Gant earlier said he had no involvement in Powers' campaign supply business and did not benefit from it. He said he knew Powers was running the company while on his staff from January 2011 through May of this year, but asked him to shut it down after Adelstein and others questioned whether it was appropriate.

Adelstein last month asked the attorney general whether impeachment or removal from office would be warranted if an investigation found impropriety or misbehavior.

The senator said Friday he still wants Gant out of office. In a letter sent to the attorney general Thursday, Adelstein said he believes impeachment would take too long because the South Dakota Legislature doesn't meet again until January. He asked about using a state law that allows the governor to hold a hearing and remove another state official for misconduct, crime or gross incompetency.

"I'm hoping to have Gant either resign himself or have him be removed from office based on that law for lack of ability to run that office," Adelstein told The Associated Press.

A small house in eastern Yankton sustained moderate damage in a fire reported at approximately 6:30 p.m. Friday. Firefighters are shown tearing through the exterior around the front door in order to get to the blaze, which had moved into the walls. The fire, which started on the exterior of the structure, was blamed on a lit cigarette that slipped between the steps and the foundation of the house. The sparks also swept through a crawl space and into the attic area. The three residents were referred to the Red Cross for housing. No injuries were reported time of year, as corn approaches the tasseling stage. Stock dams and water resources for livestock are lower than normal for this time of year. Grass and alfalfa cutting for hay has yielded less than normal amounts this year as well, at least in part due to drought.

Wildland fire activity in western South Dakota has also been above normal for this time of year. Grasses and other fuels have experienced significant growth over the last couple of years, with the last several months providing optimum conditions for curing those fuels and creating extreme fire danger in many areas.

June 2012 climate records verify the dry and warm conditions that were experienced across much of the state. Vermilion and Canton had their driest June on record. Menno, Sioux Falls and Yankton recorded their second driest June on record. None of these cities had more than an inch of rain in June. Climate reporting locations in the northwest, northeast, and southeast were the driest. Aberdeen, Belle Fourche and several other locations reported more than 2.25 inches below average rain for the month.

Several locations tied or set new June all-time high daily temperature records, including Martin, Edgemont, Rapid City, Lead and Hill City. Nearly every climate reporting site reported above average temperature for the month, as much as eight degrees above average in the western part of the state. Most locations were two to six degrees above average for the month.

Some moderation in the temperatures is expected for the Yankton area beginning today (Saturday), as the dome of hot air that has dominated the region for more than a week slides to the southeast. Highs are expected to stay in the mid to upper 80s through the next five days.

For good measure, the Pan American Games trials were also held that same weekend — of the coming London Olympics.

One of the significant changes from previous 3D tournaments in Yankton is the location of the ranges. Utilizing animal targets, the ranges are located behind the Easton complex instead of out at Paddlewheel Point where they were last year because of flooding issues. The big thing is just getting the ranges ready," Cull said of the preparations. "We utilize our volunteers from all over the country and we work with inmates to help with grounds work, setting up animal targets and other stuff with the Olympic field.

sic also allows competitors who shot in all three events to vie for a new car or $10,000 during a shoot-off Saturday night.

'It's the top shooters in the country vying for those two prizes," Cull said of the event scheduled for 6 p.m. Saturday at the Olympic ranges southeast of the Easton Complex. The public is invited to attend.

"Big money brings out the big boys," he added.

Though archery is not typically viewed as a true spectator sport, Cull said events like the car shoot-off provide fans a chance to see top-level competi-

The First Dakota Bank Classic begins at 2 p.m. today and continues Sunday at 9 a.m. at the Olympic ranges southeast of the Easton complex. Archers will shoot arrows at varying distances — starting at 40 yards and working back to 60 yards.

"It's a fun format; there aren't many like that style where your target moves every 20 arrows," said Moore, who will be competing in the Bowhunter Freestyle division. "In this South Dakota weather, with the wind and the heat, it's pretty challenging to have to walk around all day.

"With this tournament, you don't have to walk in the heat; you just stand there.

As the third and final leg of the World Archery Festival 3 Star Tour, the First Dakota Bank Clastors up close and personal. The event will be held inside the Easton Complex at the new 70-meter indoor range — the first of its kind in the world.

"That's about as actionpacked as archery gets," Cull said. "They start at 10 yards and move back five until the last person is standing. That's unlike any other event. There's a lot of drama.

"You have literally have any age or discipline, male or female, eligible."

In addition to the tournaments themselves, there will also be manufacturers trade shows on site at the Easton Complex throughout the weekend. And though the booths and stands will draw interest, the additions to the complex might draw the biggest attention, Moore said.

'I don't know why the other guys from out of town wouldn't like it," he said, chuckling. "It's way better inside, especially the last few days. The fact that you can shoot the longer yardage inside is the icing on the cake.'
