Dave Says

No Flighty Explanation Needed

BY DAVE RAMSEY

Dear Dave,
I've been in my current job for five years. I've also had a second job for three of those years, but now I'd like to make a change. Do you have any advice on how to convince a potential employer that I'm a good hire, even though I had a couple of jobs in the past that I quit after a month or two?

—Bill

Dear Bill,
Quitting a job after a month or so isn't normally some kind of sin that automatically disqualifies you from being hired. It might be with some corporate goober who's looking at things through some silly, one-size-fits-all hiring paradigm, but that alone wouldn't be the kiss of death around my office.

Now, would we look at something like that and want to know what happened and what your explanation was? Absolutely! But if it made sense, there wouldn't be a problem. However, if it made you sound flighty or disgruntled with things in general, we'd probably pass.

My guess is that the fields you're interested in are like most — there's a lot of importance put on who you know. And I don't mean this in a negative way. Work and try to develop good relationships with people in your field and those associated with it. If that's in place, they can honestly give out positive references.

Knowing someone within the field or a loan on a 2007 car for her sister. Now, it's being repossessed, and $23,000 is still owed on it at 20 percent. What can we do in this situation?

—Pablo

Dear Pablo,

Tell the bank or dealer where the car is, and tell them to come pick it up. There's no way to get out of the rest, my friend. You and your wife are going to be liable for whatever the car doesn't bring in afterward. Let's say it sells for $4,000. That would be subtracted from what is owed, and it will still be up to you guys to pay the rest. You could always try to negotiate to settle it for pennies on the dollar. Based on what you've told me, that's a best-case scenario.

The other thing I would do is demand a full audit on the account from day-one to present, because a 20 percent interest rate doesn't explain why a car didn't pay off — especially a $23,000 car. If this was a $5,000 car from a tote-the-note car lot, and they were ripping her off charging only interest — and that's all anyone was paying, and she gave up and punted — that's fine. You're just looking for a little understanding of the situation. But $23,000 cars don't generally have 20 percent interest. That's a pretty freaky deal, and I'd want to know where the money went.

From a bank's perspective, I don't see how anyone would think something like this would work out. The car was going down in value the entire time, so it just doesn't make sense to me. Of course, if you have the cash lying around and it wouldn't damage your finances, you could just take care of things and call it Stupid Tax.

Cosigning on a loan, especially with family, is never a good idea.

Czech Days

Czech Traditions Workshops Set

TABOR — Daniela Mahoney will present three days of Czech tradition craft workshops during Czech Days.

Mahoney has a degree from the School of International Trade & Foreign Languages, Prague, Czech Republic; and Bachelor and Master degrees from Portland State University, Portland, Oregon, and speaks fluent Czech, Russian, French, and German and conversational Italian and Spanish.

She creates unique hand-engraved ornaments which are distributed to art galleries and gift shops nationwide. Some of the places she has made appearances/artist demonstrations were at the Epcot Center grand opening in Orlando, Florida; Czech and Slovak Museum, Cedar Rapids, Iowa; and Ellis Island, New York City. She develops cultural educational programs, publishes children's activity books and travels nationwide to present lectures and classes for the preservation of the Czech and Slovak heritage.

Mahoney will direct six workshops each day on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, June 19-21 at the Opsahl-Kostel Funeral Home. Pre-registration for the workshops is recommended. Registration forms may be downloaded from the web at www.taborczechdays.com or by calling (605) 463-2571 for further information. If the workshops are not full, walk-ins will be welcomed. Each workshop is restricted to 24 participants. Participants may attend as many of the 45 minute workshops as wanted. There will be a small fee for each workshop for supplies.

Friday, June 19, starting at 9:45 a.m. to 12:15 p.m.: 45-minute workshops on egg decorating with hot wax, blue ink, and straw/paper.

Then from 1:35-4:30 p.m. on Saturday afternoon: 45-minute workshops on egg decorating with hot wax and then on paper cutting, wheat weaving and dough ornament making.

Workshops are repeated on Sunday, June 21, starting at 12:30-5:45 p.m. workshops on egg decorating with hot wax, blue ink, and straw/paper and on paper cutting, wheat weaving and dough ornament making.

• WHEAT WEAVING: Traditional straw decorations were popular in Czech Lands and Slovakia. Straw was available in farming community households and it was an inexpensive material for creating charming decorations of all sizes year around. Baskets and small kitchen containers were used to store or to display food; wreaths were popular during the harvest season. Crafters used the straw to create Christmas ornaments because straw stands out against the green branches of the tree and shines like gold. Straw also had a magic meaning in Christian communities because Jesus was born in a stable on a bed of straw. One of the favorite designs is a star of Bethlehem. Other popular decorations include: angels, chains, small baskets, pine cones and hearts. Folk artists work with three different kinds of straw: round straw, flat ironed straw or straw cut in half and ironed.

• DOUGH ORNAMENT MAKING: The art of ornamental dough originated in the town of Vizovice in northern Moravia. Traditional shapes have been baked for more than 140 years. The dough is made from flour and water. All designs are created by molding the dough by hand and using knives, scissors, combs and spices to achieve special effects. After baking the ornaments, the finished products can be varnished. These ornaments are not intended for eating.

Each design has a meaning: Dove=love and peace in the family; Frog=is the guardian of clean water; Fish=silence; Crawfish=protection against misfortune; Hare=strength; Squirrel=good homemaker; Swan=love.

• PAPER CUTTING: Traditional paper cutting art originated in Poland and spread to the bordering regions of northern parts of Czech lands and Slovakia. Elaborate paper decorations adorned homes many years dating back to the first half of the 19th century. The walls and ceilings of home interiors were white washed and decorated with intricate colored paper cut outs glued on their surface.

Each region has developed its own unique designs, color schemes and folding/cutting techniques featuring animals, plants and geometric motives. Three main techniques of paper cutting: Stars/Snowflakes; Mirror image designs; and People holding hands.

• EGG DECORATING: The tradition of egg decorating in Slavic cultures originated in Pagan times. More than 2000 years ago people decorated eggs believing that great powers were embodied in the egg. During early Pagan rituals the egg was chosen for worshipping ceremonies of the Sun God. When the egg was broken, the yolk represented the Sun and the whites the Moon.

Traditionally straw is soaked in water, split in half, ironed and cut into small shapes that are glued onto the surface of an egg. Our students used paper as an alternative material.

Blue designs are drawn on the surface of the white egg with a pen dipped into blue ink. Sharpie pens and felt pens can be also used.

This project is co-sponsored by the South Dakota Arts Council.
