Former Neb. Senator Fighting Immigration Policies

BY NATE JENKINS

Associated Press Writer

LINCOLN, Neb. — A former state senator who was the main force behind a bill allowing some illegal immigrants to get in-state college tuition is trying to build a fund to fight immigration-related policies she says are divisive.

In a letter sent Thursday to supporters of the Nebraska Appleeed Center for Law in the Public Interest, former state Sen. DiAnna Schimek of Lincoln says policies such as Fremont's crackdown on illegal immigration "simply can't continue."

"You've seen over the past few months a few members of our state and communities have pursued misguided and harmful public policy designed to create fear and division and turn neighbor against neighbor," Schimek writes.

Supporters defend the policies Schimek is criticizing, saying they are designed to keep illegal immigrants from receiving public benefits and to slow illegal immigration because the federal government has failed to do so.

Schimek is asking for donations to the Appleeed Center, which advocates for the poor, to help ensure no other cities pass laws like the Fremont ordinance that would ban illegal immigrants from being hired or renting homes. Voters approved that ordinance last month and is expected to go into effect this summer provided it survives a legal challenge by the Nebraska ACLU.

Schimek also criticizes two developments: the government's decision against restoring state-funded prenatal care to hundreds of women including illegal immigrants, and the effort to enact an Arizona-style immigration law in Nebraska.

During the last legislative session, Gov. Dave Heineman and a majority of lawmakers opposed efforts to restore state-funded prenatal care to about 870 illegal immigrants and 750 legal residents. Those recipients lost the care in March after the federal government told the state to end its decades-long policy of allowing unborn children to qualify for Medicaid.

"I strongly disagree with Nebraska Appleeed and ... DiAnna Schimek in their desire to provide taxpayer-funded benefits to illegal individuals," Heineman said in a statement.

Schimek also mentions plans by state Sen. Charlie Janssen of Fremont to introduce an immigration-related bill during the legislative session starting in January.

Janssen says he doesn't yet know what the bill might contain. But he said it would likely include components of the Arizona law, which directs police to question people about their immigration status during traffic stops or other suspected violations if there is "reasonable suspicion" they are in the country illegally.

"It's incredibly misleading," Janssen said of Schimek's description of his efforts as designed to create fear, "and she's using her points to raise money for an organization that basically supports illegal immigration."

Becky Gould, Nebraska Appleeed's director, said immigration reform should be handled at the federal level, and efforts such as the Fremont ordinance indicate "a sort of toxic culture starting to take hold" in the state.

Gould said money raised with Schimek's help would help generate awareness of the Fremont ordinance's detrimental effects. She didn't rule out a legal challenge of the prenatal care decision.

She wouldn't say how her group might try to counter an Arizona-style immigration law in Nebraska, except to say, "There's a range of strategies we're looking at."

MIDWEST DIGEST

17,000 Lbs. Of Cheese Spill Onto S.D. I-90

SALEM (AP) — A semi loaded with more than 17,000 pounds of cheese crashed on Interstate 90 near Salem, spilling its cargo.

The highway patrol says I-90 was closed for about five hours after Thursday morning's crash. Traffic was rerouted as pay-loaders and dump trucks removed the cheese.

The patrol says the driver of the semi, 24-year-old Ronald Jessup of Washington, Utah, fell asleep at the wheel and struck an SUV being towed behind an RV. The semi rolled and ended up in a ditch, spilling 25 blocks of cheese weighing about 700 pounds each.

The patrol says Jessup wasn't hurt, but two people in the RV suffered non-life-threatening injuries. Jessup was charged with careless driving and driving with a suspended commercial driver license.

No number was listed for Jessup.

S.D. Corn Council Endows $2M Dean's Chair

SIoux FALL (AP) — The South Dakota Corn Utilization Council has endowed the dean's chair for the South Dakota State University's College of Agriculture and Biological Sciences.

The $2 million endowment was announced Thursday. SDSU alumnus Barry Dunn became the college's dean in May. He says the endowment will help as he builds his team and sets the college's course for the future.

Product Recalls: Miravalle Brand Peppers

EL MONTE, Calif. (AP) — The following recall has been announced: Miravalle Foods Inc. is recalling about 37,300 pounds of Miravalle brand Chile California peppers and Miravalle brand Chile Nuevo Mexico peppers because they could be contaminated with salmonella. Salmonella can cause serious and sometimes fatal infections in young children, seniors and others with weakened immune systems. No illnesses have been reported, according to the El Monte, Calif., company. The recalled peppers were distributed to some customers in California, Colorado, Utah, North Carolina, Nebraska, Idaho, Oregon and Nevada. For more information, consumers can call 626-575-7551.

Neb.'s Johanns A 'No' Vote For Kagan

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Republican U.S. Sen. Mike Johanns says he'll vote against confirming Elena Kagan to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Among other things, Johanns cited Kagan's lack of judicial experience, saying "not only does she lack experience on the bench, but her record clearly demonstrates a proclivity towards judicial activism."

Johanns also accused Kagan of having a hand in the U.S. Supreme Court's 2000 decision striking down a Nebraska ban on a late-term abortion procedure.

Johanns says that when the high court ruled against Nebraska's ban, it relied partly on a statement critical of the ban, written in part by Kagan while she was a policy adviser for President Clinton.

Johanns, who opposes abortion, was Nebraska's governor when the ban was struck down.

More Nebraskans Using Food Stamps

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — More Nebraska families are using food stamps as they try to get by with smaller paychecks, or no jobs at all.

Statistics from the Department of Health and Human Services show the number of households in the state getting food stamps last month had increased by more than 20 percent compared with June 2009.

At the end of last month, almost 72,000 households were getting food stamps, compared to 59,900 in June 2009.

Food stamps are provided through the federal Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program. Roughly $3.5 million more per month has been spent on food stamps in recent months in Nebraska compared to a year ago.

Rising food stamp use in Nebraska is in line with a national trend. Nationally, the number of households getting food stamps increased by 20 percent last fiscal year, with many states' food-stamp rolls growing by a third or more.

Todd Reckling, who oversees child and family services for the state, said the rate of increase in food-stamp participation has slowed recently in Nebraska. Only about 50 more households got food stamps in June than in May, a significantly slower rate of increase than in previous months, when a total of more than 12,000 households were added to the food-stamp program.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture recently indicated Nebraska does a good job running its food stamp program.

The USDA ranked the state first in the country for denying, suspending and terminating benefits when appropriate. Nebraska also was ranked fifth in correct approvals of applications and determination of appropriate benefit levels.
