now with the cold weather." As part of his efforts to make the windows historically accurate, Brunick is creating the storm windows utilizing the same type of joinery — through mortise and tenon — that was used in the original windows. The tenon, a projection on the end of a piece of wood, is inserted into the mortise, a cavity cut into another piece. The joint is then pinned with a nail.

Such joints are known for their simplicity, strength and reliability, Brunick said.

"The wood is allowed to expand with moisture and contract with dryness," he said. "By not having this glued, you're allowing the wood to do what it needs to do without breaking the glue Brunick added that the fact that most of the original windows are still salvageable is a testament to the type of structure used.

These windows have been here since 1909, and they're still holding up," he said. "If the building would have had regular maintenance, there wouldn't be much of an issue. But it sat vacant for so long. If these were newer models that were glued together, we'd be replacing all of them.

In addition to making the windows with the periodspecific structural techniques,

Brunick said he also is using vintage machinery for accuracy pur-

"If we could, we got the actual equipment they used when the windows were made," he said. "But we also had to get some that were a little newer that basically do the same thing.'

Once the weather warms up, Brunick will start the rest of the work to complete the storm windows. This includes painting a primer, installing the glass, glazing and more painting.

Warmer weather also will allow work to be done on the original sash windows.

Once the windows are taken out, they will be steamed to remove the glaz-

'We're restoring what's already there, so whatever parts are bad, I'll have to make pieces and parts for using the same method.

The roof leaked for years and years and soaked them, so there's nothing left on those," he said. "We'll end up re-manufacturing them."

The fact that the joints are pinned instead of glued will allow the maximum amount of material to be saved, he

"That's the beauty of the way the windows were made," Brunick said. "You can take them apart and just replace one piece.'

Like the storm windows, the sashes then will be reassembled, glazed and painted.

While the goal is to replace as little material as possible, Brunick said many windows on the north side of the building likely will have to be completely replaced

Bieber Exits Jail After DUI Arrest

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A sober-looking Justin Bieber was released from jail Thursday following his arrest on charges of driving under the influence, driving with an expired license and resisting arrest. Police say they stopped the 19-year-old pop star while he was drag-racing down a Miami Beach street

Bieber was arrested after police said they saw him heading down a residential street in Miami Beach in a yellow Lamborghini at twice the speed limit. Officers say he had an expired license, was initially not cooperative when he was pulled over and smelled of alco-

Police say Bieber later admitted that he had been drinking, smoking marijuana and taking prescription medication. R&B singer Khalil Amir Sharieff was arrested in the same incident. He is charged with driving under the influence. Police said Khalil was driving a Ferrari.

Bieber and Khalil, wearing bright red jail fatigues, made their initial court appearance via a video link from jail. They remained silent while defense attorney Roy Black negotiated bond. Bieber's bond was set at $2 500 Khalil's $1,000.

Black, a high-profile lawyer whose clients have included Rush Limbaugh and William Kennedy Smith, said he thought the case would proceed "hopefully as any other case would" in light of Bieber's celebrity status.

Authorities say Bieber was arrested after police saw him and Khalil racing two luxury vehicles down the street at 4:09 a.m., with two other vehicles apparently being used to block off the area. Police say Bieber was clocked at 55 mph to 60 mph in a 30 mph zone. Earlier Thursday, police chief Ray Martinez said at a news conference that the singer was initially not cooperative when the officer pulled him over. Martinez said the singer also had an invalid Georgia driver's license and admitted to scription medication and drink-

According to the arrest report, Bieber "had slow deliberate movements" and a look of stupor on his face when the officer ordered him to exit his vehicle. Bieber was placed under arrest after repeatedly refusing to put his hands on his vehicle so the officer could pat him down to look for weapons, the report said. It says he cursed several times at the officer and demanded to know why he was being arrested.
