"Brother Bear." She says her work on the "Toy Story" movies have been a joy.

"You can laugh and cry and enter their world," Harris says. "It's got everything. Another new element is that there's hope for the future for these toys."

• JEFF GARLIN

Voices: The colorful unicorn Buttercup.

Previous credits: Plays Larry David's agent in the TV comedy "Curb Your Enthusiasm."

Favorite toy as a child: Captain America doll.

The burly Garlin wasn't surprised when he was approached to voice a cute unicorn rather than a more manly toy. He says that kind of surprise voice casting is an example of the creative thinking at Pixar.

He likes the movie's main theme about age.

"This is a youth-oriented society but this film shows that it's not age, but being relevant, that's important," Garlin says. "These toys are relevant."

• KRISTEN SCHAAL

Voices: The computer-savvy triceratops Trixie.

Previous credits: Played Mel on "The Flight of the Conchords."

Favorite toy as a child: A doll.

Schaal's background is in stand-up comedy, where she's worked with several improv groups. For the film, she generally stayed close to the script.

"You basically say each line three or four times and try to give them different readings so they can pick. Occasionally, after I would do their line I would go for it and do some of my own lines."

The process went so smoothly, Schaal was done with her recording session in 30 minutes.
