MMC isn't keeping the Saint John's Bible under wraps, Henrickson said. An entire wall of his office is filled with a white board with a master calendar for scheduling appear-

"We have great plans for the heritage editions during this year," he said. "We want to reach the largest audience possible so the greatest number of people can experience it.'

The first public open house with The Saint John's Bible (TSJB) will be held at 1-4 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 8, in the Mount Marty College Library.

We thought it would work best to hold the open house on a Sunday afternoon. We plan to show a 27-minute video on the Bible, and people can go through the line and read the heritage editions," Henrickson said.

We purchased two stands to hold the two sets. People can spend time with (each volume) — see it, spend time with it, enjoy it and appreciate

While the public is allowed to touch the books, they must first wash their hands, Henrickson said. An escort will stand alongside the display to ensure the editions are handled properly. At other times, the books will remain on display but locked in a case for safety. In addition, the Feb. 24 Spring Benedictine Lecture will feature Tim Ternes, director of The Saint John's Bible, in Marian Auditorium at 7 p.m. The interactive presentation will be followed by a book viewing.

Ternes told the Press & Dakotan he highly anticipates next month's visit to the MMC campus and the heritage editions' year-long appearance at the Catholic college.

'It is always exciting to introduced The Saint John's Bible (TSJB) to a new and engaged audience," he said in the email interview. "The work was made to be shared, and I am grateful to the people of Mount Marty for helping to make that goal possible. "My presentation will give a history of the project and how it was made as well as involve the audience in engaging guided imagery discussions of several of the artworks in the

Those attending Ternes' presentation will also experience the rare opportunity to view selected volumes of The Saint John's Bible following the presentation.

"The creation of the original of TSJB took 23 artists almost 15 years to complete," he said. "The reproduction of TSJB known as the Heritage Edition took several years to make, as well. The original was written on calfskin vellum with quills fashioned from turkey, swan or goose feathers. The copies are lithograph.'

A separate team worked on the illustrations, known as illuminations, Ternes said.

"Six people worked on the calligraphic artistry of the project, and there was also a team of artists that did the artworks," he said. "The calligraphers did a bit of artwork but focused on the lettering.

The Saint John's Bible and the heritage editions incorporate modern events and artwork to bring relevance for today's reader, Ternes said. The Genealogy of Christ incorporates strands of DNA. The Luke Anthology has an image of the Twin Towers tucked in an image which deals with the need to forgive," he

"Imagery from the Hubble Telescope is found in the Image of the John Frontispiece — The Word Made Flesh in reference to the cosmic nature of the word. The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse includes modern tanks and oil wells in reference to the battles we fight today. Cancer cells and images of the leprosy and AIDS viruses are also found in the Horsemen as modern forms of pestilence." The original pages of TSJB have been on tour to museums around the country, Canada and the United Kingdom since 2005, Ternes said. Approximately 1.5 million people have seen the exhibitions.

Henrickson noted the Saint John's Bible history and the heritage editions will play focal roles in academics and campus activities throughout the year.

The Center for Active Learners (CAL) will offer a February class focusing on The Saint John's Bible, Henrickson said.

"Lelia Elder, one of our instructors for the CAL course, was one of 200 people who attended a workshop sponsored by the calligraphers," he said. "Our course will incorporate art, calligraphy, Biblical arts and theological perspectives." A Noon Forum, led by Dr. Theresa Lafferty, will take place March 26 in the Roncalli South Dining Room. Another public viewing of the Bible will be held prior to the annual Stations of the Cross dramatic presentation held in Marian Auditorium March 31. "On April 5, we plan to take (the volumes) to the Yankton Federal Prison Camp, and we have plans to take it to our Watertown campus,' Henrickson said. "They are also looking to use our heritage editions during the Baccalaureate Mass in May. On June 26-28, we have our alumni reunion weekend. For October 2015. this will be our art show with the illuminations. People can contemplate the VisioDivina at that time, as we will have 10 illuminations on display at the art gallery located across the hall from the Marian Auditorium the-Henrickson plans to schedule other open houses, which will be announced throughout the course of the year. He will also coordinate requests from groups and organizations in Yankton and surrounding communities who want to host the volumes for a program.

In addition, the public may visit The Saint John's Bible daily during the MMC Library hours of operation beginning Feb. 2.

Henrickson expects audiences will find deep meaning in the old-style features of the heritage editions combined with modern events such as 9/11 and the Holocaust

The Saint John's Bible took 15 years for completion of the process. A close view of Genesis shows the fine calligraphy which, along with the special artwork, makes The Saint John's Bible an artistic as well as religious treasure. Some pages contain corrections or omitted sections in the margins.

"They had six calligraphers working with 1,150 handwritten pages, and the six artists created more than 160 illuminations," he said. "You can look at and feel the gold leaf, which carries additional meaning because gold leaf is associated with the presence of

The unique calligraphy and artwork will create new experiences for viewers, Henrickson said.

"The illuminations show the contemporary spirit of the Bible," he said. "It features the wisdom of the prophets and shows a lot of turmoil in the history of the world.'

While the Saint John's Bible provides an eternal message, it also speaks to each age in a special way, Henrickson said. "It's not about looking at centuries-old words, but it's about bringing words to life in a way that we can relate to," he said. "It speaks differently for different people. It's a rare opportunity to spend time with and experience the Word in a new way." For more information about the Saint John's Bible, visiting the Yankton campus or arranging to host the exhibit, contact Henrickson at (605) 668-1495 or email him at ahenrickson@mtmc.edu.
