Bill Would Let SD Lawmakers Carry

PIERRE (AP) — Saying they were afraid of being attacked while on the job, members of a South Dakota legislative committee approved a bill on Tuesday that would allow elected officials to carry guns in the Capitol and county courthouses.

State law currently permits only law enforcement officials and judges to carry guns in those public buildings. The bill would expand the law to legislators and other elected officials, as long as they have state permits to carry concealed weapons.

Supporters on the House Local Government Committee, which voted 8-5 to endorse the plan, said lawmakers have been particularly worried about security since former Arizona U.S. Rep. Gabby Giffords was shot in 2011. Giffords, 43, is still recovering from a brain injury she suffered when a mentally ill man shot her in the head as she met with constituents outside an Arizona shopping center. Six people were killed in the attack.

Rep. Stace Nelson, R-Fulton, said the measure would give lawmakers and other elected officials the ability to protect themselves.

But representatives of law enforcement agencies, lawyers, local governments and the courts said they want the law to remain in its current form. They testified that law officers would have a tough time identifying public officials or others who might be allowed to be armed in those public buildings.

Oponents also said armed legislators would not make the Capitol any safer.

SD Panel: Expand Abuse Laws

PIERRE (AP) — South Dakota's domestic abuse laws should be expanded to cover dating couples who don't live together, a state legislative committee recommended Tuesday.

The Senate Judiciary Committee also approved some other measures intended to protect abuse victims and their children.

Sen. Deb Soholt, R-Sioux Falls, who chaired a summer study that examined the state's domestic abuse laws, said the law needs to be changed to protect people in dating relationships who do not live with their abusers. The law also should be changed to protect pregnant women who do not live with their abusers, she said.

Current law defines domestic abuse as physical harm, attempted harm or the infliction of fear of harm committed by family or household members against spouses, former spouses, some relatives, people who live or have lived in the same household or people who have a child together.

The main bill approved by the legislative committee Tuesday would broaden the coverage to people who are in or have been in a significant romantic relationship with each other or are expecting a child with each other.

"It's not always about the logistics of where you live. It's about the relationship," Soholt said.

Bill Would Ensure Reading Skills

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — A bill that would keep third graders from moving to the next grade if they don't meet reading standards faced opposition at a hearing in the Nebraska Legislature.

Sen. Scott Lautenbaugh of Omaha introduced the bill, which was presented to the Education Committee on Tuesday. Parents and those representing education associations were among the opposition to the bill. A former state board of education member testified in support of the bill and two people testified in a neutral position.

Lautenbaugh says the bill comes from education reform efforts that were successful elsewhere, particularly in Florida.

The bill would also establish a grading system for school performance and would provide for alternative ways to earn a teaching certification.

Gov't Must Pay In Seizure Case

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The federal government has gotten a new bill in its failed attempt to seize more than $1 million from a California woman, who says the money is her life savings earned over years as an exotic dancer.

A federal judge on Monday ordered the government to pay nearly $40,000 to cover Tara Mishra's legal bills in the fight over the money, seized in a 2012 Nebraska traffic stop.

An attorney for Mishra, of Rancho Cucamonga, Calif., says his client has already gotten a check for more than $1.07 million, plus interest. Now, the U.S. Attorney's Office will pay her $39,035 to cover her legal fees.

Government lawyers had said the seized money was connected to illegal drugs, but a judge found that Mishra showed she had earned the money legally.

Wismer To Run For SD Governor

BY BOB MERCER
State Capitol Bureau

Wismer

PIERRE — The Legislature's most persistent critic of the 2011 budget cuts said Tuesday she will start gathering signatures on her candidacy petition to run for governor.

Most of the Legislature's Democrats turned out to support Rep. Susan Wismer of Britton as she made her announcement at the state Capitol.

"I know it will be an uphill battle," Wismer said.

If she wins the Democratic primary June 3, Wismer would be the first woman to be the nominee for governor of one of the major political parties.

Wismer said she wants to talk to voters about the budget cuts passed by the Legislature at the request of then-new Gov. Dennis Daugaard, a Republican, three years ago.

