USD To Hosts Honors Choir Concert

VERMILLION — The University of South Dakota and the South Dakota American Choral Director's Association will present the 38th annual School Honors Choir Concert at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, July 29 at Slagle Auditorium on the USD campus.

Under the direction of guest conductor Dr. Brad Holmes, Millikin University, 150 of South Dakota's best high school choral musicians will perform several classical and contemporary musical selections, including Handel's "Lift Your Voice With Joy and Thanksgiving," J.P. Sweelinck's "Psalm 96," Roelof Temmingh's "Himne" and "Exulte Justi" by Brant Adams. USD Professor of Music Dr. Susan Keith Gray will serve as accompanist for the performance, which is the first choral concert in the recently renovated Slagle Auditorium.

Hundreds of students from across the state auditioned for the South Dakota All State Honors Choir. Students chosen for the choir will begin six days of rehearsal on Sunday, July 24 at the Muenster University Center Ballroom. Activities throughout the week for the 150-member choir include a dance, talent show, movies and a barbecue.

The South Dakota All-State Honors Choir was formed in 1974 to provide a quality musical experience for the state's top high school vocalists. Each year, one of South Dakota's universities or colleges hosts the event and the choir has been continued to be conducted by the nation's finest musical directors. This is the fifth time that USD has hosted this prestigious choral event. The South Dakota American Choral Directors provide leadership and staff for the week. Dr. David Holdhusen, director of choral activities at USD, is president of SD-ACDA.

For more information about the 38th annual High School Honors Choir Concert at USD, contact Holdhusen at (605) 677-5721 or e-mail David.Holdhusen@usd.edu. For more information about music at USD, contact the Department of Music at (605) 677-5274 or e-mail music@usd.edu.

Host Families For Exchange Students Needed

In August, Academic Year in America (AYA) is looking for Yankton families to host high school exchange students from all over the world.

This year, AYA is bringing hundreds of high school students to the U.S. to learn about American culture while living with volunteer host families and studying at high schools across the nation. American families have the unique opportunity to learn about the student's culture during this mutually rewarding exchange.

AYA can help families find the ideal student for their home. The result is an enriching, lifelong relationship with a young person from abroad.

In addition, for families looking to learn more about a specific culture or language, hosting a student is a fantastic way to experience the world without leaving home.

Students are ages 15 to 18 and arrive with full medical insurance, spending money, and the hopes of experiencing life in America through the eyes of a caring host family.

The students stay with their host for five or 10 months and attend the local high school.

Who can host a student through AYA? According to AYA Director Melanie French, an important aspect of the AYA program is that there are many types of people who can host.

"Just as there is no typical American famment of the laws within the jurisdiction. Chief Paulsen is, and always has been, able to fully perform the expectations of the position for which he was hired."

According to the police chief job description, he or she is to serve as the chief administrative officer of the police department; coordinate law enforcement and other public safety services for the City of Yankton; oversee the enforcement of all laws within its legal jurisdiction; and plan, coordinate, supervise and staff all activities of the department, including patrol, administration and communication.

After submitting his paperwork for the certification process last year, Paulsen said he did not get word back from the state about proceeding until January. The first training session since January was to be held in June. However, it was postponed until August because of flooding in Pierre, according to Jon Bierre, the training administrator with the South Dakota Division of Criminal Investigation.

The classroom training in Pierre occurs at least twice a year, Bierre said, and can be held three times, if the demand exists.

As long as Paulsen is not working in a law enforcement capacity, Bierre said the state has no rules governing whether or not a police chief must be certified.

"The requirement is for those who are employed as a law enforcement officer," he stated. "If the person is so employed, they must be certified within their first year to comply with the statute and administrative rule. If an officer was in this situation ... the department could certainly remove that person as an officer and re-employ them in non-law enforcement duties — dispatch, for example — until certification was obtained. It is my understanding that this same designation could apply in this case, in that the city could remove any law enforcement authority from the chief, and he could serve as an administrator only with no law enforcement power until he obtained certification."

Even though the job does not require Paulsen to be on the streets writing citations and arresting people, he said he is determined to get his law enforcement certification.

"It's paramount for the people underneath me that I go to that class (in August) and am certified in the state of South Dakota," he said. "It's just something I didn't get done, but the training was out of my hands."
