Does Summer Mean Things Slow Down? Sometimes.

BY JAMES D. CIMBUREK
james.cimburek@yankton.net

One of the more common questions both Jeremy Hoeck and I deal with this time of year is, "Have things slowed down for you now that it's summer?"

We usually say "yes." A more accurate answer may be, "Sometimes."

After spending the past week covering their first major international event, the World Archery Youth Championships, my staff would be apt to say that things have not slowed down for them. A year of talking about it and preparation led to one incredible week of coverage, both for our sports staff and our news staff. Hopefully many of you had the opportunity to witness this once-in-a-lifetime event for Yankton.

While not nearly as prestigious as WAYC, there are four events this coming weekend that will bring even more people to Yankton: The Morrie Wachendorf First Dakota Classic (American Legion baseball), the Yankton Girls' Softball Association Invitational, the Yankton Soccer Invitational and the Yankton Charity Invitational swim meet.

Each one has its unique draws. The baseball tournament will feature the Legion programs that made up three of the four semifinalists in the S.D. Class B high school finals earlier this month. Swimming has an event that has gone for more than five decades. Soccer and softball each draw a ton of talent from a three-four state area, with soccer having the added allure of a Yankton alumni match.

Next weekend is, of course, Father's Day. While there are plenty of plans for outings to celebrate dad, hopefully you make a little time to check out one or all of these events and support some great young people in Yankton and surrounding communities. Before you know it, we'll be talking about the fall season.

Join Jeremy Hoeck and me today at 3:30 p.m. Central time for the Press & Dakotan weekly sports chat. Go online to www.yankton.net/live_chat Erdener said.

"Their impression, our impression too, is really good," the president said. "I would like to thank the organizing committee, especially Bruce Cull and his team."

As part of Sunday evening's closing ceremony, Erdener symbolically handed over a World Archery flag to an official from Argentina, which will host the next WAYC, in 2017.

Yankton, the president said, made a positive impression on the group from World Archery.

"We had a really successful event here," Erdener said. "I would like to thank everybody who contributed something to this event."

Brazil to the bronze in the Recurve Cadet Men Team.

Dalmeida was therefore able to stand on the awards podium twice Sunday, hearing his country's national anthem during his individual awards ceremony.

"That was a beautiful moment," Dalmeida said later.

In his individual final, Dalmeida was matched up with Jan Van Tongeren from the Netherlands. The Brazilian was able to win 6-2.

"It was a nice match; beautiful," Dalmeida said. "It was my dream to be at a world championship.

"I'm first," he added, pausing. "First in the world."

Dalmeida will head back to Brazil, but only for a short time. He will next compete at the Pan American Games, which will be held July 10-26 in Toronto.

How does his gold medal experience in Yankton help him for the future?

"The experience is the best," he said. "Maybe it is possible to do this again."

Next WAYC: Argentina

As part of the closing ceremonies on Sunday afternoon, World Archery president Uger Erdener passed the organization flag on to a dignitary from Argentina. It was a kind of torch passing, from one tournament to the next.

It was announced earlier this year that Buenos Aires, Argentina, will be the next host of the World Archery Youth Championships, in 2017.

Melissa Regnasco, a 19-year-old archer from Argentina, will have passed the age limit by that point, which understandably is a source of good-natured disappointment.

"I wish I had another chance," Regnasco said. "It's a big opportunity to let people know about Argentina. We are growing, and that tournament is essential."

Regnasco, who previously competed at the 2013 WAYC in China, raved Sunday about Yankton serving as the host this year.

"The town was great," she said. "The kindness of the people was very welcoming."

Regnasco's teammate Leonel Ezequiel Aranda echoed those thoughts, saying – through translation – that he enjoyed his stay in Yankton.

"It was a very good experience," said the 15-year-old Aranda, who was competing in his first international tournament.

"I liked everything about this."

Aranda will likely be a contender to compete in the 2017 WAYC in his home country.

"I'm very happy," he said. "We will all be proud.

"I hope the tournament will be very good."

S.D. Archer Captures Gold Medal

BY JEREMY HOECK

Cole Feterl followed the gold medal action from his computer at home in Lennox, watching — like millions of people around the world — the 2013 World Archery Youth Championships from Wuxi, China.

He was 14 years old.

Just young enough to miss the cut-off for the biennial event. But certainly old enough to know what it would mean to represent the United States.

"I remember watching these on YouTube," Feterl said. "And I always wanted to be at one of these."

Mission accomplished.

Feterl, the lone South Dakotan in the field, helped lead the United States to a team gold medal Saturday morning at the World Archery Youth Championships in Yankton.

Paired with Dane Johnson and Daniel O'Connor, Feterl helped Team USA beat Great Britain by 12 points in the Compound Cadet Men's final.

The finals were held on a specially-designed course out in front of the Easton Yankton Archery Complex, but the general setup was much like Feterl watched online two years ago.

"It's cool to see it in person, but even better to actually be up there," he said.

When the United States team of 24 archers — 12 men, 12 women — was announced two months ago, Feterl knew he would have the label of 'lone South Dakota archer' for the tournament.

But he never let any potential pressure get to him.

"It's a huge honor to win a gold, especially here," Feterl said.

At 16 years old, Feterl was the oldest of his team: Johnson (from Indiana) is 14 and O'Connor (from Georgia) is 15.

The trio had advanced their way all through the Compound Cadet Team bracket during the week, setting themselves up for an appearance in the finals.

They were then matched up against Great Britain. The United States team built up a 12-point lead after three of four ends, and later captured a 225-213 victory.

"One we got a lead, we just coasted and quit worrying," Feterl said.

The United States did have the advantage, though, when it came to crowd support. The WAYC being in their home country no doubt fueled the archers all week, Feterl said.

"It was awesome," he said. "My family was here, and a bunch of other people.

"I had a couple of rough days, but the team shot awesome."