She said there were choices that could have been made, rather than cuts across the board that were in most instances 10 percent.

"I want to explain to the rest of the state what those choices were and what my priorities are," Wismer told reporters.

The 58-year-old accountant is the second Democrat to declare a candidacy for governor. The other is Joe Lowe of Piedmont, who was the state's wildlands fire chief.

The filing deadline for statewide candidates' petitions is March 25.

Wismer said her campaign won't hit high gear until after April 15. She wants to focus on finishing the legislative session, which ends March 31, and tax season.

She said Lowe is a credible candidate but she is a life-long resident of South Dakota and a business owner with six years of experience in the Legislature.

Wismer comes from a strong Democratic tradition in Marshall County. Her grandfather was state Sen. Art Jones and her uncle was state Sen. Curt Jones.

She said extremists have come to dominate politics and "common-sense Democrats" are "forfeiting the game" when they don't participate. Unless moderates get involved in her campaign, she expects to have a difficult time.

"I'm a centrist," Wismer said. "I don't have to be very far to the left of the group in power because the pendulum has swung so far to the right."

The campaign began with a small hiccup. News media received notice on Monday that she would a news conference Tuesday in the Capitol rotunda about her political plans for 2014.

The rotunda was packed with AARP members during lunch hour Tuesday listening to a presentation from state Attorney General Marty Jackley.

Her announcement was moved down one floor. House Democratic leader Bernie Hunhoff of Yankton introduced her. He was the Democrats' nominee for governor in 1998.

Wismer acknowledged she didn't decide until recently to run.

Rumors circulated last year she might be a candidate, after South Dakota Democratic Party officials distributed a new photo of her to news outlets.

Democratic voter registration is at its lowest point in 20 years.

"I hope to help a few more people believe in the process this year," Wismer said.

Wismer serves on the Legislature's Joint Committee on Appropriations, the panel that oversees state government's budget.

She has sponsored only a few pieces of legislation, including an attempt to increase the state sales tax to 5 percent from 4 percent.

Daugaard is planning to seek re-election but hasn't made a formal announcement. So far one other Republican, former state Rep. Lora Hubbel of Sioux Falls, plans to run.

An independent candidate, Michael Myers of Centerville, has also announced he's running.

SD House Calls For Audit Of Fed

BY BOB MERCER
State Capitol Bureau

PIERRE — Republican ranks splintered Tuesday in the state House of Representatives over a resolution calling for Congress to order an audit of the Federal Reserve.

The Federal Reserve is a target of criticism from various parts of the Republican Party nationally. Those same beliefs were evident among some legislators Tuesday, as their debate took a serious tone for what is a non-binding statement.

The resolution was adopted 43-25. The 17 Democrats and eight of the Republicans voted against it.

The Federal Reserve already is audited annually and the results are published as part of an annual report that is on the federal website, according to Rep. Ray Ring, D-Vermilion.

The Republicans who spoke for the resolution cited many of the same slogan-like lines, such as "The Federal Reserve is not federal and there are no reserves" spoken by Rep. Steve Hickey of Sioux Falls.

Prime sponsor of the resolution, HCR 1007, was Rep. Dan Kaiser, R-Aberdeen, who's shown an interest in monetary issues during his two years as a legislator.

"They're a private bank that operates in secrecy," Kaiser said in his remarks opening the debate.

Kaiser as is custom received an opportunity at the end of the debate for a final response. He noted Ring's comment that the Federal Reserve went to the edge of its authority in responding to the 2008 financial crisis.

"I want to know for sure if they acted within their legal bounds," Kaiser said.

The Republicans who voted against the resolution were Lance Carson of Mitchell, Ann Hajek of Sioux Falls, Tim Johns of Lead, Mark Mickelson of Sioux Falls, Fred Romkema of Spearfish, Tona Rozum of Mitchell, Mike Stevens of Yankton and Dick Werner of Huron.

House members agreed 66-0 to support a resolution commemorating the addition of "under God" to the Pledge of Allegiance. Its prime sponsor was Rep. Stace Nelson, R-Fulton.

Both resolutions now go to the Senate for consideration.
