Kids Talk About God

What Is The Bible's Golden Rule?

BY CAREY KINSOLVING AND FRIENDS
Creators Syndicate

What did Jesus mean when he said, "Therefore, whatever you want men to do to you, do also to them?"

"If you are mean to someone, then they will start being mean back to you," says Blain, 7.

Brooke, 9, looks to agriculture to interpret the Golden Rule: "If we plant something good, we get something good back. But if you plant something bad, you get something bad back."

Every farmer knows that even the most fertile farmland will remain barren unless good seed is sown. It's the same with human relationships. The thing to remember is that not every seed sprouts and produces fruit. Because you never know which seed will sprout, you have to keep sowing good seed.

"If you are nice to another person, then they will probably be nice back to you. And so then you and he will be friends," says Daniel, 7.

Yes, you might even reap friends from the Golden Rule. There are few things in life more valuable than good friends.

"Don't tease or make fun of somebody, if you wouldn't want them to tease you," says Marci, 10. "Put yourself in the other person's shoes before you say or do something mean. Think of the consequences."

If we consistently live and act as though the entire universe revolves around us, we're going to reap a barren life. Because we're so busy tripping over our own selfishness, we'll never be able to put ourselves in anyone else's shoes.

For Christopher, 7, the Golden Rule is practical: "Show respect to other people. Today, I will not fight."

A minimal starting place for the Golden Rule would be to stop abusing others. The people on the receiving end of your abuse will be greatly relieved if you stop whatever you're doing that drives them crazy.

"Do what they want you to do, but don't boss them around," says Peyton, 12.

Most bad relationships revolve around a struggle for control. A story about improving marriages on network television featured a woman who treated her husband as though he were one of her three boys.

As an exercise, the marriage counselor recommended the wives go out to dinner with their husbands and resist all temptation to control. It was difficult, but the controlling wife asked her husband to choose what she should wear, where they should go and so forth. At the end of the evening, they were actually holding hands and showing genuine affection.

Obviously, control is not just a problem in marriages. It's part of the fall. Men and women want to control everything in their lives, including God. One thing is sure: God will never submit to our control.

God is a person with whom you can have a relationship. Like any person, he has feelings. We cause him grief and pain when we ignore him or don't treat him with the respect and honor he deserves. If you're a parent or grandparent, what is the one thing you want from your children or grandchildren? Love.

Jesus said, "This is my commandment, that you love one another as I have loved you" (John 15:12). Clearly, love is the essence of the Golden Rule.

Think about this: Go beyond the Golden Rule. Show more consideration to people than you would want for yourself.

Memorize this truth: "Therefore, whatever you want men to do to you, do also to them, for this is the Law and the Prophets" (Matthew 7:12).

Ask this question: Can you treat others with more consideration than you would want for yourself?

Shroud Of Turin Exhibit Set For Menominee

OMAHA, Neb. — In celebration of its 15th anniversary, Spirit Catholic Radio is bringing a traveling exhibit, titled "The Man of the Shroud," to nine different cities across Nebraska, including Menominee, during June and July.

The free exhibit will be on display July 15-20 at St. Boniface Parish in Menominee. For times, visit spiritcatholicradio.com.

The Shroud of Turin has long been venerated by the faithful and is believed by many to be the burial cloth of Jesus of Nazareth.

The exhibit will be on display at various parishes and Catholic high schools in cooperation with local Knights of Columbus councils.

The traveling exhibit, developed by the late Msgr. Giulio Ricci, president of the Roman Center for the Study of the Holy Shroud at the Vatican, includes as the centerpiece: a full-length photographic image of the Shroud made by the Eastman Kodak Co.

In addition, the exhibit contains a nearly life-size crucified corpus showing the wounds of Christ corresponding to the Passion narrative in the Gospel accounts and the wounds shown on the Shroud. It also contains 92 panels detailing the history and science of the Shroud.

"The Shroud was chosen to coincide with our 15th anniversary theme, 'Encounter Jesus,'" said Jim Carroll, executive director of Spirit Catholic Radio. "The Shroud brings the person of Jesus to something we can experience with our senses. My hope is that Jesus as a real person is something that can be carried with people after they view the exhibit. This is physical evidence that Jesus was a real person, and that he suffered and died, but of course, rose again."
