Dave Says

Unauthorized Subletting

BY DAVE RAMSEY

Dear Dave,
 I own a rental property that brings in enough to pay the taxes and insurance with a little left over. Recently, I found out that my tenant, who just signed a new two-year lease, is subleasing the property for the short term as a vacation site. This kind of thing happened once before and is prohibited in the agreement. Do you think I should approach him about the situation or let it go until it becomes problematic?
 —Catherine

Dear Catherine,
 It's already a problem, because he's in violation of the lease agreement. Call him today and tell him to stop the sublease immediately. Let him know that he'll be evicted if anything like this ever happens again.

This may sound harsh, but an agreement is an agreement. You may not have experienced any big problems up until now, but what happens when he pulls this again and the next people who come in are a bunch of partiers? You could end up with broken windows, holes in the walls and a bad reputation. On top of all that, what if they leave and he doesn't have the money to fix things? It's all on you. Why? Because you lost control of your property!

As a landlord, I always try to be gentle and nice but really clear about things. But this guy needs to understand that you mean what you say in the lease agreement. Once more, and he's gone!

 —Dave

HEALING COMES FIRST

Dear Dave,
 I have a relative who recently entered a rehab center to treat her drug addiction. I've been trying to help with things on the outside, and recently I discovered she has about $20,000 in debt. This is in addition to the rent owed on her apartment. I don't have a lot of money, but do you think I should start trying to pay some of these bills for her?
 —Jeremy

Dear Jeremy,
 I'm really sorry to hear about your relative. Addiction is painful thing for the addict and for their family and friends. While what you're suggesting is noble, my advice would be to leave the debt alone. I would, however, notify her landlord of what's happened. If he won't hold her place, then get her stuff out and turn over the keys so he or she can find another tenant.

As far as the debt obligations are concerned, just let her creditors cry and whine. They're going to do that anyway, and you're in no position to help financially at this point. Once she's out and healthy again, one of the first things she'll have to do is recreate her life and income. When that's been done, then she needs to go back and make arrangements with her creditors.

But right now, she needs to concentrate on herself. And as her family, you need to pour as much love and support as you can into the healing process. You've got a great heart, Jeremy, but the money stuff can wait until she's out, healthy and established again. Then, if you want and have been able to save a bit, you might gift her a little money to help her get started again.

God bless you guys.
 —Dave

Yankton Benedictine Sisters Attend National Religious Vocation Conference

For two days, June 22-23, Vocation Directors from a five state area met at St. John's Abbey, Collegeville, Minn., to share "Best Practices." The practices shared will enhance the development of meaningful opportunities for those seeking religious life. One Yankton Benedictine, S. Eileen O'Connor, became the new Co-Coordinator of the five state region at the conference. S. Eileen O'Connor has served at Sacred Heart Monastery as Vocation Assistant for fourteen years. As co-coordinator she will be working with S. Hannah Vanorny OSB, Annunciation Monastery, Bismarck, N.D. The National Religious Vocation Conference is a professional organization of vocation ministers that presents religious life as a viable option in the Catholic Church. NRVOC promotes vocation awareness, invitation, and discernment to life as a religious sister, brother, or priest. NRVOC reflects all forms of religious life and provides educational opportunities, resources, and other supportive services for spiritual, professional, and personal growth. While in Collegeville, the Yankton Benedictines and twenty-three other religious gathered with the participants of the Youth Theology Program at Saint John's University.

State Treasurer Returns $15.7 Million In Unclaimed Property

PIERRE — State Treasurer Rich Sattgast returned nearly $16 million in unclaimed funds this fiscal year. That figure is up $5.6 million from 2014 when the state returned $10.1 million in unclaimed property. Unclaimed property refers to accounts in financial institutions, businesses and government agencies that have had no activity for three years or longer. The State of South Dakota acts as the custodian of lost property until it can be returned to the rightful owners.

"This last year we received over 4,000 claims from South Dakotans," said State Treasurer Rich Sattgast. "That's money getting into the hands of our citizens which ultimately makes its way into our economy and that's good for our state." Unclaimed Property is currently holding $69.1 million in unclaimed funds, but that amount is ever changing.

"Abandoned and forgotten property is turned over to the state throughout the year, so it's important to check the unclaimed property database regularly," Sattgast said. "Our office participates in numerous events across the state. Come visit us at one of the many fairs we're attending this summer and we'll help you check for unclaimed property in your name as well as assist you in filling out a claim form."

To check for unclaimed property, visit www.sdtreasurer.gov or call the unclaimed property hotline at 1-866-357-2547 to talk to an Unclaimed Property representative.
