The men will be honored on semifinal Saturday of the South Dakota Amateur Baseball Tournament, Aug. 16 in Mitchell, then will be inducted into the SDABA Hall of Fame during a banquet slated for Saturday, Sept. 27 in Canova.

including quarterfinal games in 2009 and 2010. Frank also had a notable career at South Dakota State University, compiling the school's second-best single season batting

Bill Seeks To Disclose Finances Of College Sports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two congressmen have introduced a bill to require the NCAA, schools, conferences as well as the College Football Playoff to reveal how much money is flowing through college sports.

The Standardization of Collegiate Oversight of Revenues and Expenditures (SCORE) Act would require the NCAA to make public a standardized financial report for itself and release similar information for schools that already report the data to the NCAA. It also would affect conferences and any entity hosting a postseason competition.

U.S. Rep. David Price, a North Carolina Democrat, and U.S. Rep. Tom Petri, a Wisconsin Republican, introduced the bill. In a statement Tuesday, Price said it would allow "for the first apples-to-apples comparison" of revenues and spending throughout college sports.

NCAA spokeswoman Stacey Osburn did not immediately return an email Tuesday.

winless seasons. Point is, rarely does a driver recognize when to call it a career. The love of racing, the addiction to speed, the thrill of competition, can all cloud a driver's judgment and make it impossible to see they aren't what they once were. That's the case with Shepherd, who seems to have embarked on a journey to become the oldest at everything. He's the second-oldest race winner (he was 51 in 1993). He became the oldest driver to lead laps in a Nationwide race at 70, and last year he became the oldest driver to start a Cup race at 72. That's all allowed in a sport that often fails to set standards to ensure only the best compete at the top level. In racing, those who find the dollars needed to race get the seats -

— probably about $75,000 — to run for Circle Sport Racing at New Hampshire. For the second time this season, he was in the field with the big boys. But the big boys passed him again and again as Shepherd struggled with handling and perhaps meeting the minimum speed of 115 mph. NASCAR said Shepherd was not warned about failing to keep pace during the race. Shepherd did try to stay out of the way. But spotters alleged Shepherd couldn't hold his line at the bottom of the track and hit the corners at such a poor angle, his car would push into the center of the track. Logano spotter Tab Boyd tweeted he was "riding around like a rolling road block. Shepherd, though, put the blame on Logano and said his age was not a factor. 'When he laid close to me, it caused me to slip into him,' Shepherd said. "It's got nothing to do with my age or anything else. I've always said if I go out and I start hitting the wall and stuff, making mistakes, I'll get was involved in one glaring in-because he's 72. NASCAR must take a longer look at this because what Shepherd did 30 years ago or three years ago no longer applies. Father Time eventually catches up with everyone, and your eves aren't what they used to be, and your reflexes aren't so catlike and your hand-eye coordination isn't as sharp as you remember.
