Marlins: Rodriguez Will Remain Manager All Season

MIAMI (AP) — Edwin Rodriguez told the Florida Marlins' top executives last weekend that he would happily accept whatever job they wanted him to have.

Turns out, they want him to remain the manager. Marlins owner Jeffrey Loria told the team before its game in San Juan, Puerto Rico, on Tuesday night that Rodriguez will stay on as manager through the rest of the 2010 season. The club made the announcement in the second inning of its 7-6 victory over the New York Mets.

"I have to say, I was surprised. I just heard 30 minutes before the game," Rodriguez said with a grin. Rodriguez is the first native of Puerto Rico to manage in the major leagues. He was named interim manager last Wednesday when Florida fired Fredi Gonzalez, its all-time winningest skipper. Gonzalez was dismissed after going 276-279 in 3 1/2 seasons.
