sandwiches and taverns, as well as a selection of desserts and pies and beverages.

Public is invited. A freewill donation will be accepted.

AgriVisions 2013 To Feature Ag Professor

First Dakota National Bank will host AgriVisions 2013 featuring Dr. Elwynn Taylor at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 22, at the Best Western Kelly Inn, 1607 East Highway 50, Yankton. Farmers, Agri-Business professionals and business owners are invited to attend.

Taylor is a professor of Ag meteorology at Iowa State University. He is a consultant to state and national planning and climate (flood and drought) response committees and agencies. He consults to numerous financial, legal, and agricultural firms and agencies. Dr. Taylor's vision of megatrends in technology, climate and society opens the horizons of our enigmatic world.

Nate Franzen, First Dakota's Agri-Business Division Manager, states, "Dr. Elwynn Taylor is an excellent speaker and will provide his insights on how to manage weather conditions. His extensive knowledge and understanding of the world around us will enlighten and entertain."

Elwynn Taylor adds, "I focus my presentations so they are immediately useful in the management of business and life. Join us at AgriVisions 2013 and I will explain the complexities of our world in a clear, concise and pleasant manner."

AgriVisions 2013 begins with registration from 6:30-7 p.m. and Dr. Taylor's presentation at 7 p.m. Call today, 605-665-4904 or 800-657-5826, to reserve a seat.

75 YEARS AGO

50 YEARS AGO

Wednesday, January 16, 1963

• The pulse of the 1963 South Dakota legislature quickened Tuesday with the introduction of two controversial bills. They were ones to lift the ban on non-resident waterfowl hunting and to require retail stores to obtain licenses to sell animal medicines.

• Plans and specifications for the renovation and up-dating of Yankton Junior High School building have been ordered from the school's architect, preparatory to the asking of bids. A consultant from a Sioux City architectural firm met with the Board of Education Monday night to go over the final orders.

25 YEARS AGO

Saturday, January 16, 1988

• A climb in Yankton city sales tax revenues since 1980 indicates an improved local economy, City Manager, William Ross said Friday. Yankton County had the best showing for sales tax collection increased in the state in 1987, including an 11.5 percent increase for the first half of 1987. It was the highest increase among the state's larger counties.

• The Census Bureau will visit area residents Jan. 19-23 to collect data on the labor force, according to William F. Adams, director of the bureau's Denver regional office. This month the agency also is collecting data on displaced workers-those who have lost a job in the past five years because of a plant closing, elimination of a shift, or a job cut-back for various reasons.

Thune

deficit is a stronger economic recovery, Thune said.

"When people are working, people are investing, they are making more money, they are paying more taxes and government revenues go up," he said. "Getting growth back into our economy along the lines of more historic patterns, I think, is incredibly important."

A tax code with fewer loopholes and special interest provisions would be a step in the right direction, according to the senator.

"If we were to do something to simplify the tax code, to make it more fair, more clear and lower the rates," Thune said, "I think it would unleash a period of economic growth in this country unlike anything we've seen in a long time."

Thune noted that productive negotiations between members of both parties will be needed to enact these and other needed changes. He also said the greatest responsibility for the political system's future success or failure lies with President Obama.

"There is only one American among 307 million Americans who can sign a bill into law, and that's the President of the United States," Thune said. "We have one commander in chief, one individual, I think, who is capable of providing the leadership that is necessary to get things done. It's going to take that to get Congress — members on both sides — to work together. I hope the president will recognize what's at stake and really get himself into these discussions. It's going to take, obviously, some give and take on both sides."

The senator indicated that the necessary action that will soon be needed to on the nation's debt limit will be such an opportunity.

"Given the uncertainty that we just went through in December, and even given the great need for the fiscal reform that you just described, aren't we risking hurting the economy by tying these reforms to the debt ceiling increase?" Barry Vickrey asked.

"If you look historically at least in the last three decades, every major deficit reduction package has occurred around the debt ceiling increase," Thune replied.

"There's a precedent we're dealing with here. In August 2011, the principle we operated on was for every dollar increase in the debt ceiling, they ought to get a dollar of spending reductions or government reforms that would score a savings in the budget to actually deal with the debt."

He told the Vermillion crowd that to get people to the negotiating table, "you have to have incentives. And there isn't a lot of incentive right now, in my view, with the president on the spending side unless there's something he wants."

"He's saying you can't hold the debt limit hostage to get government spending reforms, but if you don't do it there, you might be able to do it on a continuing resolution," Thune said. "But there's very little incentive then for the president to do anything serious on entitlement programs. I would hope that we not look at this as an obstacle but as an opportunity to try to do something really meaningful in the area of deficit reduction."

County

to obtain a permit before installing drainage tile.

The 37 permits accounted for 299,950 feet of drainage tile valued at $539,900.

One large project that could be a big boost to Yankton County in 2013 is the grain facility being proposed by Dakota Plains Ag Center for Napa Junction. Officials have said the value of that development would be approximately $30 million.

In other business Tuesday, the commission agreed to allow a paramedic from the Yankton County EMS to join and train with the Yankton Police Department's SWAT team.

Commissioner Garry Moore said he would like to have two paramedics trained to provide some redundancy if one can't make a call, but Lt. Mike Burgeson of the SWAT team said purchasing equipment for two paramedics is not in his budget for the year. A second paramedic will likely be asked to join next year, he added.

In a separate agenda item, Yankton County EMS Administrator Steve Hawkins asked the commission for guidance on a policy for charging organizations for having an ambulance and crew on site for an event. Commissioners felt the service should be provided for free to entities that have a 501(c)(3) designation.

Hawkins also informed the commission that his department fielded 1,702 calls in 2012, which was about 20 calls shy of a record.
