Apps. Accepted For Refund Program

PIERRE — Applications are being accepted for a state program that provides once-a-year refunds of sales or property taxes to eligible senior citizens and disabled individuals in South Dakota.

To be eligible for refunds, applicants must meet the following criteria:

"Disabled" is defined as being qualified to receive Social Security Disability benefits, Supplemental Security Disability benefits or the individual is a veteran with a rated disability of 60 percent or higher.
- Must have been a South Dakota resident for the entire previous year.
- Must meet annual income requirements. The 2013 income limit for a single-member household was $11,670; the limit for a multiple-member household was $15,730.

Angels In Adoption Apps. Sought

WASHINGTON — Sen. Tim Johnson (D-S.D.) is accepting nominations for the Angels in Adoption program. Each year, Johnson recognizes South Dakotans who have made a difference in the lives of children in need of a family.

"As the grandfather of two adopted children, I understand the tremendous impact that adoption has on both children and the families that welcome them into their homes," Johnson said. "Throughout our state, hundreds of families have opened their homes to children in need and I encourage people to nominate deserving individuals or families."

A longtime supporter of adoption programs and a member of the Congressional Coalition on Adoption, Johnson has supported legislation to make the adoption tax credit permanent. The tax credit helps lessen the financial burden that families face when adopting a child. Adoption fees and legal proceedings for some domestic adoptions can cost more than $40,000.

In South Dakota, nearly 1,500 children are in the foster care system. Each year, approximately 75 children in the state age out of the foster care system before they are adopted.

Angels in Adoption was established in 1999 by the Congressional Coalition of Adoption Institute to raise awareness about the importance of adoption.

The deadline for nominations is July 11. Visit <http://www.johnson.senate.gov/public/index.cfm?p=angels> to nominate a South Dakota family.

Engineers Are Up In Arms About A Recent Column

CAR TALK

Tom and Ray Magliozzi

Dear Tom and Ray:
 Ooooh! Rarely do you guys make errors. But your recent comments about jacking up a Ford F-150 by the "pumpkin" were wrong. You said the "pumpkin" is designed to take the full weight of the truck when the truck is on the ground, and that it carries the weight of stuff in the truck. That's not true. The weight of the truck and load are carried via the suspension to the axle tubes, just next to the wheels. The only reason the pumpkin/axle tube structure is required to carry the weight of the vehicle is because mechanics have historically used it as a jack point. And then it still doesn't carry the whole weight; half, or more, is carried on the front wheels or at other body jack points. So there!

— Don
 TOM: I think we've heard from every engineer on the planet about this, Don.
 RAY: And, by the way, if any entrepreneurial pocket-protector company would like the return address of every engineer known to man, we now have it.
 TOM: Consider us corrected. The wrote to us said that our bottom-line statement is correct: that you can get away with using the pumpkin to jack up the truck, but it's not recommended. So we will no longer recommend it to our readers.

RAY: Although we'll probably keep doing it ourselves!

TOM: Probably. But it turns out we had our heads up our rear differentials on the weight distribution. Sorry, guys! And thanks for the corrections.
