

Mechanic Needed For Father's Final Ride

CAR TALK

Tom and Ray Magliozzi

Dear Tom and Ray:
My terminally ill father has just given me his 1961 Lincoln Continental. The car is in a storage unit in Michigan, and although it was mostly restored about eight or nine years ago, it now needs some repairs (I have a list of what it needs) to make it roadworthy. I'd like to fix it up and drive it to the East Coast, and give my father his final ride in it. My problem is that I'm living overseas, and I need to find a mechanic I can wire money to so that when it's ready, I can fly to Michigan, pick it up and drive right out to the East Coast. Do you have any idea about how to find a mechanic who can help me, who would be reputable and who wouldn't take advantage of an absentee customer? Many thanks. - Annie

RAY: We were right there with you until you mentioned the word "reputable," Annie.

TOM: Actually, your ideal candidate would be both reputable and have some experience with ancient Continentals.

RAY: So start by calling dentists' offices near where the car is stored. Ask if they treat any mechanics with few to no teeth.

TOM: Actually, we have a couple of genuine ideas for you. One is to start with the Lincoln and Continental Owners Club. You can find it on the Web at www.lcoco.org. It has a network of members who all love and restore old Lincolns. If you post a request on its website, and hook up with the regional club in Michigan, it may be able to help you find someone near the car who specializes in old Lincolns.

RAY: The second option would be to search the Mechanics Files (www.cartalk.com/mechanics). That's a database of mechanics who have been personally recommended by readers of our column or listeners to our radio show. You search it by entering your ZIP code.

TOM: You won't necessarily find a Continental specialist that way, but you should be able to find some highly recommended mechanics in the area. Then you can call a few of them and ask if they know anybody who'd be good for your dad's car.

RAY: You might get lucky. One of the guys you reach might want to do the work. But more likely, he'll know another guy in the area who loves working on older cars.

TOM: We wish you a lot of luck, Annie. It's a wonderful, sweet thing you're doing for your dad. My kids wouldn't be nearly as nice if I stuck them with one of my old heaps.

LIFE IN POETRY

Learning To Accept Aging

BY TED KOOSER
U.S. POET LAUREATE, 2004-2006

Joe Paddock is a Minnesota poet and he and I are, as we say in the Midwest, "of an age." Here is a fine poem about arriving at a stage when there can be great joy in accepting life as it comes to us.

ONE'S SHIP COMES IN

I swear
my way now will be to continue without plan or hope, to accept the drift of things, to shift
from endless effort
to joy in, say,
that robin, plunging
into the mossy shallows
of my bird bath and splashing madly till
the air shines with spray.
Joy it will be, say,
in Nancy, pretty in pink
and rumpled T-shirt, rubbing sleep from her eyes, or joy even in just this breathing, free
of fright and clutch, knowing how one's ship comes in with each such breath.

Mr. & Mrs. Leon Abler

With Sincere Appreciation
With deep appreciation we acknowledge to our family members and friends the many cards, memorials, visits, thoughts and prayers dedicated to the memory of our loving husband, father, grandfather and great grandfather, Edward Frank Nebola, who passed away May 7, 2011. A very special thank you to the Yankton Care Center and the Dialysis Unit for the loving and great care that was given. A very special thank you also to the Yankton Transit Bus and the EMS for all their special help in needed times. Thank you to Dr. Frank and Dr. Serck for all the special care and concerns that were shared. We also want to thank Kevin Opsahl and his staff for their guidance and kindness during this difficult time. They made the trip to Colome for the grave side ceremony possible and the Antique Auto Car Club escorted the procession out of Yankton. The United Methodist ladies also a big thank you for the wonderful lunch that was served after the services at the church. We will never forget the many acts of kindness shown to us during this difficult time. God's blessings to each and everyone of you.
