USD Named Top Military-Friendly School

VERMILLION — The University of South Dakota has been named a Top Military-Friendly University by Military Advanced Education.
From community colleges to state universities, online universities and nationally-known centers of higher learning, Military Advanced Education's 2014 Guide to Military-Friendly Colleges & Universities provides potential students with information about institutions that go out of their way to give back to men and women in uniform. Military Advanced Education cited USD for having support services like the Student Veterans Resource Center on campus to assist active duty and veteran students. USD was also praised for generating events that annually promote military service and veterans within the community, including a Veterans Day Community Supper, the annual Military Appreciation Football Game, cords for graduating students and Veterans Week activities.
Criteria used to designate institutions as Top Military-Friendly included the flexibility of online learning options, extent of transfer credits accepted by degree level, on campus ROTC programs, Servicemember Opportunity Colleges participation, support provided to families of service members and full-time counselors trained in veteran-specific mental health concerns.
"We believe the Guide serves as an invaluable tool for both education services officers and transition officers when advising service members about their educational opportunities," said Kelly Fodel, MAE editor.
Military Advanced Education serves education services officers and transition officers at every U.S. military installation, along with the service members they counsel. Published 10 times yearly, MAE's editorial coverage includes exclusive interviews with military executive leadership, educators, and members of Congress; best practices; career and transition spotlights, servicemember, school, and program profiles, and periodic special reports.
For online access to the 2014 Guide to Military-Friendly Colleges and Universities, visit www.mae-kmi.com or pick up a copy of the December 2013 issue of Military Advanced Education.

State Awards $227K To Rural Hospitals

PIERRE — Nineteen rural hospitals in South Dakota will receive a total of $227,409 in federal funding for projects to improve patient safety and access, reduce medication errors, reduce hospital readmissions and improve operations.
The federal Medicare Rural Hospital Flexibility Program funding comes through the South Dakota Department of Health. Over the last 13 years, rural hospitals in South Dakota have received more than $4,356,000 in direct awards through the program.
Hospitals must be Medicare-certified as critical access to be eligible for the funds. Critical access hospitals receive a higher Medicare reimbursement rate and are eligible for federal funding for improvement projects. There are currently 38 critical access hospitals in South Dakota.
"This funding helps rural hospitals make direct, positive impacts on patient care and health outcomes," said Doneen Hollingsworth, Secretary of Health. "It's an important tool for critical access hospitals working so hard to maintain essential health care services in our rural areas."
Hollingsworth noted that sustaining essential healthcare services in rural and underserved areas is a key objective of the department's 2020 initiative.
Area hospitals receiving Medicare Rural Hospital Flexibility Program direct awards are listed below.
• Platte, Platte Health Center/Avera, $11,500
• Vermillion, Sanford Vermillion Medical Center, $14,646
• Viborg, Pioneer Memorial Hospital, $5,000
