to deal with that.”

Because of DAR's efforts, Brasel, who also serves as the animal control officer for the Yankton Police Department, said only three dogs were euthanized by the city in 2012. In those cases, the dogs were either too sick or aggressive to be placed with a family, she stated.

DAR couldn't have accomplished all it did without the assistance of volunteers to foster the dogs, walk them and provide financial assistance. Local veterinarians and businesses also played a large role in providing health care, money and equipment.

“I want to thank everyone for the support,” Brasel said. “That is the fuel that keeps us going.”

It hasn't always been easy, they admit.

“We had sessions where we wondered if we could go on anymore. It takes up so much time,” Brasel said. “It's not all hugs and kisses. It's a lot of cleaning up poop, too.”

The DAR members hope more people will spay and neuter their dogs so there are fewer canines that end up without homes.

Many people, the DAR founders say, have excuses for not having the procedures done. They don't find any of them convincing.

“If you can't afford to take care of your dogs, you shouldn't have them,” Steinberg said.

Added Brasel, “It makes them a nicer pet.”

All animals that come into DAR are spayed and neutered. They are also given updated shots.

As always, DAR says it could use more dog walkers, foster homes and monetary donations.

“When people donate $5, that can vaccinate a dog. That's a lot of help right there,” Brasel said. “Our work is all volunteer. Barb and I do not collect a paycheck. The thing is, we really need to keep the money coming in to go to the dogs. We will continue as long as we have funds to continue.”

The rewards the DAR founders receive are not material, according to Brasel.

“The great payment is when somebody says, ‘Thank you,’ or I'm driving down the street and I see a dog that we helped find a home for being walked by an owner with a big smile on their face.”

she hit him on the back. The infant later died.

Jones' attorney, Stuart J. Dornan, told The Associated Press that his client will plead not guilty. Dornan said Jones was released from jail after a judge reduced her bond from $500,000 to $100,000. A preliminary hearing is scheduled for March 21.

The manslaughter charge “was a shock to her,” Dornan said.

Investigators say Jones was ordered to stop practicing medicine in Nebraska without a license in 1999, and there are no records that she ever applied for a license. South Dakota authorities issued a similar order.

Yankton Library Offering New Lapsit Sessions

The Yankton Community Library, 515 Walnut, has announced the next session of the lapsit program, “Baby and Me.”

A library lapsit program is an interactive program for infants, birth through 12 months, and one parent or caregiver. Infants sit on the lap of or on the floor with the adult. Programs run approximately 20 minutes. Lapsits typically incorporate rhymes, songs, short stories, board books, bubbles and shaker instruments. The facilitator guides parents/caregivers in one-on-one interactions with their baby that stimulate brain development, while strengthening bonding.

“Our Baby and Me” lapsit program will be held each Wednesday from 11-11:20 a.m. in the library meeting room. Stop by or call the library, 668-5275, to preregister you and your child.

The “Baby and Me” program continues through Feb. 27. For additional information, call the library at 668-5275.

P&D To Dispose Of Submitted Photos

Farber Statue Is Backdrop For USD Fundraiser

VERMILLION — For $15, students, faculty, alumni and friends of the University of South Dakota can enjoy a fun way to keep track of 2013 through the eyes of a unique campus landmark.

The University of South Dakota Mock Trial Team's William O. “Doc” Farber 2013 Statue Calendar shows photos of the Farber statue in unique situations and clothing, including Valentine's Day flair or highlighting USD's rivalry with South Dakota State University. The calendar was created by USD Creative Services and student members of the mock trial team, who spent time last fall preparing the props and taking photos of the decorated statue. All proceeds from calendar sales will be used to support a scholarship for a USD Mock Trial student.

Farber, who died March 24, 2007, at age 96, served as chairman of the USD Department of Political Science for 38 years. He retired from teaching at USD full-time in 1976 but devoted most of his life to public service. In 1951, Farber established the state's Legislative Research Council to provide state legislators access to unbiased research and information on important topics. The life-sized statue of Farber, located on the terrace of Dakota Hall, was dedicated on campus in 2002 in recognition of his lifelong leadership and accomplishments for both USD and the state.

To order a calendar, contact Cheryl Hovorka at Cheryl.Hovorka@usd.edu or call (605) 677-5702. Checks should be made payable to Farber Fund #2 and mailed to Hovorka at the Department of Political Science, University of South Dakota, 414 E. Clark Street, Vermillion, SD 57069.

ON THIS DATE

75 YEARS AGO

Saturday, January 22, 1938

• Beautiful displays of the aurora borealis were visible in Yankton both last night and early this morning. At about 6:40 a.m. today there was an exceptionally brilliant display, probably the brightest that has been seen in this latitude in several years.

• Registration for children eligible for kindergarten will take place on Monday, January 24. All children five years of age or who will be five before April 1 are eligible to register.

50 YEARS AGO

Tuesday, January 22, 1963

• Sheriff Barney Boos said Monday he and his officers had found 15 to 20 bottles, mostly whiskey, and a number of potential weapons in a search of the county jail here (Sioux Falls).

• Plans for the figure skating exhibition and ice skating contest at the Yankton boat basin on Sunday were reviewed at a breakfast meeting of the committee in charge of the event conducted by Jim Fitzgerald, chairman, this morning at the Hotel Charles Gurney.

25 YEARS AGO

Friday, January 22, 1988

• South Dakota telephone customers questioned in a survey were about evenly split between supporting and opposing a bill that would partially free Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. from state regulation.

• The South Dakota House on Thursday reversed an earlier vote and rejected a measure that would have given cities more flexibility in spending the second penny of a sales tax they impose.
