forced outside to do it, and there is no place for them to safely dispose of their ash and cigarette butts," Perakslis said. "If the smoking ban passes this fall, then in front of the bars will be areas that will be very susceptible to a lot of cigarette butts. We are trying to get the stands in place as soon as possible."

The group, which has been working with Kopetsky's Ace Hardware to purchase the stands, hopes that once in place, they will drastically reduce the amount of cigarette waste seen on the streets of the area.

"What people don't realize is that if an area already has a lot of litter in it, it is easier to litter there," she said. "However, when people look around and don't see any litter, they are less likely to throw litter in that area. They will look for a better way to dispose of the waste. We have seen it with our cleanups: Areas that were terrible when we first started are seeing less and less litter."

Perakslis said she understands how smokers feel because she used to smoke herself. "We keep telling them, 'You can't smoke here, smoking is bad for your health' — but if they choose to smoke, we need to make it so they can safely dispose of their waste," she said. "We also received a grant to hand out personal portable ashtrays. We are handing them out to anyone we see smoking in the community."

The personal ashtrays safely hold the ash and butts of up to three cigarettes and fit in a person's pocket without getting hot or smelling like smoke, Perakslis said.

KYB has also been working very closely with the youth of the community this summer, believing that if children develop good recycling and reusing habits now, they will take them into the future.

"While we may not see a huge benefit to recycling now, the energy we save now will greatly affect what our children and grandchildren have in the future," Perakslis said. "It has been very rewarding seeing the number of children who have been getting involved."

Looking forward, Keep Yankton Beautiful officials plan to continue to help make the town a clean place to live.

"This community is so unusual in that they take care of each other," Perakslis said. "If there is a need, someone will step up to make sure that the need is met. It is an idyllic place to live, and KYB's goal is to help keep it that way and help make it even better into the future."

Sunday night's closing ceremonies at the athletic field.

Honoring the school seemed appropriate, especially with the introduction of the Viking festival theme and the weekend's alumni reunion, said festival co-chair Julie Hartmann.

"Superintendent Pat Kraning will speak at Friday's luncheon," she said. "We are also honoring the school at the closing ceremonies. Pat (Kraning) or Jim Larsen, chairman of the board, will accept the plaque."

The retiring of the Viking mascot went out with a bang this past school year, as the football team advanced in the state playoffs and both the boys and girls basketball teams qualified for the state tournament. The basketball cheerleaders also won the "Spirit of Six" award for the second straight year.

This year's Danish Viking Days follows the theme "Vikings Through The Years ... Welcome Home!" Entries are still accepted for Saturday morning's parade, and the all-school reunion will be held Saturday night.

The weekend will feature a variety of entertainment as well as traditional Danish food, costumes and music. The Daneville Heritage Museum will be open all three days from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Two Lutheran churches will hold events carrying very different meanings, Hartmann said.

"Our Savior's will have a catered meal in September for its 100th anniversary. But for Danish Days, they are having coffee and cookies after Joy Ibsen's presentation on Saturday afternoon at the church," she said.

"Joy's father was pastor at the church for several years, and she has a new book coming out with stories from Viborg and Denmark. Her sister, Karma, is part of the presentation."

On Sunday, Spring Valley Lutheran Church is hosting a fund-raiser lunch from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at the Community Center. The meal is open to the public, with the proceeds going toward the church building fund.

The church, located northwest of Viborg, was destroyed in last spring's fire. Hartmann belongs to the parish, which is holding its services at its sister church, Our Savior's in Viborg.

Danish Viking Days visitors will notice a number of changes in the business community. Christensen said. Lewis Drug is moving into a new pharmacy, taking over the two sites formerly used by Auto Doc and Peterson Body and Restoration. In turn, those two businesses have moved to new locations. In addition, a new travel agency has opened its doors.

"The only unknown is what is going into the current (Lewis) drug store building when it becomes vacant," he said. "But our past history shows that buildings don't stay vacant for long, especially on Main Street."

Friday's leadership luncheon will include a report on school, city and county achievements, Christensen said.

"The leadership luncheon kicks off the celebration and was started as part of the town's centennial in 1993. This is the 17th one, and every year marks an accomplishment," he said.

"With Danish Viking Days, we are celebrating our Danish heritage, but we are also celebrating our progress. We are a community that isn't standing still."

Hartmann agreed, noting Danish Viking Days itself represents a mix of pride and progress. "There has always been some kind of celebration, but this has really taken off since the centennial in 1993," she said. "Things have really kicked into high gear. It's very important that we celebrate our heritage, so we know where we came from before we move forward."

Immigrants List Mailed In Utah

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A list containing the names and personal information of 1,300 purported illegal immigrants has been mailed around Utah, terrifying the state's Hispanic community.

Gov. Gary Herbert wrote in a tweet Tuesday that he has asked state agencies to investigate the list — sent anonymously to several media outlets and law enforcement agencies. A letter accompanying the list demands that those on it be deported immediately.

Local advocates are decrying the list, saying whoever sent it is attempting to terrorize Utah's Hispanic community.

Most of the names on the list are of Hispanic origin. The list also contains personal information such as birth dates, workplaces, Social Security numbers, addresses and phone numbers. Names of children are included, along with due dates for pregnant women on the list.
