DAILY RECORD POLICY

The Press and Dakotan publishes police and sheriff reports as a public service to its readers. It is important to remember that an arrest should not imply guilt and that every person is presumed innocent until proven otherwise. When juveniles are released from jail, it is into the care of a parent or guardian.

It is the policy of the Press and Dakotan to publish all names made available in the police and court reports. There are no exceptions.

BUDGET

Dilges said he has asked Republican legislative leaders to give him details of how they want some state agencies to respond to the suggested spending cuts. He said some of the proposals could have unintended consequences and others are flawed because they could cut the same dollars two or three times.

For example, the plan to close the intensive treatment program for women inmates addicted to methamphetamine would affect nearly 100 inmates and those in aftercare, Dilges said. It's unclear whether those inmates would be turned free or put into the main women's prison, he said.

A $300,000 cut would remove about half the funding for a program that provides courses over a television network to rural schools, Dilges said. But he said lawmakers need to provide more information on what courses or services they want to eliminate.

The GOP proposal would cut $7 million by a 2 percent across-the-board cut to all programs except K-12 education and Medicaid, the state-federal program that provides medical services to low-income people. Dilges said a $4 million cut in personal services and another $4 million cut in travel, equipment and supplies would also amount to across-the-board cuts. The general across-the-board cuts, combined with the cuts in personal services and equipment, would add up to cuts of 6 percent or more to agencies, he said.

"There's not $15 million of fat that's floating around in state government that we can do without and not have to discontinue services," Dilges said.

The cuts also could have unintended consequences such as preventing South Dakota Public Broadcasting from getting some federal matching money and reducing a Health Department program that vaccinates children for mumps, measles and other diseases, Dilges said.

A $1 million cut in the Department of Tourism and State Development is likely to hamper economic development efforts because tourism promotion does not use any general state funds, he said.
