Notice of 15 Day Comment Period Neighborhood Stabilization Program (NSP3) Plan

The public is invited to review and provide comments regarding the amended Neighborhood Stabilization Program (NSP3) Plan.

The Housing and Economic Recovery Act of 2008 initially provided an appropriation of funds for emergency assistance for redevelopment of abandoned and foreclosed homes and residential properties. The funding known as Neighborhood Stabilization Program is administered by South Dakota Housing Development Authority. South Dakota received $19.6 million in funding under the Neighborhood Stabilization Program.

Under Section 1497 of the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act of 2010, additional assistance under the Neighborhood Stabilization Program was authorized. South Dakota received an additional $5 million for NSP3 activities.

South Dakota Housing Development Authority has thus amended the Neighborhood Stabilization Program Plan to designate how South Dakota will allocate its NSP3 funds based on the NSP3 Plan as a substantial amendment to South Dakota's current approved Consolidated Plan and annual action plan.

Copies of the NSP3 Plan may be obtained without charge from South Dakota Housing Development Authority (SDHDA) at PO Box 1237, Pierre, SD 57501-1237, by calling (605) 773-3181 or (TTY) (605) 773-6107, or by visiting our home page at www.sdhda.org.

Persons who are interested in presenting comments on the NSP3 Plan may do so by sending the comments to SDHDA at PO Box 1237, Pierre, SD 57501-1237, faxing to (605) 773-5154, or by emailing them to peggy@sdhda.org. All comments must be received in SDHDA's office by 5 p.m. CT on June 15, 2011.

out-of-state, established in their own careers. Her younger brother was still in high school.

"It was really left up to me to come back, and bring the family together and try to make our farming operation a success following that tragedy," Noem said. "That's when I really started to get involved in government, because we were trying to run a business and my dad was only 49 years old when he was killed, and we had a problem right away in paying estate taxes."

The experience, she said, made her begin to question the role that government should play in serving people.

"I hope that this week, as you go through all of your activities, you'll say, 'What is the role of government? What is my role in the city, in the county, within my state, and how can I step up and make sure that this really works for the young couple would have had at their first Thanksgiving together. Another candidate used a Florence Nightingale theme as she is a nurse. There were tables from the 1950s and some with western themes.

"It has been great fun and neat to see the town getting dressed up for the celebration," Lackas said.

She is glad the interview process, which took place at the Queen's Tea, for the queen candidates is over. The candidates had to talk about their background and ties to Randolph and any community activities they are involved in. The last question for the queens was why they should be queen.

"Why should I be queen?" Lackas said. "I don't know. I have an aunt, sister-in-law, two nieces and friends all vying for the crown. Why I should get it and not one of them is beyond me!" Lackas and husband Neil are part of the Q125 planning committee also.

There will also be a king to reign over the festivities and the royal couple will be announced on Friday afternoon near the beginning of the weekend celebration. But Lackas laughs because if she is crowned queen, it might not be her husband who gets crowned king.

"The Randolph Volunteer Firemen are in charge of the beard contest and when they are done judging the beards, we will know who is king," Lackas said. Three judges

Jobs To Deliver Apple Keynote Next Week

BY PETER SVENSSON
AP Technology Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Apple Inc. CEO Steve Jobs will take a break from medical leave to deliver the keynote speech at next week's Apple conference, the company said Tuesday.

The keynote will feature a new "iCloud" service, the company said. It didn't explain what the service will do, but Apple has been in talks with all four major recording companies on allowing users to store their songs on Apple-run servers rather than on their home PCs, according to a person familiar with the matter.

The person was not authorized to speak publicly on the deals and spoke recently on condition of anonymity.

Jobs went on medical leave in January for unspecified reasons, handing over day-to-day control to chief operating officer Tim Cook. Investors were rattled because Jobs is seen as the creative force behind the company, crucial to shaping hit products like the iPod, iPhone and iPad.

Even while on leave, Jobs has remained involved in larger decisions at the company, and demonstrated the new iPad model at a news conference in March.

Apple shares rose $10.42, or 3.1 percent, to close at $347.83.

Apple's annual Worldwide Developers Conference kicks off Monday in San Francisco.

Jobs decision to appear at the conference indicates he believes iCloud will be another breakthrough service for Apple.

iCloud could give users a wide array of music for their iPhones, iPads and Wi-Fi-capable iPods, without having to connect them to their home PCs to transfer songs. Google Inc. and Amazon.com Inc. have recently launched similar services.

The Wall Street Journal reported Tuesday, citing unnamed sources familiar with the matter, that iCloud would allow users to scan their home music collections and have it duplicated in the "cloud" of Apple-run computers. That would remove the time-consuming hassle of having to upload every song to the online storage locker.

Eliminating that hurdle would give iCloud a leg up over the comparable services from Google and Amazon.com, which requires uploads of existing song collections. Neither Google nor Amazon has secured deals with the recording companies.

It's unclear how Apple intends to make money from the iCloud service, although a subscription plan seems likely.

from outside of the Randolph community have already decided who the queen will be and it will be announced in early June.

"When we wrote up a background on all our queen candidates, those who had lived here all their lives, supported Randolph, raised their children here, belonged to the organizations and churches, it was a description of what it takes to keep a small town going," said Barb Burbach, another committee member. Burbach added the candidates ranged in age from the 30s to the 80s.

On June 18 a charter bus will carry Q125 supporters to surrounding communities to promote the three-day celebration. Even now the town is dressing up with flower planters, benches and red, white and blue bunting at businesses around the city streets.

The Q125 activities will include the community fair which Randolph typically organizes every year later in July. A kids' parade will be held on Friday and on Sunday there will be an adult parade. The alumni will be in town for their traditional banquet during the weekend and each night there will be music: country music, teen music and a street dance.

On Friday, there will be a re-enactment of a bank robbery that occurred in Randolph years ago. Along the way there will be fire truck rides, ATV mud races, volleyball, softball, greased pig contests and hot dog eating contests. Antique tractors will make an appearance, horseshoes will be thrown and trolley rides will be available.
