A story that doesn't figure to garner much attention has certainly been a popular topic among those involved. In Saturday's Press & Dakotan, we published a story about the University of South Dakota volleyball program moving its home matches to a new wooden court on the second level of the DakotaDome in Vermillion.

Volleyball Matches At USD Are About To Have A Whole New Look

Starting this upcoming season, the Coyotes will play upstairs on the west end of the dome, in a more intimate setting next to the weight room. According to head coach Matt Houk, the area will seat up to 500 people, and will also include a new scoreboard, a new scorer's table and a new sound system.
